SUMMARY.

The third reading of the Home Rule Bill was carried by the Commons. Nationalists are jubilant.

The House was crowded. Ironical cheers and outcries greeted the appearance of Mr. Lloyd George.

Mr. Bonar Law said "the contemptible farce" was not yet ended. The final tribunal was not far distant.

Twenty cheering Nationalists escorted the Bill to the House of Lords. Visitors in the lobbies sang "God Save Ireland."

There will be no general celebrations in Ireland, where the news has been quietly received.

Prince Arthur of Connaught presided at the dinner of the Colonial Institute in London.

Some day, he declared, the Empire would be a real union of hearts, brains, and common interests.

Sir John Madden said Australia was afraid Japan might look after the Pacific only too well.

The London headquarters of the Overseas Club were opened by the Lord Mayor. Its membership numbers 120,000.

United States military airmen were fired at, without damage, while flying over Vera Cruz.

There are renewed rumours that a revolt is pending in the Mexican capital.

The U.S. War Department has decided not to withdraw U.S. battleships from Mexican waters for the present.

The United States Supreme Court has come to a decision regarding the case of the White Star liner Titanic.

The owners are held to be liable only in accordance with United States maritime law.

This means that litigants receive nothing by way of compensation or damage.

M. Clement Bayard and two companions were arrested at Cologne on a charge of espionage.

Though armed with permits, they were imprisoned for witnessing the landing of a Zeppelin from a considerable distance.

The fate of Mr. Hamel, who attempted to fly across the Channel on Saturday, is still uncertain.

The death is announced of the distinguished Hungarian statesman and writer, Francis Kossuth, aged 72.

---

Senator Millen yesterday said the Government was desirous of acquiring flying machines of the latest pattern.

He was now in communication with the Imperial authorities on the question of recent discoveries in stability.

He said he wished to use the citizen soldier, and minimise the permanent element as far as efficiency allowed.

The Imperial warships at New Zealand are to join in battle practice with the Royal Australian Navy.

According to Senator Millen, the ships will join Admiral Patey's command towards the end of the year.

Senator Millen yesterday said the present Commonwealth military organisation was clogging the wheels of the army machine.

The general principle of a new business department for the army will probably be adopted at an early date.

The launching of the Australian Union Federation by the Union's Conference was concluded at the Trades Hall yesterday.

The stated object of the Federation is "to wage successfully the battle of humanity against the power of wealth."

The Inspector-General of the Insane has made recommendations to the Premier for the treatment of mental diseases.

He says a more vigorous treatment of early cases is needed, to prevent them becoming less curable.

Mr. Cann, Chief Secretary, intends to ask Parliament to vote money for increasing the police force.

Sir Gerald Strickland yesterday approved the appointment of the first Council of the N.S.W. Conservatorium of Music.

It is intended to celebrate the turning of the first sod of the Great Western-road in 1914.

On Monday night an enthusiastic meeting was held at Penrith by the Centenary Celebration Committee.

Dr. Wright, Anglican Archbishop, presided at the annual commemoration of Moore Theological College yesterday.

Principal Davies, in presenting his report, said that more men to study for the ministry were urgently needed.

Alderman Richards, Lord Mayor, held a civic reception yesterday at the Town Hall to the submarine staff.

Mr. Blair, Queensland Education Minister, said people were not educated to view Labour in its true perspective.

The manual worker merited a university degree as much as the man who worked with his brain.

The funeral of the late Rev. R. S. Paterson, which took place at Gore Hill yesterday, was largely attended.

Mr. Paterson was the oldest surviving minister of the Presbyterian Union Assembly of 1865.

A young man was charged at Melbourne yesterday with continually and violently threatening to murder his sweetheart.

He is said repeatedly to have declared that she "must die before night." A warrant has been issued.

Four cases of smallpox are under observation at Bunbury (W.A.). The infection is attributed to a hospital patient.

Northern miners are of opinion that there is laxity in the administration of the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Mr. William Crane, one of Sydney's oldest natives, died yesterday at his residence at Stanmore, aged 87 years.

Sir James Fairfax yesterday opened an exhibition of Mr. Lister Lister's paintings at Anthony Horderns' Art Gallery.

William John King was committed for trial at the Coroner's Court yesterday on a charge of murder.

Evidence was given that, acting on motives of jealousy, King cut his wife's throat with a razor.

While driving from Bombala to Craigie, a well-known Chinese resident died suddenly from natural causes.

His companion, who was driving, on discovering the fact, dropped the reins and bolted into the bush.

Evidence on electroplate, pianos, and the cork trade was taken yesterday by the Interstate Commission.

An Abbotsford tram early yesterday morning was derailed by collision with a mob of cattle.

Four of the beasts were killed outright, and two others had subsequently to be put to death.

On the Stock Exchange yesterday business was less brisk than it has been for some days past.

Variations on recent sales were few, shares selling generally at late rates.

Wheat was easier in feeling, prices being unchanged at 3s 10½d for parcels. Cancellations were made at 3s 11d.

Freights on flour to the East advanced 2s 6d per ton through increased handling costs at the Australian end.

A fractional improvement on the London Exchange in a few Australian stocks had no effect whatever locally.

The record of business done was even worse than that of the previous day.

All sections were equally affected by the general depression. Gold stocks were practically dead.

Trade for dairy produce was dull in Sussex-street yesterday. Egg values were firm.

The bacon market was again unsettled. Cheese met with an average inquiry at late rates.

Grey peas were exceedingly strong. Maize values were uncertain. Onions and potatoes were steady.

Weather Forecast.—Fine generally except for some showers on central and southern tablelands and south-western slopes; passing rain; chiefly on the far south coast; some snow likely; cold and squally south-west winds.

TO-DAY
LASSETTERS
ANNOUNCE ONE OF THE BEST PIECES OF NEWS THAT THE SYDNEY WOMEN HAVE READ THIS SEASON.

We have just purchased from one of the foremost manufacturers of Sydney a collection of two hundred and fifty Coat and Skirt Costumes, Crepe-de-Chine Costumes, Silk and Cloth Robes, Evening Robes, Evening Coats, etc. This firm is considered one of the highest class producers in Australia. Their business is through for the Season, and their designers are starting the new ideas for the Summer.
FOR THIS REASON we have secured their entire Stock on Hand AT AN AVERAGE REDUCTION OF ABOUT HALF OF REGULAR VALUES.
THE STYLES OF THE COSTUMES AND ROBES represent the best ideas brought out this Season, both here and abroad.

THE MOST CONSERVATIVE ESTIMATE OF THE VALUES OF THE DRESSES RANGE FROM 5 GUINEAS TO 12 GUINEAS. A FEW ARE WORTH STILL MORE.
TO-DAY THEY ARE PRICED AT FROM 39/6 to 5½ GUINEAS.

CERTAINLY MOST STARTLING PRICES AT WHICH WE OFFER NEW BEAUTIFUL COSTUMES FROM THE FOREMOST AUSTRALIAN MANUFACTURER WITH THE SEASON STILL AT ITS HEIGHT.

The following will give only a slight idea of what the offering consists; and, remember,
ONLY ONE OF A KIND.
EVENING ROBES, in the very Newest Designs, Peg-top Effects, etc., Creme and Colours. TO-DAY, 49/6 TO 5 GUINEAS. Usual prices would be 5 to 10 guineas.
EVENING COATS, in the Newest Designs, finished with the tight effect at bottom, and loose new Magyar top. Shades in Grey, Blue, Tango, and Creme.
TO-DAY, 39/6 AND 5 GUINEAS.
Usual prices would be 7 guineas to 12 guineas.
SMART VISITING ONE-PIECE ROBES, in Velour, Silk Crepe, Serge, and Cloth, prettily trimmed FUR, Oriental, and Lace. Absolutely Newest Designs.
TO-DAY, ONLY 32/6 TO 5 GUINEAS.
Usual prices would be 6 guineas to 10 guineas.
COATS AND SKIRTS, the latest note in Donegal Tweeds, Velours, Duvetin, and Serge, Newest Designs in Skirts, some with Tree Tier and Peg-top Effect. ONES ONLY. In all the Newest Shades.
TO-DAY PRICES RANGE FROM 42/ to 3½ GUINEAS.
Usual Price, 6½ to 12 guineas.
LADIES' HANDSOME VELVET COATS AND SKIRTS, beautifully designed and finished. Six only.
Usual Price, 10 guineas.

OUR BONA-FIDE SALE
OF THE WHOLE OF OUR STOCK OF COSTUMES, COATS, SKIRTS, GOLFERS, BLOUSES, AND FURS, WILL BE CONTINUED TO-DAY, and
FOR 10 DAYS LONGER.
Grasp the opportunity of purchasing your Winter wants at greatly Reduced Prices.

THE SALE OF TRIMMINGS
STILL GOING ON IN OUR TRIMMING DEPARTMENT ON THE GROUND FLOOR.
NEVER WERE TRIMMINGS SOLD AT SUCH LITTLE PRICES.

HAHN'S CORSETS
AT REDUCED PRICES.
Miss Luke, an expert Corsetiere, is in attendance daily in our Corset Department, and will be pleased if Ladies who are anxious to be "Correctly Corseted" will give her an opportunity of demonstrating, and thus advising them as to what is "Correct."

LASSETTERS, SYDNEY.

WATERPROOF WINTER BOOTS, BUILT FOR ROUGH SERVICE.

The man who leads an outdoor life during winter will readily appreciate the advantages of thoroughly-waterproof Footwear.

When the ground is wet underfoot, and rainstorms are prevalent, ordinary Footwear rarely proves sufficiently resistive of the damp.

The Boots we quote to-day are made of stout Chrome-tanned Colt Hide. The legs are cut higher than usual, and leather lined. The soles are heavy, and of double thickness, with extra wide rope-stitched welts.

Sheet rubber is packed between the soles, absolutely excluding moisture and cold.

These Boots, while designed and reinforced for rough winter service, are of good shape and smart in style.

They are cut in the Derby Laced Balmoral style, originally designed for shooting or golf, but now popular for general wear.

SIZES, 5-10. FITTINGS, D.E.
IN BLACK AND TAN.

PHOTOGRAPHS.—THE DIFFERENCE.

IT IS THE QUALITY THAT DIFFERENTIATES PHOTOGRAPHS. WHEN YOUR PHOTO. IS AN ARTISTIC AND BEAUTIFUL PICTURE, WHICH CHARMS YOU AND YOUR FRIENDS, IT HAS DISTINCTIVE MERITS WHICH ARE APPARENT. THE SOFTNESS OF LIGHT AND SHADE BRINGS OUT THE FEATURES CLEAR AND DISTINCT. THE EXPRESSION IS CHARACTERISTIC, AND THE PRESENTATION OF FORM AND FIGURE IS FAITHFULLY PORTRAYED. IN A WORD, THEY EMPHASISE YOUR INDIVIDUALITY. THE WORK OF THE CROWN STUDIOS IS CONCENTRATED ON QUALITY IN PHOTOGRAPHY. ALL THAT THE SKILL OF HIGH-CLASS ARTISTS CAN ACCOMPLISH WITH THE AID OF THE MOST UP-TO-DATE APPLIANCES, AND THE LATEST FACILITIES OF MODERN PHOTOGRAPHIC ART, IS PRODUCED IN OUR STUDIOS. OUR AIM IS TO REACH THE HIGHEST POINT OF EXCELLENCE, AND THE CONSEQUENCE IS OUR PHOTOGRAPHS ARE OF A SUPERIOR CHARACTER. THE NAME OF THE CROWN STUDIOS ON YOUR PHOTO. INCREASES ITS VALUE, BECAUSE OF OUR REPUTATION FOR HIGH-CLASS WORK.

YOU CAN PROVE THIS.

AN OPPORTUNITY PRESENTS ITSELF TO ALL WHO VALUE ARTISTIC PHOTOGRAPHS TO OBTAIN 12 HIGH-CLASS BROMIDE CABINETS FOR 18/6, OR WITH AN ENLARGEMENT, FRAMED, 21/. BROMIDES ARE SUPPLIED BY MANY HIGH-PRICED STUDIOS AS PLATINOTYPES, AUTOTYPES, CARBONS, ETC., BUT WE CALL A SPADE A SPADE, AND AS WE ARE THE ONLY PHOTOGRAPHERS WHO MAKE OUR OWN BROMIDE PAPER, WE GUARANTEE OUR PHOTOS.

IN MAKING THIS OFFER WE WISH TO EMPHASISE THE FACT THAT THE SAME CAREFUL ATTENTION, THE SAME SKILFUL AND ARTISTIC TREATMENT, IS BESTOWED UPON THESE PHOTOGRAPHS AS IF THE FULL ORDINARY PRICES HAD BEEN PAID. OUR REPUTATION FOR HIGH-CLASS PORTRAITS ENSURES THIS.

DON'T MISS THIS SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY.

"EMBLO" PORTRAITS ARE THE HIGHEST STANDARD OF EXCELLENCE.

BUILDING MATERIALS.

A BAD EXPERIENCE may be avoided
if you insist on
HARDIE'S GENUINE FIBRO-CEMENT.
FIBRO-CEMENT, for Walls, Ceilings, and Roof of your new Home.
THE ERECTED COST IS THE SAME AS WOOD, while the appearance and durability are equal to the more expensive structure.
Proof against Fire, Ants, and Heat.
Low Insurance. Cheap Freights.
Obtainable in convenient sizes.
Use ONLY THE GENUINE Fibro-Cement, which has been proved and tested in Australia for 12 years.

ASBESTOS SLATES
DEMAND YOUR ATTENTION.
The advantages of CALMON'S ASBESTOS SLATES are so great—so much better than other roofing materials, that they should have the interest of every builder. An attractive GREY in colour—light weight—positively water and storm proof, their first (erected) cost is practically the same as CORRUGATED IRON. Being lighter than Terra Cotta Tiles, they need a much lighter roof construction—thus reducing costs. They are fire and lightning proof—ant proof—and are fitted with a storm clamp which prevents damage.
YOU need them—Inquire NOW for samples and particulars.
H. S. WALTER AND CO.,
163 George-street, near Circular Quay.

A GOOD PLAN IS TO USE "POILITE" ASBESTOS CEMENT, SHEETS AND TILES (Genuine British Made).
If you consider PERMANENCY, ECONOMY, and APPEARANCE when building, you will find it to your advantage to investigate the merits of "POILITE"—the modern building material.
"POILITE" SHEETS make attractive, permanent, and economical walls, ceilings, etc., and are easily and quickly nailed into position.
"POILITE" is fire-proof, ant-proof, non-absorbent, cool in summer, warm in winter, economical.
"POILITE" TILES are best for attractive and economical roofs, and are guaranteed British Standard thickness.

A NEW INVENTION.—The most practical attempt at solving the Fencing problem so far introduced, is now on exhibition in Sydney at the premises of Messrs. Rawson, Moody Manufacturing Co., 343 Kent-street, and is known as the "Holdfast" Patent All Steel Fence, and consists of Straining Posts, Standards, Droppers, and Wire. The fence, when erected, is simple, strong, and cheap, and practically everlasting. A 6-wire fence for general use can be put up by a man and a lad at the rate of half a mile a day, at a cost of 10/ to 12/ per chain, or about £40 per mile. All fencing men are enthusiastic, and are buying largely.

COMPETITION NOTES.

The senior games on Saturday, with the exception of that between Mosman and Manly, were very evenly contested. The result of the round puts a very different aspect on the competition, Mosman remaining the only unbeaten team. The downfall of Eastern Suburbs, on their own ground, at the hands of Petersham was rather unexpected, more particularly as the premiers were represented by their full strength, and their opponents were without that sterling defence player, Newman. Eastern Suburbs went through last year's competition unbeaten, and in their first three engagements this season they gave the impression that the feat would be repeated. However, their defeat will not do the game any harm, for it is not in the interest of any sport that one club should tower head and shoulders over all the others. A. Thomas has been the most prolific goal-scorer for Eastern Suburbs for some years, but on Saturday he found a worthy antagonist in Miller, who only allowed his man free once. Petersham's combination and team tactics were excellent, and were great factors in their success. Salt and Ford, two colts, performed excellently, and "fed" Rowe well. Rowley, Dawson, and Hughes were strong in the defence, and Cullen-Ward, Dean, and Batten played determinedly for Eastern Suburbs.

Sydney found Balmain a difficult team to beat. The Sydney men have had more experience, and this, coupled with a solid defence, secured them the match. The play at times was inclined to be on the rough side, and many illegalities went undetected, particularly tripping. Hitchcock, Sydney's home, though far from well, kept his place on the field, and scored the winning goals. Hopkins, a recent addition, played second home, and showed that he has some capability, and that he will greatly strengthen the Sydney attack. J. Yuille was again prominent, and Young and Gross did well in the Balmain attack, but they were inclined to resort to dodging tactics when a pass might have resulted in a goal. Lewis, late of Burwood, played well in the losers' goal.

Though the University-St. George match was close, the game was uninteresting, owing to many faults on both sides. St. George played better than in their previous engagements, but their form is still below senior standard. The students played very indifferently; their passing was unaccountably bad, and Stillman especially did not play up to expectations.

Manly could not withstand Mosman's attack. The latter team are playing well, with excellent combination, and Geddes, Gurney, Senior, and Webb made a solid defence. Alex. Sutherland played a good game at centre, but he still shows the old tendency to hang on to the ball. In every game this season Manly have resorted to goal packing. This practice, besides hindering the team's scoring chances, makes the game slow, and slow lacrosse does not appeal to supporters of the game.

THE TURF.

IMPORTANT STAKES CLOSING.

Tuesday next is a day which owners and trainers cannot afford to overlook, as it is the most important date in connection with the Australian turf. On that day entries close for the principal handicaps of the spring, as well as for the classic races of the future. The events are all rich in added money, and the Australian Jockey Club has issued a most attractive programme. It includes, besides the two big handicaps to be run at the meeting at Randwick in the spring, the classic events to be decided during the next two seasons. The ten events provided by the Australian Jockey Club carry added money totalling £26,000, while the Rosehill Guineas has been increased to 1000 guineas. The Western Australian Turf Club has also issued an attractive programme, including the Western Australian Derby of 1500 sovs and Karrakatta Plate of 1000 sovs, both to be run on December 26, 1914; Sires Produce Stakes of 1000 sovs, 7f, Easter Meeting, 1915; and the nomination of sires for the Sires Produce Stakes of 1916, of 1000 sovs.

Entries for the A.J.C. events will be received by the secretary, Mr. C. W. Cropper, at the office of the club, up to 4 pm. on Tuesday, June 2, and up to the same hour by the secretary of the V.R.C., Melbourne. Nominations for the Rosehill Guineas will be received up to 4 p.m., by the secretary, Mr. Geo. W. S. Rowe, Sydney, Mr. M. P. Considine, secretary Sandown Park Racing Club, Melbourne. Nominations for the Western Australian Turf Club's events can be made at the offices of the Australian Jockey Club, and the V.R.C., Melbourne.

THE WARROO STUD.

At the Warroo stud just now a number of promising youngsters may be seen. The portion of the station which Mr. C. S. M'Phillamy has allotted to the stud farm is a pretty bend of the Lachlan, shaped like a horseshoe, which has been subdivided into 13 paddocks, each having access to the river. The paddocks are laid down in lucerne, and each contains a stack of hay. In one paddock are four yearlings by Tartan—a br c from Steel Blue (Seaton Delavel—Real Blue), a br c out of Kina (Flavus—Gaiety Girl), and two geldings, one out of Bellewing (Escutcheon—Memgorm), the other from Cleota (Positano—Cleo). Amongst the foals the pride of the stud is a bay colt by Prince Foote from Hautesse (Haut Brion—Alga, by Trenton). Another worthy of notice is a brown colt by Kenilworth from Gala (Goldsbrough—Merry-Go-Round). Mr. M'Phillamy has a high regard for the Pocahontas blood, which Kenilworth is very inbred to. Tera, a two-year-old by Kenilworth from Fire Queen, is at present in training at Randwick. On account of his liking for the strain mentioned, Mr. M'Phillamy recently purchased Woodland Maid (Galopin Lad—Foxglove) at a fairly high figure. Amongst other nice mares with foals were Tilga (Rice-Mersey's Daughter) to Kenilworth; Deluge (St. Swithin—Real Lady) to Tartan; Dunure (Escutcheon—Dunrose) to Tartan; and Rosy Morn (Midday, imp.—Melrose) to Tartan. As a rule, Mr. M'Phillamy only puts his mares to the stud every alternate year. Those stinted this season are:—Cute (Stephiak—Decoy) and Gala (Goldsbrough—Merry-go-round) to Kenilworth; Fire Queen (Escutcheon—Bush Fire) to Prince Foote; Bellewing to Bright Steel; Kina to Prudent King; and Rosy Morn, Cleota, Martine (Warroo—Tri de Vie), Monwonga (Warroo-Memgorm), Blue Rosette (Scottish King—Real Blue), all to Tartan. Of the stud matrons spelling this year may be mentioned Alga, Malt Rose, Iodide, Steam, Thura, Woodland Maid and Elinka. In a paddock by himself was the colt Janissary (Challenger (imp.)—Nalurmie), recently purchased at the Randwick sales. The stud is capably looked after by J. Dowley, and if he had no other claim to being considered a good manager, his kindness to animals would carry him a long way. There is not a horse, young or old, on the farm, that will not come at his call, and eat out of his hand.

Across the river immediately opposite the Warroo stud, is Merrivale, the property of Mr. Levi Thomas. Here the Caulfield Cup winner, Maranui, did stud duty for three seasons, and a number of his stock are now promising remarkably well. One is a big, strong-limbed three-year-old chestnut, bred to English time, out of Mersey's Daughter, and called Carweels. He will shortly be put into active training. Another ready for the trainer's hands is Taffeta, a four-year-old brown mare by Charlemagne II. from Silk Gown.

NOTES

The success of Messrs. W. and F. A. Moses' St. Frusquin horse, St. Alwyne, has been more marked than usual of late. His series of successes began at Tattersall's May meeting, when Sir Alwynton, who was bred by Messrs. Moses Bros, carried off the Winter Stakes of 600 sovs. A little later Duke Alwyne scored at Wallsend, and Sir Alwynton subsequently won the Newcastle Cup of 1000 sovs., almost at the same time that Bective, a son of St. Alwyne, won a race in Adelaide. On Saturday Bective's sister, Haze, annexed the Moorefield Handicap, and another of the breed, Little Siam, who is by St. Alwyne out of Emir's dam, won the Jumpers' Flat Race at Epsom (Vic).

That famous son of St. Simon, Positano, who holds a Melbourne Cup record, having sired four winners of that important event, has returned to this State, and will do stud duty in the Windsor district. Positano began his stud duty at Neotsfield, on the Hunter, and became a great stallion, his high reputation inducing Mr. S. Green to pay 4500 gns. for him to rule over a choice selection of mares established at Shipley stud, near Warrnambool (Vic.). The season before last Mr. Green retired Comedy King from the turf, and quite recently bought at a high figure the English stallion White Star, and needing only the services of two sires he arranged with Mr. G. D. Wood, of Windsor, to take Positano, mainly for the reason that Mr. Wood is a generous horse master, and also to bring Positano nearer to Sydney, where his progeny have always been more appreciated than in the southern State.

Glenmore, who won the Victoria Steeplechase at the V.R.C. Spring Meeting last November, has been allotted 11st 12lb. in the Great Northern Steeplechase, to be run shortly at Auckland (N.Z.). Bercola, winner of the event last year, is on the same mark.

La Neive, winner of the Brisbane Thousand, was sold late last year to her present owner, Mr. W. M. Ryan, for 600gns.

GOLF.

AUSTRALIAN V ROYAL SYDNEY.

NORTH V SOUTH.

BRITISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP.

The rain which fell during last week left the various courses in fine order for Saturday's play, and the weather was all that could be desired. The most important events were the first meeting of the season of the two metropolitan clubs, and the match at Concord, in which players of the Northern Suburban clubs were defeated by those of the Southern clubs. Both matches were well contested, the margin in each case being the narrowest possible. At Kensington, the Australian Club scored a very meritorious win over Royal Sydney, both clubs being strongly represented. This match robbed the North v South engagement of a good deal of its interest. On the Australian side there were seven suburban players, and on the Royal Sydney side one who would certainly have found places in either North or South, and representative teams could not, therefore, be placed on the field.

In the metropolitan match the Kensington side was led by N. F. Christoe, who was opposed by H. A. Howden. The latter was in good form, and at the turn was 1 up. The next two holes were divided, and Howden won the twelfth and thirteenth, but lost the fourteenth in 5 to 4. He won the fifteenth in 5 to an indifferent 6 by Christoe, and the sixteenth being halved in threes, Howden scored first blood for Royal Sydney by 3 and 2. In the second match C. H. Reading (R.S.) met O. H. O'Brien, and the former, playing well, was 3 up at the tenth, but O'Brien won the next three holes in good style, but could not hold his opponent, who again went ahead, and by taking the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth holes, won by 3 and 2. Reading was out in 40 and home in 39, which represents good play. W. A. Windeyer (A) was in good form against J. S. Marks, though the pair were equally matched. Even golf was played to the ninth, where the players were all square, and coming home the next four holes were divided. Windeyer then gained the lead by winning the fourteenth in 4 to 5, and the fifteenth in an excellent 3 to 4, and became 2 up. The next two holes were halved, and Windeyer won a good match by 2 and 1.

P. S. Jones (A) found E. P. Simpson very much off his game, and early assuming a commanding lead won at the eleventh green by 8 and 7. W. S. Laidley (R.S.) was out in 38, having had the first four holes in 3, 4, 4, 3, and was 4 up at the turn on H. W. M'Lelland, winning easily by 6 and 5, thus giving Royal Sydney a lead of 3 matches to 2. Meantime R. Colquhoun (A.) was having a great struggle with C. W. Rundle. He was 1 down at the turn, but recovered leeway on the run home, the position being all square at the seventeenth. Colquhoun missed a chance to win at the eighteenth, his approach being weak, and his putt wide, and it was necessary to play on. Colquhoun got a beautiful second to the green at the nineteenth, but again failed on the green, and the hole was halved. The next hole was halved in excellent fours, but Colquhoun won the hole and the match at the twenty-first, with an indifferent 5.

H. N. Giblin (A.) won the first five holes against H. M. Stephen, and though the latter made a gallant effort he could not recover lost ground, and the match went to Giblin by 3 and 1. E. T. Shores (R.S.), a New Zealander who has an easy style and drives a long ball, easily beat Gordon Craig, who was 4 down at the tenth. The latter was driving badly, and was beaten by 5 and 4. The last match between G. T. Balcombe (A.) and J. M. Arnott was well contested, the position being all square at the turn. Coming home Balcombe went ahead, and at the sixteenth was dormy 2. Arnott won the seventeenth in 4 to 5, and the last being divided in fives, Balcombe won by the odd hole, both players completing the round in 81. The match was a good though somewhat unexpected win for Kensington.

The Concord course was in excellent order, both greens and fairways, especially on the approaches, being very good. It is a pity the course is not better bunkered, as if this necessary work were done it would be a very fine one. At present there is no bunkering at all on more than half the holes, and but little at several others. The State amateur champion, W. C. Sturrock, led off for South against J. B. Ferrier, of Manly, and to the turn played steadily, his figures (41) being equal to bogey. Ferrier, who lost a lot of strokes on the greens, was at this stage 2 down. Coming home Sturrock played brilliantly, and did not make the semblance of a mistake. At the tenth (390 yards) two superb shots reached the green, the ball nearly finding the hole, but tricked past, and a 3 was recorded. A 4 at the eleventh was followed by a good 3 at the twelfth, and the next hole (397 yards) cost 4. The remaining holes were all secured in par figures, Sturrock's card home reading:—3, 4, 3, 4, 5, 3, 5, 3, 5—35. Ferrier, whose long game was good, did very well to be beaten by only 4 and 2.

T. E. Howard (S) and E. J. Springthorpe (N.) were the second pair, but the Killara man found the rough too often from the tees, and Howard making no mistakes in this respect was 2 up at the turn. Coming home, Springthorpe was not able to make any impression on his opponent, who won by 4 up and 2 to play. Howard was round in 80. R. B. Godbolt (S.) proved too strong on the day for W. P. C. Andrew (N.), and, after being 6 up at the turn, won by 7 and 6. Andrew was not playing at all well, but Godbolt was very steady, and was not over bogey after the third hole. He was round in 79. L. R. Oswald Sealy (N.) was a bit unlucky at the second hole, as he broke his cleek, and Harrison soon established a good lead. At the eighth hole Harrison accidentally trod on his ball and lost a stroke, but still won the hole. Harrison was dormy 6, and won the match, 6 and 5, by halving the next hole. Sealy made his run too late, as he won the next 5 holes. Harrison played very well, but Sealy did not display his old-time form.

O. H. Wines (N.) proved a little too strong for G. B. Thomas, and won, after an interesting contest, by 4 up and 2. Thomas was weak on the greens. H. G. V. Adler (N.) won a good match against W. B. Fairfax, who, being on his own course, was expected to win. Adler had a bit the better of the luck, as he won the 6th after stymying his opponent, and, after turning 2 up, had his ball hit into the hole at the tenth by Fairfax's putt. Adler, who was round in 80, finally won by 4 and 2. H. O. Clissold (N.) against F. D. Layton won the first hole with a good 4, but the position was all square at the twelfth. Coming home, Clissold, playing steadily, assumed the lead, and won by 2 and 1. During the round no fewer than 12 holes were halved, and Clissold, with the exception of the sixth, where he took 6, had every hole in bogey figures.

J. Kell, the captain of the northern side, had a good match with C. M. Garrard. Kell started well, and at the seventh was 2 up on Garrard, but the latter won a hole, and turned only 1 down, and following on, won the next three holes, standing 2 up at the twelfth. Garrard, however, went to pieces after that, and lost the last 5 holes, Kell scoring a good win by 3 and 1. F. S. Shenstone (S.) had a close contest with L. A. Dimant, though the golf on either side was not brilliant. The former was 1 up at the turn, and 2 up at the tenth, but Dimant made the match square at the twelfth, and went ahead by winning the fourteenth in 5 to 6, but lost the next two holes. The match was all square at the seventeenth, and Shenstone won the match on the last green, thus securing a victory for the South by 5 matches to 4.

The British amateur championship must have furnished a huge surprise to the home critics. J. L. C. Jenkins, the winner, though he has represented Scotland against England a couple of times, and has on previous occasions reached the fifth and sixth round of the amateur championship, could not have been given more than an outside chance of winning against such players as H. H. Hilton, John Ball, C. C. Aylmer, Lord Charles Hope, Hon. M. Scott, Captain Hutchinson, Robert Harris, E. Blackwell, H. D. Gillies, E. A. Blackwell, and others, not to mention the Americans Ouimet, Travers, Evans, and Herreshoff. It was an event of surprises, most of the leading players being eliminated in the early rounds. Australian players showed as well as could be expected, in view of the different conditions obtaining on the home land course at Sandwich. Ivo Whitton, the Australian open champion, survived two rounds, beating Stewart easily in the first, and Hale (America) comfortably in the second, but he fell, at the twentieth hole in the third round to Gordon Lockhart, a well-known English player. E. L. Apperly was rather easily served by the draw, and accounted for S. W. H. Weaver by 3 and 2, L. Balfour Melville by 4 and 3, and S. Muir Ferguson by a similar margin, but was defeated in the fourth round by G. O. Hezlet, (who subsequently contested the final) by 6 and 5.

The winner of the event, J. L. C. Jenkins, also had an ex-Australian scalp at his belt, for in the fifth round he defeated Hon. Michael Scott, several times open and amateur champion of Australia. H. D. Gillies of New Zealand, was going well until defeated by J. Graham in the fourth round. The Americans must have disappointed their supporters. F. Ouimet, who won the American open championship last year from Varden and Ray, was beaten in the second round by S. Stubbs, a practically unknown man. Hereshoff was out in the third round to Hon. Michael Scott, Travers was defeated early, and "Chick" Evans was beaten in the fourth round. They may, however, do better in the open, with more practice.

The first round of the C grade competition was completed on Saturday, Manly easily defeating Concord, and Cammeray winning against Drummoyne. On the day Drummoyne won 5 matches to 4, but this was not sufficient to wipe out Cammeray's lead on the previous Saturday. The Waratah Club journeyed to Parramatta, and spent a pleasant day, but suffered defeat by 8 matches to 1. Among the best results in club competition was a round of 4 up by H. J. Jones (11), at Dobroyde. He drove remarkably well throughout, and was 2 up on each half of the round, the only holes lost being the second, fifth, and 17th, at which last he was unfortunate in striking the wire guarding the green with his approach.

FIXTURES.

SATURDAY, MAY 30.

Parramatta Club: Continuous bogey, second round.

POLO.

COUNTRY CARNIVALS.

The final games in the two important carnivals which were held last week at Muswellbrook and Narrandera, when cups presented by Lady Denman and Mr. John Austin, respectively, were competed for, left the trophies in the keeping of the local clubs.

LADY DENMAN CUP.

Rain again interfered with the Muswellbrook function, but not to such an extent as last year, when the cup games were postponed for several weeks. The programme last week was carried through, but on the second and third days the ground was against good polo, and the showers also rendered outdoor sport uncomfortable for the spectators.

Scone and Muswellbrook B opened proceedings, and after a very fast and even game, the former won by 6 goals to 5. Mr. Arthur Davies played splendidly for the winning team, and the brothers White were always prominent for the junior side. On the second day the young Tamarang players were drawn against Glen Innes. The latter team, of course, were expected to win owing to their greater experience. But the sons produced some of the skill and much of the determination of their fathers, and won the game handsomely by 10 goals to 7. It will be interesting to watch the Tamarang's career during the remainder of the season.

The Mindaribba team (Maitland) made their first appearance in public, and met Tamarang on the third day, but they had no chance whatever; and when the final bell rang the score was 16 goals to 1 against them. The new team hit well, but they have not yet grasped the science of the game.

The Scone men were overwhelmed by Muswellbrook A to the extent of 9 goals 14 behinds to 2 behinds. There was no scoring in the first period, but from that time the local side went ahead, and the play is reflected by the following figures:—Second period: Muswellbrook 1—3, Scone 0—2; third, 2—6, 0—3; fourth, 3—9, 0—3; fifth, 5—11, 0—3; sixth, 8—12, 0—3; seventh, 9—14, 0—3. Even allowing for the luck in the game and the small happenings that sometimes mean so much at the end, it would seem that the Muswellbrook men were far superior on the day, and that they are not far below their best form.

Glen Innes were beaten by the local B team, but the far northern combination is not the same as that which took the field last year, and which at times played some very dashing polo.

NARRANDERA CHALLENGE CUP.

The Narrandera carnival opened in fine but dull weather last Wednesday morning. Five visiting teams competed, and the local club put three teams in the field. The ground was in thorough order as a result of recent rains, the fresh appearance of the surrounding country adding much to the pleasure of the visitors, who were numerous, and representative of practically the whole of the Riverina.

The officials were:—President, Mr. H. L. Culley; vice-president, Mr. Hugh Andrew; captain, Mr. A. W. Austin; vice-captain, Mr. H. E. Bullivant; time-keepers and scorers, Messrs. D. G. and W. O. Robertson; treasurer, Dr. K. St. V. Welsh; and hon. secretary, Mr. Y. G. Lindeman.

Prominent among the visitors were:—Mr. and Mrs. C. Fraser (Gundagai), Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Consett Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Bowman (Tallangatta), Miss Macdonald (Tallangatta), Mrs. H. C. Robertson (Tallangatta), Mrs. Patterson (Tallangatta), Miss Whitehead (Berry Jerry), Mr. and Mrs. A. S. O'Keefe (Yamma), Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Robertson (Toganmain), Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Clapperton (Brookong), Mr. and Mrs. Graham Waddell, Mr., Mrs., and Miss Sides, Mr. C. S. Wragge, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Macdonald, and Miss Brewer, Mr. J. McKinney (Kooba), Mesdames A. W. Austin, H. L. Culley, H. E. Bullivant, Hugh Andrew, S. S. Robertson, N. Falkiner, H. O. Lethbridge, Y. G. Lindeman, G. V. Oldham, H. B. Rowlands, M. Garrett, Rev. and Mrs. Rawling, H. L. Tepper, M. R. McCracken, and M. S. D. Murray (Grenfell).

In the first round of the Challenge Cup competition Tallangatta (Vic.) beat Cooma, 10—17 to 2—4. The Victorian players were very fast, Mr. Clive Robertson making some brilliant runs and hitting well. Narrandera B beat Grenfell, 16—13 to 1—2. The local team rode and hit hard. The Sydney team had a fast and exciting game against Narrandera A; in the latter part especially play was very even. In the sixth period the Sydney men were leading, with the scores—Sydney 2—5, Narrandera 1—6. In the last, however, the local side prevailed, but it looked as though the game would have to be extended. However, the winning goal was hit just as the bell rang.

In the second round Tallangatta beat Narrandera B by 7—14 to 1—12. Mr. Robertson again played very cleverly. Narrandera A, 9 goals, beat Wagga, 2 goals. The final between Tallangatta and the Narrandera A team was played on Friday morning, the final scores being—Narrandera, 7 goals 6 behinds; Tallangatta, 6 goals 6 behinds. This was another very even and exciting match, and the last period will long be remembered. The scores were 6 all. Then Narrandera got an opening, and after galloping over two-thirds of the ground Mr. S. S. Robertson hit the winning goal.

Cooma won the final of the handicap competition. Handicapped at 6 goals, the Monaro team beat Sydney (scratch) by 13—7 to 5—1. The gymkhana was then entered upon, the results of which have been published.

The Sydney clubmen speak very enthusiastically of the splendid hospitality shown them by the Narrandera Club, and, although beaten in their games, they thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

FUTURE EVENTS.

The next country club carnival will take place at Glen Innes on June 2, 3, and 4; and on June 6 the annual match between the Cooma and Bombala Clubs will be played at Maffra Station, which is the property of Mr. J. C. Ryrie, president of the Cooma Polo Club. Maffra is 24 miles from Cooma, and in addition to the clubmen, a large number of guests are entertained by Mr. Ryrie.

BIG CRICKET.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN TOUR.

AUSTRALIA'S TEAM.

EARLY SELECTION SUGGESTED.

The South African Cricket Association, in accepting the Board of Control's terms for the forthcoming tour of South Africa, made the stipulation that the team must be a good one. That, of course, seems the natural sequel to the giving of a guarantee. It is just a matter of business for the country giving a big guarantee to require some protection in respect of the strength or "drawing" capacity of the guaranteed combination. By "a good team" we take it to be meant, however, merely one as thoroughly representative of the strength of the Commonwealth as we can reasonably make it. We as a nation, accepting the guarantee, are therefore under a direct obligation to the South African Cricket Association to use our best endeavours to send our strongest team. There are other reasons, of course, why we should leave no stone unturned to be thoroughly represented on the fields of South Africa—such as, for example, the maintenance, or shall we write, the restoration, of Australian cricket prestige.

COGENT REASONS.

It is chiefly on account of these two cogent reasons—i.e., to keep financial faith with South Africa and to maintain cricket prestige—that these comments are submitted, because we cannot avoid the impression that a dangerous air of apathy surrounds the whole matter as far as we are concerned. Rumours have recently been in circulation concerning the likelihood or otherwise of some of our prominent players being available for the tour, and the rumours rather tend to confirm the above impression, as far as the players themselves are concerned. There would appear to be a fairly general attitude of indecision amongst the latter, which seems to us only natural. Until selected, players do not like to express themselves too definitely on the matter; besides, the nature of the occupation of many candidates from the cricket point of view makes it necessary for them to await selection before they themselves can find out whether or not they are actually available. This is one reason why we would urge an early selection of the team. Another reason is that some "probables" require considerable time to properly adjust their business arrangements to permit of their being away for four or five months during the summer, and it would be a pity that anyone otherwise available should be left behind because of too short notice.

AN EARLY SELECTION ADVISABLE.

An early selection of the team would give ample time for the fair adjustment of business arrangements. Again, the time of the year at which the team will go away will probably prevent University "eligibles" making the tour unless some special arrangements can be made in regard to their studies and examinations. The earlier the selection is made the better chance will there be of such arrangements being completed if necessary. The question of an early selection is specially urged because it is understood the present intention is to select the team in August. In any case, it will necessarily be chosen on last season's form, and there seems, therefore, no reason why the selectors—Messrs. C. Hill, E. E. Bean, and Dr. L. O. S. Poidevin—should not decide upon the team at a much earlier date, so that none can have the excuse of too short notice. Besides, in the event of any of the "top-notchers" being unavailable, it would not come as a surprise packet to the authorities here or to the South African Association. The terms of the tour are definitely known, "all expenses and £200 per man," so that there is nothing in the way of players making up their minds on that score when selected. To us these terms appear eminently satisfactory, although it has been rumoured that a prominent player in the south does not consider them so. However, they mean approximately £8 per week per man, in addition to all expenses.

"AVAILABLES."

As regards actual availability, there is very little to go on at present, and for various reasons the inquirer has been met with a "too early yet to say anything" reply; in other cases the reply has been definite and unequivocal. At present it does not appear likely that Clem Hill will be able to absent himself from his duties as stipendiary steward in South Australia, though, of course, it is only a matter of his being available to be included in the party. During the short visit the 1902 Australian team paid South Africa, the great left-hander showed his characteristic aptitude for adapting himself to African wickets by scoring 66 and 142 in the very first match, following up with 6, 12, and 91 not out in the two remaining tests, whilst his fine play, including two centuries, 191 and 100, in the First and Fourth Tests respectively against South African bowling in Australia in 1910-11 is quite a recent memory. If Clem. Hill goes, he will, no doubt, captain the side. If he does not, then the captaincy would in all probability fall to Victor Trumper, who also includes numerous triumphs against South African bowling in his long list of remarkable achievements. In 1902 Trumper scored 63 and 37, 18 and 13, 70 and 38 not out in the Tests in Africa, whilst against the Transvaal XI. he played a magnificent innings of 218 not out, out in a total of 392. During the comparatively recent South African tour he played a masterly 214 not out in the Third Test at Adelaide. Previous to this innings his scores in succession were 70, 78, 27, 34, and 159, whilst his subsequent efforts realised 28, 7, 87, 5, 15, 31, and 74 not out. The South Africans naturally have the very highest opinion of Victor Trumper, and his form would be a great attraction, but then it is not certain, on present indications, that he will be able to go this time.

SCORING EXTRAORDINARY.

Warren Bardsley, we understand, is a certainty. He has a remarkable run of successes against South African bowling in Test cricket, having made more runs in the Australia v South Africa series than any other batsman. He has scored in succession 132, 85, 14, 54, 58, 82, 15, 94, 39 in Australia, and 121, 164, and 56 in England—an aggregate of 914 runs in 11 innings without a not out at an average therefore of 83.09 runs per innings. Trumper has scored 901 runs in 15 innings, three times not out, average 75.08 runs per innings; whilst Faulkner, who comes next, has an aggregate of 880 runs, average 62.85 runs per innings. C. G. Macartney is, of course, an indispensable in an Australian side at present, and although the great little batsman thinks it rather early to say anything at present, everyone confidently expects to see him in the team. And the same remark applies to Charles Kelleway. As regards Dr. H. V. Hordern and R. J. A. Massie, it would appear that they are not likely to be available. There is a fair probability of H. Carter being able to go if the selection be made in good time, a remark which applies to several other New South Welshmen.

Amongst Victorians, those certain to go if selected include J. T. Matthews, W. Carkeek, R. V. Ryder, and F. Baring. There seems every likelihood also of Warwick Armstrong being available, but both Vernon Ransford (for business reasons), and R. L. Park (University considerations) are extremely unlikely.

From South Australia we understand the players likely to be available for the tour are E. R. Mayne, D. M. Steele, A. G. Moyes, W. J. Whitty, L. Winser, and C. G. Campbell.

"GET BUSY!"

There would thus appear to be some possible competition for the position of wicket-keeper, though if Carter be available, no doubt he will be given the first choice. Unless there are some unexpected defections, the batting of the team should be quite satisfactory, but the available bowling strength may well cause some anxiety. South African wickets do not suit every type of bowling, and with the present dearth of high-class bowling, the selectors may find it a difficult task to thoroughly equip the team in this respect. The great point is that the sooner the availability or otherwise of the "certainties" is tested by selection, the more time and opportunity will the selectors have to look around for suitable substitutes if necessary. The American motto "get busy" seems eminently applicable in this case.

BOWLING.

THE NEXT CARNIVAL

EARLY PREPARATIONS.

Although the Brisbane carnival is still fresh in the memory of bowlers, the New South Wales Association will, on Thursday night, take the first steps towards paving the way for the next annual tourney of Australian championships, to be held in Sydney in Easter, 1915. It must be confessed that it is a little difficult to persuade bowlers that there is need of energy so far ahead of the event, but the executive is showing wisdom in bending shoulders to the work at once. There will be a vast amount of secretarial work. It is no light campaign to distribute notices, invitations, and entry forms to bowling clubs all over a continent. The task is made lighter by the co-operation of other State associations, but, whatever may take place, the responsibility rests upon the local association. Moreover, Mr. John Spence, the president, is sure to feel that upon him is a personal responsibility, and, while this gives a strong belief that the machinery of management will work smoothly, too much must not be left to him. Further, whatever burden is placed upon the honorary secretary, Mr. T. W. Shadforth, in the preliminary arrangements, it is necessary that he should not be overloaded with duties and special responsibilities when the full pressure of the carnival is taking all his powers. The work will have to be evenly distributed, and allotted with a particularity that will leave no one wondering what his duties are, and no visitor in doubt as to whom he should apply in order to settle whatever doubt may have arisen in his mind. In other words, a number of men who have been honoured with a seat on the association will have to yield practical evidence of their loyalty and ability by giving to the carnival a full measure of industry without thought of self. During the playing period the carnival will have to be managed with the same application that a man gives his office business if there are to be no delays, no postponements, and no finishing of championship events in the dark. Advantage should be taken of the opportunity to publish a booklet souvenir. Indeed, there is no doubt that such will be done as a matter of course, but although there is no originality in the idea, the work may be done well or crudely, according to the taste of those entrusted with it. It should not be merely a cold official record, but a bright and attractive production of historical interest to Australian bowlers.

The Australian Bowling Council has received strong support since its establishment, but there is one reform that would be welcomed by bowlers who take an interest in its work. The proposal has reference to the presidency of the council, and may be discussed quite apart from the qualifications of the present occupant, because everyone admits that he graces the position. An effort some time ago to put the presidency on a new footing was a failure, and no wonder! It was argued that when an Australian carnival was held—for instance in Sydney—the local president would be placed in an anomalous position by reason of the fact that on the arrival of the president of the larger body—the council—the State (or local) president would, so to speak, play second official fiddle, although he was the host of the visitors. Upon him and his association would be all the work of preparation, all the worry, all the expense, and behold! no sooner was carnival in the air, flags fluttering, bands playing, everyone exhilarated, and hosts and guests pledging friendships, than into this scene of fraternal concord would step another and a greater president, none other than the president of the Australian Bowling Council. One would almost imagine that the flags at once began to droop and the sunshine disappeared. In other words, the argument was that it was intolerable that a State president who for months had been working and worrying to give his guests a happy time, should in Easter week have to give way—officially—to the federal president; that he would have to take second place under his own bunting, and a vice-chairman's place at his own banquet table. Nor can it be denied that in essence the complaint and protest were justified. But what was to be the solution? Some of the usually most sapient minds in the bowling world proposed that during the period of carnival the local president, in whatever State, should rank for the time being as president of the Australian Bowling Council. What comic opera! It meant when a man was elected president of the federal body the appointment, if the simple truth were spoken, would be conveyed to him in the following words:—"Sir,—We have pleasure in telling you that you have been elected president of the A.B.C., but when the biggest event of the year takes place, namely the annual carnival to decide the Australian championships, you will automatically cease to be president until the carnival is over. It is true that your presidency will thus be shorn of one of its principal distinctions, but lest you should think of declining the position, may we remind you of an old proverb which says 'Better half an egg than empty shells.'"

What man of dignity would accept the presidency of the Australian Council under such conditions? The proposal was defeated, so no more need be said of it. But the substantial grievance remains, unless the constitution is altered. The only way for a State president to become president of the A.B.C. is to first elect him a delegate to the council, this being a necessary qualification for the higher position. The better course would be to alter the constitution. It will be admitted that the idea of investing the local president, who is controlling the carnival with complete honour and distinction, is right and proper. Secondly, it will be conceded that so far as integrity, charm, influence, and all the qualities that lead to a man being elected president of the council are concerned, they differ in no way from the personal qualities that give a man the presidency of a State association. The way at once is clear. Instead of the Federal presidency being allowed to become a personal possession, it should, as a matter of automatic working, be a distinction for the State president whose association will manage the next ensuing carnival. Under these rules, when the Brisbane carnival ended, Mr. Spence would immediately have become Federal president, thus holding the largest possible powers while he was preparing for the next carnival, which will be held in Sydney in Easter, 1915. The man who works is entitled to honours, and official distinction is the only reward that bowlers can accord those who do the work of the associations. That the presidency should, like the carnivals, go from State to State is strictly in accord with the democratic spirit of the age and of the sport, and the principle at stake is not affected by the fact that at the Brisbane carnival the Bowling Council president very generously allowed no questions of precedence to arise.

At its meeting to-morrow the association will fix a date for the presentation of the trophies won at the recent State carnival, and doubtless a smoke concert will be decided upon. A report will be presented by the manager of the team that went to Brisbane at Easter. These matters are of the past, and the future is more important. For instance, bowlers are asking what rules are to govern the next pennant series. A number of players are dissatisfied with the neutral greens district system. They are tired of perambulating the one district, and of being debarred from a pennant game on their own greens. The existing rule, it is said, takes away some of the incentive to make a green perfect, and although there probably has not been any intentional slackness, the green-keepers may unconsciously be less anxious when the fate of their own club is not concerned. That, however, is not the urgent cause of complaint. Seven-tenths of the players start out at 1 o'clock on Saturday from a common centre, and the opinion seems to be growing that it is better to have a little extra travelling than to be tied down to "the same old round," and be prevented meeting the players of other districts. It was very hard last season upon bowlers with good home greens to be deprived of the pleasure of playing on them, even for one match. They, at all events, felt the rules irksome, but it was hardly a normal year, the long dry spell resulting in poor greens being in the majority. It may be proposed that each club in a district shall play each other club in that district, but that the idea of having all matches played on neutral greens be dropped; secondly, an effort may be made to abolish the districts for the purposes of the pennant. "Sudden death" (one defeat, out), may also be proposed, but that it will be adopted is unlikely.

Mr. John Spence is an ideal president, and a good bowler. It would not be a surprise if he were elected a pennant skip for Ashfield next pennant season. This is not a prophecy, but the fact that he has to be seriously considered is an indication of the high quality of his play. Among his qualifications as a president are his gifts as a public speaker. At Chatswood green on Saturday last, when the champion flag won by that club was unfurled, he made a speech that showed he is one of those fortunate men to whom has been revealed the soul of sport. To him bowls is more than an athletic competition. He loves the game, but he thinks less of it than of the men he meets when he plays it. He struck a fine note in the course of his congratulations to those fine players, Messrs. Pettigrew, W. H. Gartrell, and—to quote him—"dear little Donny." Mr. C. G. Wade, M.L.A., spoke well, and Mr. C. Lyons (President of Chatswood Club) made acknowledgment on behalf of the premiers. Mr. Spence's team of eight rinks managed to beat Chatswood by four points on a true but heavy green. Of the local players, the rinks of F. Gartrell and A. Chandler had good wins, five rinks were "down," and the two presidents, as was fitting, played a draw.

Mr. Louis Waxman, champion single-handed bowler of Australia and skip of the champion rink, has contributed an article to the "Review of Reviews." He is as graceful with the pen as with his bowls, and has been a frequent contributor to the Melbourne press. He gives his account of the much discussed Leitch-Colquhoun episode, which cost New South Wales the rink championship of Australia in Brisbane. "When the last end opened Colquhoun was 18 to our 12. The jack was thrown 14ft from the ditch; my leader played both bowls 9ft through; my second did the same with his first and drew the shot with his second. My third played his first bowl through." The foregoing is summarised. We now quote verbatim: "Leitch, Colquhoun's third man, with one bowl to go, was then asked by his skipper: 'Give me a bowl amongst these,' our back bowls being indicated. Whether Leitch did or did not endeavour to carry out his captain's directions will provide the theme for a bowler's no confidence debate for many a long day. The facts that will survive are—(1) Leitch did not get his bowl anywhere near those of ours at the rear, and (2) he questioned his captain's call, and expressed the opinion that he could 'draw the shot,' our bowl scoring at the time. My third man, on Leitch's failure, greened a perfect bowl, and trailed the jack into the ditch. Hotchin's two bowls, Smith's two, and the first of Stewart's thereupon counting—five in all to us, with six wanted for a tie.

"Colquhoun's first beat Stewart's for 5th shot, and my first in turn getting just within Colquhoun's, we again lay 5. Leitch, then becoming anxious, indicated in unmistakable fashion to his captain (who was just about to play) that his first bowl was short, and that it was absolutely necessary he should be well up with his last. The result was that Colquhoun played over-strong. The dull thud of his bowl in the ditch, followed by my having the good fortune to draw a 6th shot, will probably be to Leitch as Banquo's Ghost to Macbeth or Calais to Queen Mary." This may be taken as the version from a trained legal and expert mind of the most discussed incident in the sport for many a day.

Points from Louis Waxman's article: (1) Third men should not question their captain's call, nor direct him unasked: (2) A crouching delivery gives no advantage; (3) In rink play timidity garners no grain; (4) Remember the back wood.

On Saturday last an Ashfield rink scored five in the last head, but the match was lost by one point. Had not one of the players impulsively seized his bowls and walked off with them, six would have been counted, and the match would have been saved.

BASEBALL.

END OF FOURTH ROUND.

The competitions were continued on Saturday, the games being played under the most enjoyable conditions. There was a large attendance at Petersham Park to witness the two matches, and the late game between Leichhardt and the local team kept the spectators thoroughly interested. Waverley Oval was also well patronised, the chief attraction being the match between Waverley and University. In the district division Leichhardt, Petersham, and Waverley have each won three games and lost one, and are therefore equal in percentage points on the competition table.

Leichhardt were again too strong for Petersham, who, on their home ground, failed in their infield work. V. Donowa, usually so safe, was the worst offender in the first innings, when Leichhardt tallied three runs. This score practically won the game for Leichhardt. As the result of field errors, the safe hits were five each, and the errors were, Petersham 10, Leichhardt 3. It is noticeable that the efforts of some of the Petersham batters are futile against a good pitcher. The base-running on Saturday was, with a few exceptions, not good. Opportunities of advancing were missed by Petersham runners on at least two occasions, when they preferred watching the palpably "safe hit" to making good the next base, and in one case probably the home plate. Moriarty pitched well for Petersham, but was not so well supported as in the three previous games. The club would be well advised to get another pitcher to assist him. Leichhardt put up another fine game; the battery was excellent, the infield work safe, and at times brilliant.

Lane Cove and Burwood played a tie at Chatswood. Lane Cove tried R. V. Tait in the pitcher's box, and the ex-Paddington player, E. Hall, as catcher. This constituted a new battery, and one likely to do good work if they are given a game or two to get into form. R. V. Tait, at one time an interstate representative, did practically no pitching during the last two seasons. The game was even as far as the scoring was concerned, all through, the total being 10 all at the end of the fifth innings, and remaining so until the end of the eight, when game was called. The combination of Lane Cove was an improvement on that shown in their previous games this season. It is contended that this game should be called a "draw" and not a "tie," vide Guide Rule 24, on account of game being called before nine innings had been completed. The above rule defines "drawn games," and reads:—"A drawn game shall be declared by the umpire if the score is equal on the last even innings played, when he terminates play, in accordance with rule 22, section 3, after five or more equal innings have been played by each team." Rule 22, section 3, reads:—"If the game be called by the umpire on account of darkness." This seems to cover the case completely, but it must be borne in mind that to class the game as "drawn" penalises these two teams in working out the percentage points. This does not seem logical, when, under rule 25, the umpire can call "in accordance with rule 22, section 3, at any time after five innings have been completed," and the side having scored the greater number of runs wins the game.

Waverley were superior to the University nine at Waverley Oval. The game was fairly even until the end of six equal innings, when the score was 4-2 in favour of the local side. This, however, was the final scoring effort of the students, and Waverley got a batting rally on in their seventh time at bat, and scored six runs. There was some good striking in this effort, but as usual, field errors were largely responsible for the result. A. D. Watson, who wore the mask, put up a fine first-base game against his old club. It will be a loss to the game generally if the Waverley selectors, through having a wealth of infield players at their command, find it expedient to keep this player in the outfield.

Last year's premiers experienced their fourth defeat on Saturday. Paddington, whose team is comprised entirely of imported players, has a fine outfit if handled properly; but these players must not make the mistake of breaking club and association rules. J. M. Machado, the pitcher, after having had his attention drawn to competition rule 12, again failed to wear the uniform of his club. He practically disobeyed a direction of the association, and is therefore liable to be dealt with under rule 59. Paddington had easily the better of the game, and the infield backed up the pitcher's good efforts. A feature of the game was the fine outfielding for the Mosman-North Sydney side.

AUSTRALIANS IN EUROPE.

BROOKES AT SURBITON.

To Norman Brookes of Australia has fallen the distinction of winning the first grass championship of the British season of 1914—that of Surrey, played at the Surbiton tournament. That the field was strong is clearly shown by the cabled reports, which mention the names of J. C. Parke, A. R. F. Kingscote, F. G. Lowe, and T. M. Mavrogordato. Dixon would almost certainly have been amongst the starters, for he usually plays at this tournament, and has won the championship two or three times. Brookes has therefore commenced well, though his victories over Mavrogordato in the semi-final and Lowe in the final were not so convincing as could have been hoped. He certainly had Mavrogordato well in hand in the third set, but ordinarily there would have been no third set. Then, again, it reads strangely that he should have lost the third and fourth sets to Lowe after winning the first and second each to one game. Perhaps the very ease with which he won those sets may have contributed to his defeat in the subsequent two. When apparently winning easily the tendency to slacken is almost irresistible, even when the danger is realised. At such times, if the opponent improves, shots and positions which were safe in the earlier stages are no longer so, and in an endeavour to add severity, errors are made. There is the possibility, too, that the rain, which made the court slippery, came on after the first two sets. That would affect the volleying Brookes more than Lowe, for a volleyer requires a firm foothold for his more sudden turns, and the heavy balls would not respond readily to the delicate wristwork of Brookes. While thus seeking for explanations of the failure of Brookes to win in straight sets, it must not be forgotten that Lowe had previously beaten Parke. That result came as a surprise to those who saw the two men in Australia, but Lowe seems much more formidable on English than on Australian courts. Moreover, when in New Zealand, Lowe was not far off defeating Parke in the Australasian championship. Still, Parke's defeat cannot but prove disquieting to supporters of British lawn tennis, than whom Australians have more reason for satisfaction with the results of the matches in the Surrey championship.

News by the mail gives details of the second Cannes (metropole) tournament, in which Brookes and Dunlop participated. Dunlop soon disappeared from the singles. He met Decugis in the first round, and beat him in the first set at 6-2, placing well and scoring outright with slow cross drives from the French player's service. His condition was, however, by no means good, and he was easily beaten in the next two sets. Brookes reached the final by defeating Boelling, Greig, Uhl, and Biddle in succession, without losing a set, in fact, Biddle alone succeeded in accumulating four games in any set. This left Brookes to meet Decugis in the final. The Frenchman won the first set by brilliant play, and captured Brookes' service in the opening game of the second. Brookes retaliated, and after making the score 2-1 in his favour, went right away from his opponent. As the "Field" says: "Decugis was severe for the next few games, but his accuracy was waning, and he soon began to accept his fate," which was, that Brookes should win 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

The same critic writes eulogistically of the display of Brookes in the doubles, though defeated. He was partnered by a French player of only moderate ability named Coson, and Decugis, with Dunlop, beat them 6-2, 4-6, 6-4. The "Field" says: "Brookes was almost superhuman in this tie, and won the second set with his own racket." Decugis and Dunlop won this event, though F. G. Lowe and Count Salm pressed them to a fifth set. It seems strange that Brookes and Dunlop should be in opposition. Everything points to the intention of Brookes to have Wilding for his doubles partner in the Davis Cup matches, but every contingency should be prepared for. Illness, accident, or other misfortune might prevent Wilding playing in the Davis competition. Brookes and Dunlop would probably then be our pair, so it would surely be advisable to have practice together rather than against one another when Wilding is not associated with Brookes.

In the mixed doubles Brookes gave another splendid exhibition with a weak partner against Decugis and Miss Ryan. Mrs. Cronfield, with whom Brookes was playing, made no fewer than 17 double faults in the match, yet Decugis and Miss Ryan, who had triumphed all through the Riviera season, only won 7-5, 3-6, 6-4. That was the only set lost by Decugis and Miss Ryan in the event. They beat Dunlop and Mlle. Lenglen, the youthful French girl, 7-5, 6-4, in the semi-final round.

Now that the days are drawing in, the effect of the shorter time available for play is shown by the number of unfinished sets in the interclub competitions, and as the shortest day is yet some time off this state of affairs must be expected. Even when a punctual start is made, with no time wasted during the afternoon, it has been found impossible to finish in some cases, while in others the matches have been completed in light quite too bad for serious play. It behoves players to make an even earlier beginning than the regulations prescribe, if this is practicable, and in many cases it would be found that two opposing pairs could do this. The playing of advantage sets in all grades this year increases the risk of unfinished sets or matches, and some favour a return to the system of short sets. That, however, would be a retrograde step, and the obvious remedy is to commence the competition earlier. Originally played in the winter months, so as not to interfere with men who also play cricket, the cricket season has already been encroached upon. The competitions could probably be improved by being played entirely in the summer months. By so doing, they could be completed before the interstate match and championship tournament by which they are interrupted. This year, owing to the postponements through rain and other causes, they will hardly be over before the team goes to Brisbane in August, which will necessitate further postponement, or a weakening of the teams whose members are included in it.

It is pleasing to find that the New South Wales Association expects to make a profit of approximately £50 over the interstate match with Victoria, and the New South Wales championship tournament, notwithstanding that the second Saturday, which is usually the most lucrative day of the meeting, was so wet that play was not possible. That a profit was made instead of a loss being incurred was due to the large increase of entries, from which about £140 were received, whereas usually only about half that amount is derived from entrance fees.

The proposal of the New South Wales Association to impose an annual capitation fee of a shilling on all members of affiliated clubs is one which will probably be received with favour. It is a practice which is adopted in several other branches of sport, and has been in force in Western Australia for some time. The tax would be a mere bagatelle to each player, but the aggregate sum which would come to the association would be considerable. Some arrangement would probably have to be made to meet the cases of such bodies as the University Sports Union, where various sports are allied, and some of the members are not lawn tennis players, but such an obstacle should not be difficult to obviate.

THE RUGBY UNION GAME.

THREE SURPRISES

The New South Wales representative team will leave Sydney this afternoon for Brisbane, where the first interstate fixture of the season will be played on Saturday. The next four Saturdays will be taken up with interstate games, as after two matches in Brisbane both sides will immediately visit Sydney for the annual matches in this State. On these contests a very good line will be obtained as to our chances against the New Zealanders, who will make their regular visit to Australia again this year. The preparation of the local team to meet such formidable opponents is always interesting, and in arranging that the annual games with Queensland be played prior to the first game of the "All Blacks" the head body has acted very wisely. The second match in Brisbane will be watched by S. A. Middleton, on behalf of the New South Wales selectors, and Queensland will send a representative to view the matches in Sydney. By these means a thoroughly Australian representative side should be chosen to meet New Zealand in the test games.

The three surprises registered in the Metropolitan competitions on Saturday give further evidence of the evenness of the teams. However, the scoring in all of the games but one was too high, which indicates that the defence was weak, a remark which does not apply to the Western Suburbs-South Sydney fixture. However, in the other games the lowest total was 31 points. Combined work in defence is just as essential as in securing tries, and the sooner our forwards realise that it is their duty to assist their backs, the better. On Saturday many of the forwards neglected to drop back after the ball had been kicked over their heads. The system of waiting until the ball comes back will never make for success. Players should remember that the selectors, who are good judges, pick out their weaknesses quicker than their strong points. With so many holes in our club football defence, it behoves the representative side in Brisbane on Saturday to show that the best of the men from each team can keep the scores down to something like Rugby levels.

It was a fine performance on the part of St. George to defeat Eastern Suburbs on Saturday, but the achievement is accentuated when it is recollected that a debit of 17 points faced the winners at half-time. The Eastern forwards and backs combined splendidly in the loose passing rushes, and completely nonplussed the visitors during the first spell. On reversing ends, however, St. George went determinedly after victory. For a time the premiers held the advantage; then St. George scored three tries, and Eastern Suburbs replied with one of their characteristic rushes. However, from this point to the finish St. George held the upper hand, and their confidence increased with each score. A field goal by Lane eventually completed Eastern Suburbs' discomfiture, and two tries then gave the Saints the lead which existed at the final whistle. The field goal represents the margin, as but for that the game would have been drawn. The backs of the winners played their best game, the Mullarkey brothers, Sadler, and Sargent showing very promising form. Freeman also played his best game, and the forwards were frequently led by Bellingham. The premiers failed in defence, but, except in the concluding stages, their forwards played finely. The defeat is only the second registered against Eastern Suburbs in two seasons, Glebe being the other conquerors.

Visitors to University Oval reckoned on a fairly easy win for South Sydney over Western Suburbs, but the former only made a drawn game of it late in the second half, and then only by the agency of a penalty goal, as Western Suburbs scored two tries to one. The suburban forwards were heavier and livelier than those of South Sydney in the line-outs and the loose, and held the advantage for quite two-thirds of the play. The smaller South Sydney pack were the better scrummagers, although they were frequently penalised for infringements in this department. Towards the finish South Sydney's terrier-like rushes swept all before them, and they had considerably the better of matters. With the advantage in the scrum they should have won, but the quick-breaking methods of Leddy, Arnold, and Bate nullified the efforts of Goddard at half-back.

The third surprise was administered by North Sydney to Newtown. Both back and forward the Shoremen proved too speedy for their opponents, who tried desperately to stem the tide. The game, however, suited the winners, loose chances being cleverly snapped up. At the interval Newtown were behind by 12 points to nil, and on resuming they tried hard to make up the leeway. Six points were added, but again North Sydney gained the control, and the pace was well sustained to the finish. Few chances were missed, and the scoring of six tries to one tells its own story.

Glebe continued their march towards the premiership by soundly defeating Manly at the village. After a fairly even first half, in which the winners seemed to be taking stock, they came out in the second spell and had easily the better of the game. One of the best features of the play was the improved work of the winners' forwards, who bunched well in attack and supported their backs in defence. The rearguard of Glebe maintained their usual high standard. Wogan's clever running, supported by Wood's excellent feeding, being the most prominent features of the match.

Randwick secured their second win of the year at the expense of Balmain. Lack of cohesion seemed to account for Balmain's want of success, while the backs of Randwick have worked up splendid combination. The forwards of the home team quite held their own with the visitors, while their backs were the superior lot.

THE RUGBY LEAGUE GAME.

SOUTH SYDNEY'S DEFEAT.

BALMAIN SURPRISE NEWTOWN.

The fourth round of competition matches was marked by the downfall of the two leading teams—Newtown and South Sydney. The position of honour on the competition table is now shared by no fewer than four clubs, Newtown, South Sydney, North Sydney, and Glebe. This levelling-up of the teams should have a beneficial influence on the game.

Although Eastern Suburbs were without their clever forward, O'Malley, they were equal to inflicting South Sydney's first defeat of the season. South Sydney's strength is considered to be in the backs, but on Saturday their halves and three-quarters were only ordinary. They received more than their share of the ball, but when they got close to the line they appeared to lose their heads, consequently many good chances were lost. Eastern Suburbs had to defend oftener than South Sydney, but they made the most of their opportunities, and thus won by 10 points to 4. However, there was not much to choose between the teams. Hallett and Challis, the respective full-backs, were both sound and resourceful. Hallett is a genius, but Challis is also a wonderful player. There were two features of the play which provided food for reflection. The South Sydney forwards obtained possession of the ball almost at will, yet their backs could not penetrate the defence. This was the result of ill-judged play by several of the southern backs, notably Cann, who let down his side on more than one occasion. He played away from the pack, and his inability to harmonise with his colleagues repeatedly jolted the attack.

The Eastern Suburbs pack played splendidly in the loose. They dribbled, followed up, and tackled excellently. Green, who played as substitute for O'Malley, received a nasty knock on the head during the closing stages of the game, but he was always prominent, as also were Watkins, Lees, and White. Playing behind men who were beaten in the scrum, Halloway and Cubitt had to do more than their share of defending, but they rose ably to the occasion, as Norman can testify. Of the three-quarters W. Messenger covered himself with glory by scoring all his side's 10 points. He showed a fine turn of speed, and his coolness got him out of many tight corners.

The victory for Balmain over the previously unbeaten Newtown team by 23 points to 8 was the biggest surprise in Saturday's games. Balmain displayed all their usual determination and enthusiasm. Their combination was not of a high-class, though at times it was very good, nothing was being given away. And had they been a little more patient when the chances were coming their way, another brace of tries would probably have been gained. Wall played well at full-back. His intelligent anticipation, correct fielding, and plucky tackling deserve commendation. The three-quarters were all energetic and enterprising, Fraser and Kelley being the star performers in attack. Johnson worked the scrummages well. Strong, daring rushes, desperate tackles, and a clear understanding of each other's methods, were the most noticeable features of Balmain's forward play. Newtown proved poor tacticians, and did not face their task in a spirit conducive to success. In the first half they treated Balmain with exaggerated respect, the tackling being very feeble at times. Of the "threes" Collins and Bain gave occasional glimpses of their real form. Of a beaten pack of forwards, perhaps P. A. McCue and Murray were the best.

The meeting of North Sydney and Western Suburbs was well worth watching, for the westerners made a game struggle against the highly-finished methods of their opponents. Their forwards played well, but in the second half made the mistake of kicking into their opponents' hands too often, thus giving them possession. It was something of a shock to North Sydney to find themselves four points behind before the game had been in progress more than 20 minutes. However, just before the interval the northerners gained the lead. In the second spell North Sydney gave a most exhilarating display of passing. It would be difficult to signal out any one player as displaying superiority over his comrades, as each man from the base of the scrummage to the full-back, did his work as part of a well-nigh perfect attacking machine. Some of the passing rushes were delightful to watch. Western Suburbs defended well, the backs particularly so.

Annandale are still unfortunate, as in their match against Glebe team they lost the services of Burdett, their consistently good forward. However, Burdett's loss did not influence the result of the game, as Glebe outplayed them. Their forwards were too strong, too fleet of foot, and too resourceful in the loose. Added to these advantages, Glebe were pronouncedly superior in the backs. Therefore, a Glebe triumph was not to be wondered at. The game, however, was always interesting, as Annandale kept well into the fray, and occasional bursts of individualism placed them within striking distance of their opponents' line. But on these occasions lack of combination nullified any chances they had of forcing home their advantage.

N.S.W. V ENGLAND.

SELECTION POSSIBILITIES.

Some idea can now be gained of the men most likely to engage the attention of the New South Wales Rugby League selectors, Messrs. H. Flegg, D. Lutge, and E. Mead, when they meet to choose the New South Wales teams to play against the English Northern Union representatives at the Sydney Cricket Ground on June 6 and the following dates. The selectors' task is a formidable one, as the number of players eligible is much larger than in previous years. In 1910, when the last English team was here, the "stars" were fewer in number than they are to-day.

Going on the form of the men in club and country games so far decided, the position of full-back would seem at the disposal of Howard Hallett (South Sydney). The selectors may possibly select him as a centre three-quarter, but Hallett does not like forsaking his old position.

DEARTH OF CENTRE THREE-QUARTERS.

The selectors will be confronted with a difficulty in selecting the centre three-quarters, as our football is rather bare of the all-round centre three-quarter who lends himself to a thoroughly well-balanced third line. We possess no H. H. Messenger, no Gilbert, and no Farnsworth. On his most recent form, S. Deane should be selected. C. Fraser (Balmain), who this season has taken up the role of centre, is playing really well, but he is not as good as several others. G. Bain's (Newtown) defence is quite sound, but his attacking ability is not relatively so high. Hack Thompson, though playing centre for South Sydney, is better suited on the wing. W. Kelly (Balmain) is the man who would make a fine partner for Sid Deane. His club form this season has been good; he possesses rare initiative, and is fast, but at times he becomes over anxious, which causes him to handle rather faultily. Hickey's form this season has been good, and at his best, is a very clever player.

The selection of the wing three-quarters will depend upon circumstances. If D. Frawley's shoulder is thoroughly well he should be selected, but there is a feeling that the selectors will not run any risk with the Eastern Suburbs' player until he is quite himself again. Frawley's form during the last few Saturdays has been poor. Assuming that Frawley will be dropped for a while, then Walter Messenger, who has been playing well for Eastern Suburbs, might take the right wing position. This player's kicking ability must also have weight with the selectors. Harold Horder, the speedy South Sydney three-quarter, is another who possesses strong claims for selection, though neither he nor the younger Messenger can claim superiority over Albert Broomham (North Sydney), whose chances of inclusion are of the brightest. He played grandly on Saturday, and demonstrated that he is still a very hard man to stop. There are a few other good wingers playing, particularly Algie (Glebe), O. Deane (North Sydney), Russell (Newtown), Naylor (Western Suburbs), and Collins (Newtown), but all cannot be selected.

THE HALF-BACKS.

The selectors will also experience difficulty in selecting the halves, as among the notable players are Halloway (Eastern Suburbs), McKivat (Glebe), McFarlane (North Sydney), Butler (South Sydney), and Coyne (Orange). It has been difficult to obtain a line on Halloway's true form in attack this season, as he has invariably played behind a pack unable to obtain possession of the ball. However, as we know him, his methods of attack are too orthodox. He lacks the initiative of McKivat, and at times is rather slow. Should Cubitt earn his place as the stand-off half, and he possesses excellent chances in this direction, it would be a pity to split up the Halloway-Cubitt combination. The Sydney public has not seen Coyne (Orange) in action this season, but reports say that he is playing well. Remembering the countryman's good form in New Zealand last season, it would be unwise to overlook his claims for consideration. The stand-off halves who are to be reckoned with outside of Cubitt, are Ray Norman (South Sydney) and C. Sherritt (North Sydney).

THE SCRUMMAGE.

W. A. Cann (South Sydney), Sullivan (North Sydney), and Frank Burge (Glebe) appear to be certainties. The two first mentioned play so well in big engagements that they must be considered. Haddock (Newtown) appears to have very strong claims on the position of "hooker." Pearce (Eastern Suburbs) may dispute his right for the distinction, but if the selectors be guided by this season's form the big Easterner will have to be passed. Courtney (Western Suburbs) is a front row forward who does well in "class" football, and his form just now is very good. O'Malley (Eastern Suburbs) has been on the injured list for the last two Saturdays. Fit and well his prospects of selection would be particularly good. P. A. M'Cue (Newtown) is a second row forward who would physically fit in with F. Burge, and his club form so far has been consistently good. Curran, the big country forward, is another who has strong claims. He played with marked distinction for the State team in New Zealand last season. Easterbrook (Western Suburbs) is another who must soon catch the selectors' eyes. His work against North Sydney on Saturday was full of merit. Other forwards with strong claims are J. Watkins (Eastern Suburbs), J. Davis (South Sydney), R. R. Craig (Balmain), J. Murray (Newtown), B. Grey (Glebe), and P. H. Burge (Glebe). The Northern Districts (Newcastle and Maitland) also possess several forwards who are possibilities, and, no doubt, their claims will be considered.

Summing up the capabilities of the players mentioned, the following thirteen appear to be about the best selection on present form:—Full-back, Howard Hallett (South Sydney); three-quarters, A. Broomham (North Sydney), Sid. Deane (North Sydney), W. Kelly (Balmain) or H. Horder (South Sydney), Walter Messenger (Eastern Suburbs); half-backs, L. Cubitt (Eastern Suburbs), A. Halloway (Eastern Suburbs); forwards, front row, E. Courtney (Western Suburbs), W. Haddock (Newtown), hooker, F. Burge (Glebe); second row, P. A. M'Cue (Newtown), C. Sullivan (North Sydney); and back row, W. A. Cann (South Sydney).

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

IMPROVED STANDARD.

Saturday's League premiership games produced some stirring contests. The leaders in the competition—South Sydney—were fully extended by Central Western, Mayne, their crack goal sneak, being the chief factor in saving them in the final quarter. A feature of the game was the excellent marksmanship at goal shown by both sides, 19 goals being scored out of 28 attempts. Up to three-quarter time, when Central Western led with 43 points to 42, there was nothing to choose between the sides. However, the younger team fell away in the final term, and the Southerners added 6 goals and 1 behind to their single point. It was an interesting and stirring game, brilliant individualism alternating with systematic and sustained attack. Without detracting from the merit of the Southerners' victory, it may be stated that the better-conditioned side, rather than the more skilful, won. It was a great performance on the part of Central Western to thus extend the redoubtable Southerners, who have so far answered every call made upon them, being the only unbeaten team in the competition.

At Erskineville Oval, Paddington and Newtown fought out a most determined game, and though Paddington won by 16 points, the issue was in doubt up to within five minutes of final bell. The 19 points advantage gained by Paddington in the opening quarter was, in a great measure, due to the faulty play of Newtown's back line, who were weakened by the absence of Ellis and Le Blanc. Play was fast and even during the second and third quarters, with Newtown the nippier side, but Paddington's high marking turned attack into defence on several occasions. During the second and third quarters Paddington scored 2 goals 7 behinds, and Newtown 2 goals 6 behinds. Taking less heed of the physical opposition, Newtown attacked vigorously in the final quarter, and within a brief space had reduced Paddington's lead by six points. From the bounce which followed there came a sustained and brilliant series of attacks and counter-attacks which only culminated with the final bell clang. Although Newtown gained the honours of the quarter by scoring 4—4 to Paddington's 4—0, they could not make up the deficit of the first quarter's play. The rousing situations of play created enthusiasm among the spectators.

The great improvement shown by East Sydney in their play might have brought them victory had they been opposed to any of the lesser lights of the League clubs, but against Sydney it availed them nothing more than the satisfaction of knowing, at the call of time, that they had caused the game to be interesting, from a spectator's view point, and that Sydney were not without their moments of anxiety throughout the progress of the game.

A B grade competition in connection with the Catholic primary schools was launched successfully on Tuesday of last week. The entries comprised nine school teams, and the initial set of games were won by St. Vincent's (Redfern), St. Thomas's (Lewisham), St. Francis's (Paddington), and St. Charles's (Waverley); Burwood Christian Brothers' School having the bye. Since then, St. Peter's (Surry Hills) have also formed B grade teams for practice purposes, and may yet enter the competition. Should they do so, it will do away with the bye.

The South Adelaide Club, who will visit Brisbane during the early part of August for the purpose of playing exhibition games in that city, have received permission from the South Australian League to play a match against Newtown on their return journey, via Sydney, where they will holiday for a period of eight days. The match will be played at either Parramatta, Newcastle, or Manly, immediately following the termination of the carnival games.

The second-grade competition has been productive of some fine play. North Sydney gave a skilful exhibition in their draw with Central Western on Saturday. Though easily the lightest team in the competition, they demonstrated that skill and science are factors to be reckoned with. In view of the fact that the annual fixture with South Australia is fixed to take place in Adelaide this season, the form shown is encouraging.

FIXTURES FOR SATURDAY.

Sydney v Central Western, Australian Football Ground, T. Richardson, field umpire; South Sydney v Newtown, Erskineville Oval, L. J. Pitcher, field umpire; North Sydney v East Sydney, Hampden Oval; H. J. Reynolds, field umpire.

THE ASSOCIATION GAME.

VICTORIOUS GRANVILLE

Granville have asserted themselves to such an extent that they are at present the only unbeaten team in the first league, and are easily ahead in goal average. In the match against Sydney play was of a fairly even character throughout, the half-backs in each team standing out through their effective defence. Moore showed, too, that success sometimes follows a half-back's long, dropping shot for goal. It was his score that won the game for Granville. The "Magpies" were without Watkins, who had to stand down owing to an injury to his foot. Gill played very deliberately and soundly as right full-back, and did a good deal of the work on the other wing. Doherty was a little below form; he is only just recovering from the effects of an accidental blow in the face, delivered by Mobbs in attempting a clearance during one of the earlier matches. Moore, Hilder, and Wheat prevented much of the combination of the Sydney forwards attaining the success it realised in the previous games. Barrell showed clever sprinting and passing as outside right for Granville, though once or twice his eagerness resulted in the ball going behind after a brilliant run. The remaining forwards were just a little wanting in the dash that makes their opponents' displays so spectacular. Melliar-Smith controlled the ball well, and Hoffman scored a handy goal, but Butcher fell back rather too far on occasions.

Some clever passing was effected by Doerner (who uses his head well), M'Ghie, and Wyber for Sydney, and Rasell's heading was a feature of the defence. Kirkpatrick and Hughes, who watched Barrell closely, also contributed towards blocking the Granville attacks. Duggan saved several shots neatly, but the bounce beat him when Moore scored.

Newtown and Northern Suburbs opened their winning accounts, and it is interesting to note that no game has so far been drawn. Milton, who scored two goals for Newtown, is always dashing, and hardly ever quiet. Newtown (20) have tried out more players than any other club, Glebe being next on the list with 18.

Annandale, for whom Hillyard again played very solidly, have commenced to make the competition more interesting than was anticipated after the first few matches. Balmain, without Grogan, made the game very close, as the odd goal, which was put through by Annandale's new centre forward, indicates.

Northern Suburbs have a somewhat cosmopolitan team, which, on Saturday, played with something approaching good all-round form. A newcomer in P. Le Blanc must surely be the heaviest and tallest player in the first league. Vandendriche, as usual, kept the forward line on the move, and Tagart and Hibbard again infused zest into their play. Stevens and Evans put in plenty of good work in the half-back line, whilst the backs, a really reliable pair, were at their best.

Canterbury's forward line was not prominent by its combined play, and, in the absence of Blake, there was not a great deal of fast work. J. Forbes was most consistent, and M'Beth made one or two stirring sprints in the first half.

The manner in which the players who arrive from overseas influence the game in New South Wales is apparent from an inspection of the biographical notices that follow. It is fortunate that we can place these players, and at the same time leave vacancies for the best of those who may graduate from our own junior ranks. In this connection the competition for the first reserve league teams provides an invaluable school for the advanced juniors and a guide for the selectors of the first league teams.

FIXTURES.

SATURDAY, MAY 30.

First League.

Balmain v Northern Suburbs, North Sydney Oval No. 2, 3.15; Glebe v Sydney, Epping, 1.45; Newtown v Canterbury, Campsie, 3.15; Granville v Annandale, Epping, 3.15.

HOCKEY.

SATURDAY'S GAMES.

The fourth round of competition matches took place under favourable conditions on Saturday. Good form was displayed in the first-grade matches, but the second-grade fixtures were not successful, as out of three matches two were won on forfeits, Pilgrim II. and Corinthian II. both failing to put a team into the field. This is a serious matter. The competition has had the effect its promoters hoped for with regard to the first-grade teams, but the second-grade teams are not prospering under the new conditions. The chief cause of the trouble, at present, is that there are too many first-grade clubs. Several teams now playing in the higher grade should not be there, as they are much below the standard.

A point which umpires need to watch very carefully is charging a player who has the ball. This breach of the rules has increased to an alarming extent since the advent of the competition, and if not carefully stamped out, will have a very undesirable effect upon the game. Coronas were, practically speaking, bumped off their game on Saturday, while Bandits also received full force of the charge at times, but not to such an extent as the former team.

BASEBALL PITCHING.

HISTORY OF THE CURVE.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

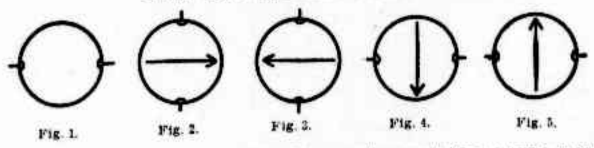
The introduction of curve pitching into the game of baseball about the year 1867 has been referred to in America as "a discovery." This, however, is hardly the correct term, for the principles that were applied to the throwing or pitching of the baseball had previously been thoroughly examined in connection with the tennis ball and spherical bullet. The phenomenon had also been observed, some 90 years before, in the game of cricket, for it is written of one, Noah Mann, who first played in England in 1777, that his bowling had an extraordinary curve the whole way. It is a coincidence, too, that F. E. Allen, one of the first and greatest swerve bowlers in Australia, played in his first intercolonial match in 1867. In fact, Allan was nicknamed "Boomerang" on account of his peculiar curve bowling.



THE BASEBALL CURVE.

Fig. 1. Fig. 2. Fig. 3. Fig. 4. Fig. 5.

The fact that pitching in baseball has always been in the nature of full-tossing makes it easy to understand why the theory of the curve was investigated in that game long before the swerve, or curve, in cricket. After Arthur Cummings began to strike out batsmen practically as he pleased when he pitched for the Stars of Brooklyn in 1867, it gradually dawned upon "ball" players that the curve was a thing of reality. But when they attempted to explain the fact to outsiders, the idea of a pitcher being able to throw a ball so as to make it describe a horizontal curve was ridiculed. Scientific men were sceptical, and learned professors in the educational institutions of Ohio took part in a newspaper controversy on the subject.

The first accurate explanation of the curve, as applied to baseball, was contained in an article written in 1877 by J. G. McMurphy, of Racine, Wisconsin. The theory had, of course, been propounded 200 years before by Sir Isaac Newton, and fully demonstrated in systematic experiments by Benjamin Robins (b. 1707, d. 1751), a Fellow of the Royal Society of England. But the article referred to, which appeared in the "Scientific American," under the heading "Rotation in Motion," correctly ascribed the curves to the rotation, or spinning, of the ball, and in view of the difference of opinion at the time, and for some years after, with regard to the particular kinds of rotation necessary for different curves, the article deserves pride of place in the literature for which the curve has been responsible.

It is necessary, before proceeding further in this direction, to describe what rotation really means, and how it acts in conjunction with the resistance of the atmosphere in influencing the flight of a ball. Rotation is the act of turning or spinning a ball about its axis, which is a line, real or imaginary, through the centre of the ball. In the case of a ball used in any game, the axis is, of course, always imaginary; but it may be exemplified by holding a ball in one hand with the first finger on top and the thumb underneath. If the ball be spun with the other hand, the thumb and forefinger indicate the positions of the ends of the axis. In order to readily understand the significance of the axis, however, it will be of great assistance if a piece of stout wire be inserted loosely through the centre of an old ball, which may be used for the purpose of better appreciating the theory. The wire will then serve as a tangible and visible axis, about which the ball may easily be spun. See Fig. 1.

It can readily be seen in what a number of positions the axis may be directed, and consequently what a multitude of modifications of spin may be created. For the present, it is only necessary to consider the spins that may be given to the ball when the axis is (1) vertical, or straight up and down; and (2) horizontal (i.e., level), and laying directly across the line of proposed flight.

When the axis is vertical, the pitcher at baseball may impart to the ball two distinct spins. It may be as well to point out that, in speaking of a vertical axis, the term is only used theoretically; practically, the results produced are from a nearly vertical axis. It would, moreover, be impossible to ascertain whether a spinning ball was thrown with the axis absolutely vertical. If the axis be straight up and down, and the ball be held at the level of the eye towards an imaginary batsman, the ball—or, strictly speaking, the back of the ball (i.e., the half of the ball that faces the pitcher)—may be spun, (1) from left to right, and (2) from right to left. The corresponding direction of the rotation of the front of the ball would be the reverse in each case; that is to say, if the back of the ball is spinning from left to right, the front of the ball (i.e., the half that faces the batsman) will be turning from right to left, and vice-versa.

The principle by which the flight of a ball is influenced when it is spun as illustrated may be explained in a few words. The ball is travelling forwards towards the batsman, and, in addition, the right side of the ball, as seen by the pitcher, is spinning forwards; the left side of the ball is spinning backwards, or in the opposite direction to which the ball, as a whole, is moving. The result is that the resistance of the air in front of the ball becomes unequally distributed, a denser mass of the air being accumulated on the right side than on the left side. A surplus pressure is thus created, by which the ball is deflected or forced from the right side towards the left—an out-curve to a right-hand batsman.

Secondly, if the back of the ball, in its flight, is spinning on a vertical axis from right to left, it will appear to the pitcher as in Fig. 3. The particles of air will be heaped up on the left side, owing to the increased resistance caused by the forward spinning movement of that side, and they will be thinned out on the right side through the diminished resistance caused by its backward spinning movement. An excess pressure, or what might be termed a congestion of air, is formed on the left side from which the ball veers away towards the right—an in-curve. The ball follows the line of least resistance.

The same principle can be applied to the up or raise-curve and the down or drop-curve. These curves are produced by altering the direction of the axis before spinning the ball. The tangible axis previously referred to should be placed in a horizontal position, so that it points directly across the line of proposed flight. If the back of the ball be made to spin downwards, it will appear as in Fig. 4. The ball, as before, is shown as it would be viewed by the pitcher in its flight towards the batsman. A ball pitched with this spin will yield a raise-curve; it will curve upwards despite the action of gravity, and will not fall as soon as it would without any predominating spin. The reason should now be apparent. The top of the ball is spinning backwards against the flight, whilst the bottom is spinning forwards, or in the same direction as the ball is travelling. The air becomes piled up to a greater extent at the bottom of the ball than at the top. There is thus created a force which, working against gravity, strives to impel the ball upwards.

Fig. 5 denotes the spin that produces the drop curve, the back of the ball being made to rotate upwards. The deflecting force is, in this instance, accumulated at the top of the ball, and, as it assists the force of gravity, by working in the same direction, the ball drops quickly.

RIFLE SHOOTING

PAUCITY OF TARGETS.

There was an exceptionally large muster of clubmen at the Randwick range on Saturday, when the target accommodation was taxed to the utmost. Now that the trainees have been removed to the Long Bay range, many clubmen, recognising that they can obtain targets, even if not wholly sufficient for their needs, are patronising the range better than formerly, but the paucity of targets is still apparent. The 15 "tumble-downs" in A block should be replaced by an improved pattern, and although a promise was made by the authorities to carry out the alteration, nothing has been done up to the present. The N.R.A., in looking after the interests of the members of clubs under its control, is naturally anxious to see the improvement effected, and Senator Oakes has been seen with reference to the matter. The extra targets long promised at "Siberia" have not materialised, and the opposition raised at Victoria Barracks has caused the association to cease hoping for their erection in time for its big meeting in October next. With a possible increase in entries extra targets are an absolute necessity.

On Saturday next 320 men will fire from the 500 and 600 yards mounds in the grade matches, and it will be safe to assert that many of the 32 competing teams will be unable to conclude their firing before darkness sets in. This would be a favourable opportunity for representatives of the department to personally see the disadvantages under which shooting is at present carried on at Randwick range. And matters are even worse when the N.R.A.'s meeting is in progress.

Saturday was an ideal day for shooting at Randwick, especially in the early part, before the light commenced to fade, and as a consequence many high scores were registered. P. Larbalestier, of the Randwick Club, performed the very unusual feat of making a double "possible," getting bull's-eyes with each of his seven shots at 500 and 600 yards, and 14 consecutive bull's-eyes were scored by H. L. Cobb (Lands Department), who finished his score in a quarterly shoot with 10 bull's-eyes, and shooting on he got four more before he "broke" on an inner. A large number of marksmen compiled one-stage possibles, including R. Lonsdale (Randwick Literary Institute), M. C. Rothery (Randwick), and F. W. Turton, G. L. Ardill, and A. Brooks (Parramatta), in seven shots, from the 500 yards mound, and B. L. Freak (Randwick Literary Institute), T. L. Westbrook (Parramatta), and E. Coulcher (Sydney), in seven shots at 600 yards. A large number of men missed the "possible" by one point. E. Docksey (Wunderlich) did this in a 10-shot shoot from 600 yards.

The final round of the Metropolitan District Rifle Clubs' Union's championship and handicap grade matches is to be fired at the Randwick range on Saturday next from the 500 and 600 yards mounds, the conditions being 10 men a side, seven shots at each range. Parramatta Club leads the Yorkshire Society Club by a few points in the championship event, and with other good shooting clubs close handy in the lists a keen contest is expected. The following is the draw:—

Championship.—Parramatta A v Yorkshire Society A, Randwick A v Randwick Literary Institute A, South Sydney v Rockdale A, Sydney A v Auburn, Clyde Engineering Works A v Water and Sewerage Board A, 29th Infantry v Eastern Suburbs, Lands Department v Metropolitan Railways A, Tramways v Post and Telegraph, North Sydney, a bye.

Handicap.—St. Marys v Concord, Parramatta B v Western Suburbs B, Sydney B v Rockdale B, Belmore v Yorkshire Society B, Belmore v Wunderlich, Metropolitan Railways B v Randwick B, Manly v Randwick Literary Institute B, Gladesville-Balmain v Enfield.

MOTORING.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF AUSTRALIA.

SATURDAY'S CONTEST.

Twenty cars have been entered for the petrol consumption test of the Automobile Club of Australia, to be held from Sydney to Katoomba on Saturday afternoon. This is a satisfactory increase over the number which engaged in last season's event. There will also be quite half-a-dozen non-competing cars making the trip, so that the club party will number over a hundred.

The competing cars will start from the Circular Quay weighbridge on Saturday morning between 11 and 12 o'clock, after having been weighed by the officials with full tanks and loads in competition trim. The test will finish at Katoomba, where the officials will be waiting to fill the competitors' tanks immediately on arrival, for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of petrol used on the run up. The result will be based on the ton mileage figures, but a special prize has been offered by Mr. Boyd Edkins for the best actual miles per gallon result. Arrangements have been made at the Carrington for the entertainment of the tourists on Saturday evening, and on the following day the various parties will visit the several points of interest in the neighbourhood, returning to Sydney independently in the late afternoon.

SPEED-JUDGING CONTEST.

The roads and tours committee is arranging a speed-judging contest for members towards the latter end of June. This will be the third contest of its kind to be held by the club, and, judging by popularity of the previous events, should attract a large entry. These contests provide ample opportunity for drivers to test their skill and judgment in handling their cars under prescribed conditions. The winner of the speed-judging contest in 1912 was Mr. H. Knight-Eaton, while last year's event was won by Mr. O. H. Ibels. Both these competitors varied but a trifling amount from their set speed, which was in the vicinity of 18 miles per hour.

CARS IN WARFARE.

A survey of warfare, not only of recent but also of ancient conflicts, shows that the ultimate victory does not necessarily rest with the army possessing the greater number of men or even the greater armament. M. Guilliaux thinks that in the future aeroplanes will be the deciding factor; but at the present time, at any rate, and certainly for some years to come, the victorious army will be the most mobile on land and sea, for so much depends upon the quick transport of large bodies of troops and their armaments, and more vital even than this are the necessary supply of food, and often water, over great tracts of country often without roads. Although with few exceptions—Australia unfortunately is one of them—every civilised nation has its motor transport service, which has proved of great service in time of peace, it has fallen to Italy in her recent conflict with Turkey in Tripoli to prove that the motor car and lorry are of inestimable value in time of war. In the Balkan war Greece, Montenegro, and also Bulgaria, had recourse to the aid of the automobile, each army using a number of lorries in its transport service.

A pamphlet forwarded by Garratt's, Ltd., which deals in an interesting manner with the work of the motor transport section of the Italian army during the Turco-Italian war, contains many lessons which, in the light of the recent manoeuvres, could well be taken to heart by the Commonwealth military authorities. According to General Carlo Caneva, the vehicles used by Italy proved absolutely reliable, and maintained a dependable communication between the advanced companies and the various bases and depots. Several hundreds of machines were employed, and they carried the greater portion of the war material, provisions, and forage from the coast to the interior. They also conveyed large bodies of troops to the firing line, rushed the wounded to the hospitals and the dead to the improvised cemeteries. The greater part of the country traversed by the motor columns was devoid of roads. One officer wrote: "It is the automobiles, whose name is as fateful as the trumpet sound of victory, that accompany our soldiers to the fight, that bring to them the means with which to conquer and the possibility of their being fed with hot meals and new bread soon after the occupation and the conquest; that bring the means to fortify the new positions; that carry water, ice, medicaments, beds, and tents for the wounded, so that, a few hours after the battle the field is clear, the wounded are sheltered, tented and saved."

Besides these two great works, that of army transport and also of red cross work, innumerable other duties were relegated to the motor corps—functions which were carried out with conspicuous success. Lorries were fitted with dynamos driven by the engine which supplied current to powerful searchlights, enabling large tracts of country to be flooded with light during the night. Other cars were equipped as radio-telegraphic stations, proving of the greatest value when troops were scouting or reconnoitring the country, and a speedy and certain means of communication. Other cars were in the service of the dirigibles, making these balloons of far greater value than would otherwise have been possible. Again, many machines were armed with quick-firing guns and crew, and being so extremely mobile, formed a speedy vanguard to repress a raid or to co-operate in an improvised advance. In short, the cars acted as a complete railway where no rails were laid, and the new arm showed itself to be of first importance in making rapid mobilisation possible.

ROWING.

AUSTRALIAN UNIVERSITIES.

A RETROSPECT.

There were many ways of marking the Centennial year of Australia, and one commemoration was the inauguration of the Australian Universities boat race, an eight-oared contest in best boats. Prior to 1888 there had been two four-oared races in old-fashioned string-test boats, with fixed seats. The first was held in 1870, and the next a year later, both being won by Melbourne from Sydney. The first race of the present series, which promises to be interminable, was rowed on the Yarra (Henley Reach course), the distance being about 2¼ miles. Melbourne won. In the Sydney crew, which was stroked by E. H. Wilkinson, were Messrs. Tom Rolin, Alec. Thomson, C. W. Schraeder, and V. B. McDermott, well-known in our law courts at the present day. Next year the race had been fixed for the Parramatta, but as Sydney could not raise a crew, Melbourne went to South Australia, and rowed Adelaide on the Port River, the latter winning rather easily.

Sydney having forfeited its turn, the next contest took place on the Yarra, Sydney winning from Melbourne, Adelaide being absent. Amongst those in the winning boat were W. T. Coyle and B. Sawyer, the stroke being W. A. Conlon. In 1891 the first race rowed on the Parramatta, Sydney University scored their second win. F. R. De B. Lopez stroked the boat, and among the rowers were: Charles H. Helsham, Dr. R. J. Millard, Rev. R. W. Thomas, and Harold Cox. The course of three miles was rowed in 17m 21s.

In 1892, it was Adelaide's turn for a race on home waters, and Melbourne won from Sydney and Adelaide, in 17m 21s, the distance being the same as in the previous year on the Parramatta. Dr. C. B. Retallack, now residing in Sydney, rowed bow for Melbourne. In this year the race had attracted a good deal of interest at Oxford and Cambridge, and the "old blues" of these Universities subscribed a very handsome cup to be rowed for annually as a perpetual challenge trophy. In 1893 the race was decided on the Yarra, when Melbourne beat Sydney and Adelaide, rowing the three miles in 16m 5s. Next year, on the Parramatta, C. H. Helsham stroked Sydney to victory, having with him, amongst others, M. C. Chubb, the late Charles T. Russell, and Dr. G. A. Vivers. Adelaide was not represented this year. Sydney was again successful in 1895. Chubb was stroke, and with him were Rowan P. Hickson, Dr. H. W. Kendall, Dr. Vivers, and Noel Trevor Jones. Melbourne was second, and Adelaide third. In the last-named crew W. H. Gosse was stroke, and had with him Dr. C. D. Halcomb, now a resident of Sydney.

The race was held on the Yarra in 1896, when W. H. Gosse stroked Adelaide to victory, Dr. Halcomb being in the crew. Sydney was second, stroked by A. Grafton-Purves, and Melbourne was third. In 1897, on the Parramatta, Sydney stroked by Dr. G. A. Vivers won, Melbourne being second, and Adelaide third, and for the third year was stroked by W. H. Gosse. In the following year Sydney won on the Port River from Adelaide and Melbourne. Rowan Hickson stroked the winners, Purvis being No. 7, and Dr. Kenall No. 6. In 1899 Melbourne, on the Yarra, scored a second win for the cup, and this was the fourth crew Gosse had stroked. Adelaide was not represented, and Sydney was second. In the second boat H. J. Gould was stroke, and with him were A. G. De L. Arnold, and H. M. Stephen.

In the following year the race was held on the Parramatta, and Sydney, stroked by Gould, won from Adelaide, Melbourne being absent owing to plague in Sydney. In 1901 Sydney started the new century by winning on the Yarra from Melbourne, and this year Adelaide was not represented. Melbourne was stroked by H. J. Whiting. In the following year Melbourne beat Sydney and Adelaide on the Port River, and in 1903 Sydney won from Melbourne and Adelaide on the Parramatta, the time for the three miles being taken as 15m 36s. Next year, on the Yarra, Whiting again stroked Melbourne and won from Adelaide and Sydney. In 1905 Sydney was stroked by A. Morrison on the Port River, and won from Adelaide and Melbourne. In the following year, on the Parramatta, Whiting, rowing stroke for Melbourne, secured his third win, with twice second, and once third—perhaps a record in University eights. In 1907, Sydney had a great crew, stroked by A. Morrison, and with him were T. S. Dixson, W. W. Martin, and K. B. Gaden. A good win was scored on the Yarra from Melbourne and Adelaide. Next year Dixson came down to stroke seat for Sydney, and scored a win on the Port River from Melbourne and Adelaide. In the Melbourne boat were H. Soden-Ross, C. W. B. Littlejohn, and Simon Fraser, names closely connected with our Henley and Olympic eight.

In 1909 Sydney won from Melbourne and Adelaide on the Parramatta. In the crew were Dr. H. K. Ward and A. B. Doyle, who became champions, Ward rowing in our Olympic eight. T. Storey-Dixson scored his second consecutive win as stroke. R. G. K. Waley was coxswain in 1907-8 and 9, and his crews won. It was he who steered at Henley and Stockholm. Adelaide won on the Yarra in 1910, beating Sydney and Melbourne; but in the following year, on the Port River, Melbourne won from Sydney and Adelaide. In the Sydney crew was B. G. Wade, who will stroke our crew on June 6. In 1912 Melbourne won on the Parramatta, with Sydney second, and Adelaide third. Last year on the Yarra Melbourne won easily from Sydney and Adelaide in fast time (15m 11s). Up to the present there have been 26 races, and the scores are as follow:—Sydney 25 starts, 13 wins; Melbourne 25 starts, 10 wins; and Adelaide 22 starts, 3 wins.

THIS YEAR'S SYDNEY CREW.

The positions of the Sydney crew, which were selected some weeks ago, have been altered, as one side was found to be much stronger than the other. However, now that the men have been finally seated, those who have watched the training agree that there is an appreciable difference in the practice rows. The crew is composed of a fine body of young athletes, who should give a good account of themselves. Nevertheless, they will be placed at a disadvantage owing to their having done little or no open racing during the season. Their preparations for examinations will not allow of the time necessary for training for many open events. Roger Fitzharding has the crew in hand, and is giving them as much time as his business will permit. The men are shaping well, and improving with each row.

A glimpse at their week-end practice reveals the fact that there are yet a number of faults, both individually and collectively, throughout the boat, but these may be remedied by a little patience and strict attention to the coach's instructions. At present the men are striking 30, and clearing a fair amount of water, but the forward rush is checking the speed of the boat. The swing is fairly good, but the catch should be more determined and harder, and the finish held out longer with a square blade. The time should be carefully watched throughout the boat, and the crew would do well to infuse a little more dash and determination into their rowing.

A little trouble is being experienced in getting a coach to accompany the crew to Adelaide, and it is thought that they will have to depend on obtaining one in Adelaide. The men are seated in the boat as follows:—W. P. M'Callum, 11st 6lb; C. M. Samson, 11st 4lb; W. F. Crawford, 12st 6lb; R. R. Harper, 12st 10lb; P. E. Voss, 12st 3lb; R. B. Bloomfield, 11st 6lb; A. E. Woodward (stroke), 11st 4lb; T. H. Day (cox), 8st 6lb.

Melbourne University have a fine crew, and, judging by their form of a week ago, impress one as being likely winners.

METROPOLITAN NOTES.

OPENING ROAD RACE.

The final of the City Club's "Carbine" road race, which was held under the auspices of the New South Wales Cyclists' Union, over the Sherwood-Prospect course on Saturday afternoon, produced nothing out of the ordinary in the way of individual performances. The winner, T. Westheider, who covered the course in 24m 12s, certainly put up a good ride, but he was distinctly fortunate in having the assistance throughout the entire race of no fewer than four riders, from which, to all intents and purposes, was the same mark. Probably the best effort was that of W. Wylie, the scratch man, who started by himself with a gap of 1m 40s to bridge before coming into touch with his nearest opponent. His time—22m 52s—however, was 24s slower than E. W. Pedersen's effort in the second heat of the preliminary contests on May 9, and the State road champion will therefore receive the prize for the fastest individual ride. There were evidences of improvement in the pedalling of some of the younger school, E. A. Cowell, of the Lidcombe-Auburn Club, and J. Brennan, South Sydney, in particular, coming under the notice of the union officials. Brennan, it may be noted, punctured when working himself into a good position. Cowell, who also started from the 1m 50s mark, established the second fastest time to Wylie. Altogether the event, barring the enforced postponement, was an unqualified success, and Mr. R. Tuck, the capable secretary of the promoting club, is to be congratulated.

THE HOMEBUSH COURSE.

The rough condition of the Homebush course last season gave the union officials some cause for alarm when running the interclub and individual championship contests. It now appears that certain sections of the road have become even worse, and there is a possibility of the amateur riders having to find some other ground for their annual contests. The Sherwood-Prospect course is certainly available, but it has the disadvantage of being remote from the city, and, moreover, has no facilities for the riders at the turning points, such as are offered by the "blocks" at Granville and Homebush. Unfortunately, the union has no other course close at hand to choose from, and the matter has assumed a serious aspect. Besides the interclub premiership and individual championship competitions, and pacers' race, there is the recently-promoted time trial to be held by the union on June 23, which will be over an out-and-home course of not less than 20 miles, and it is not by any means desirable that all these open races should be held over the same course.

PICTON-ASHFIELD RACE.

The entries for the Picton-Ashfield race, considered by the union race secretary, Mr. Theo. O'Halloran, to be entirely satisfactory, have been forwarded to the union handicapper, Mr. P. J. Goatley, who is at present on his holidays, and it is expected that the starts will be announced on Wednesday next. This is the first long-distance race on the amateur programme this season, and the manner of its reception augurs well for the popularity with which it is hoped the long rides from Goulburn and Bathurst to Sydney will be received.

MOTOR CYCLING.

COMPETITION SEASON.

CLUB NOTES.

The condition of the roads last week-end was considered to be unsatisfactory from a motor cycling point of view, and the majority of the events of the metropolitan clubs were abandoned. However, as all the clubs have a long list of fixtures before them, the few days of inactivity will not be keenly felt; as it was, many clubmen took advantage of the "spell" to overhaul their machines to be in readiness for the strenuous times ahead.

The Motor Cycle Club of New South Wales will have a "day out" in hill-climbing contests on Monday, June 8, when Cottage Hill, a suitable grade situated about six miles from Campbelltown, will be the scene of two club championships, a novice event, and, if time permits, a handicap event for all machines. The first championship is open only to machines with an engine capacity of 560 c.c. or under; but entries for the other event will be accepted from riders of machines of any power or design. The novice fixture is a handicap event, open, of course, only to members who have never won a prize in competition. The entrants, moreover, must be the bona-fide owners of the machines they ride. A new restriction in regard to these events is that two or more riders may not compete with the same machine. The entries for all the contests will close with the club hon. secretary, Mr. J. A. Fair, on June 4. The club will hold a week-end run to Camden, starting from the clubrooms at 2.30 a.m.

TRIUMPH CUP.

The entries for the annual "Triumph Cup" contest, to be held by the Auto Cycle Association of New South Wales from Sydney to Jenolan Caves and return on June 20 and 26, will be received by Mr. Pitt, secretary of the promoting body, at the Sports Club, Hunter-street. It is desirable, says Mr. Pitt, that all entries should be forwarded to him direct. The conditions of the event drawn up by a special sub-committee of the association have been well received, the clause in regard to the secret checks only becoming operative in the event of more than one competitor gaining full points for reliability being considered a wise one, as it ensures the competition reaching finality, and yet the competitor's judgment in driving is not actually classed with the reliability of his machine. This season's contest should be particularly interesting, and is deserving of support from the country factions.

AN ENJOYABLE TOUR.

Messrs. Arthur Biden and A. Bitterwell, members of the Kookaburra club, have returned from an enjoyable fortnight's tour in the Oberon district. The roads over the mountains, Mr. Biden says, are in a shocking state, although the Lapstone Hill, usually the worst portion of the trip, is, strange to say, in moderately good order. Once beyond the ranges, however, the surfaces are excellent, and no fault could be found with any of the roads in the Oberon or Bathurst districts. The tourists were entertained by the members of the Bathurst Motor Cycle Club, who are, according to the Sydney visitors, inclined to be apathetic towards motor cycling contests; in Mr. S. Atkinson, however, the Bathurst Club has an enthusiastic captain, and the membership roll is rapidly increasing.

RED BALL PLAY.

The "trial game," with the scoring value of the red losing hazard reduced one point, which took place between Inman and Reece in London before the Council of the Billiards Control Club, was evidently the outcome of the suggestion or advice recently tendered by the Professional Advisory Committee to the Council.

This committee consists of the leading professionals, who endeavour to keep it a close corporation; but recently, after some opposition, George Gray was elected to a position thereon. The proposal which Inman and Reece tried out was evidently not a great success. Despite Reece having all the better of the proposal, owing to his favourite close cannon not being penalised, he scored fewer than 150 points while Inman was scoring 800 by means of the all-round method.

Gray's brother professionals are making a hard fight to drive him out of competition, but the Australian has many friends, one of the most powerful of whom is the well-known writer on billiards, Mr. Riso Levi, author of "Strokes of the Game." In a recent contribution on the subject, "Should the red-ball play be curtailed?" he states that to his mind the thing most abhorrent is the suggestion of limiting red-ball play. Quite apart from the unwisdom of tampering with the rules of the game oftener than is absolutely necessary is the gross injustice which the limitation would inflict upon one player. As already stated, the abolition of the spot stroke inflicted no particular hardship on any single player, since all the leading professionals of the day compiled their huge breaks almost entirely by that means. Legislation, however, which clearly has for its object the suppression of the game of one player only would be grossly unjust—even cruel. Is it nothing that Gray devoted so many years of his boyhood to the perfection of his particular play? Is it fair to suggest that he should be ruthlessly despoiled of the fruits of his incessant labour just because in the past, going all out and hiding nothing, he ran away from the pick of the English professionals?

"To-day, Stevenson and Inman suggest that the red-ball game should be limited to 25 or 23 consecutive 'in-offs.' But no one ever heard of Inman making such a suggestion when he was the 'in-off' expert and when people flocked to see him play in the hope of seeing him make from two to three hundred off the red. Stevenson, too, has exceeded three hundred off the red more than once, but he never even hinted at curtailing this method of play until George Gray came and showed us that breaks of a few hundred off one ball were unconsidered trifles to him—mere feelers, as it were, to vastly bigger breaks. Is it sportsmanlike on the part of two of our leading English players to seek to deprive Gray of the fruits of his so hardly-won skill? I have heard it stated that their suggestions savour somewhat of jealousy and fear. I would not like to go so far as this myself; nevertheless, this is the impression that has unfortunately been caused in many quarters by their utterances.

"It is only natural that the majority of us would like to see the championship of English billiards held by an Englishman, but should it even be wrested from us by our brilliant kinsman, let us be fair and above board. Let it not be said that a rule was made to cripple just one particular player in order that the next time the championship was played victory should be to England."

The final of the Sydney Bicycle Club's winter tournament was won by T. Lockett from J. H. Ormiston last Wednesday night by 200 to 172, after conceding 20 points start. In the conclusion of the game Mr. H. A. Rumball entertained members with exhibition games of snooker and billiards, which were appreciated.

The Literary Institute championship games are now being played on Tuesday and Thursday evenings at the rooms of the various institutes taking part in the championship. Much interest is being manifested by the hundreds of affiliated members.

The seventeenth New South Wales markers' tournament will commence on Monday night at Messrs. Heiron and Smith's rooms, Castlereagh-street. After the first round, the locale will be removed to the tournament hall at Billiards, Ltd., George-street, which has now been taken over by the promoters.

SWIMMING.

BEAUREPAIRE AGAIN.

The various States have come to a decision regarding the visit of D. P. Kahanamoku to Australia next season. New South Wales has agreed to take the world's record holder on the conditions laid down in the scheme outlined by the Australian Swimming Union. Queensland have also agreed, subject to certain allowances being made so that Kahanamoku may stay a longer period in that State. Tasmania is unable to make the necessary financial arrangements, and the scheme, by which it was hoped that the Hawaiian and his party might appear in Hobart while the boat conveying him from Melbourne to New Zealand was in port, seems impracticable, in view of its early arrival and departure. South Australia has likewise dropped the idea on the score of expense, and owing to the fact that the Australian championships will be decided in Adelaide during next season. Victoria is, according to a decision arrived at by the council of the A.S.A. of that State, willing to receive a visit from the famous swimmer, provided Frank Beaurepaire be classed as an amateur by the International Amateur Swimming Federation, which body has been asked for a ruling on the question. Failing a decision in its favour, the A.S.A. of Victoria states that the Australian Union should declare the Victorian champion eligible to compete in amateur races.

The restrictions in this case are extraordinary, and the position taken up by the southern State seems most unjustifiable. The union declared against a swimmer occupying a position such as Beaurepaire holds being allowed to compete as an amateur. This was dissented from by Victoria, whose association was allowed to submit a case to the international body, yet before the case has been decided it makes a stipulation that the swimmer concerned must be declared an amateur, whether the case goes for or against him. It is unlikely that the other States will countenance such a policy, as they will be compelled to accept the decision whether it be "yes" or "no."

With the Olympic Games of 1916 engaging more attention than any previous international competitions, the status of our athletes must be jealously guarded. Victoria owes something to the rest of her swimmers, and New South Wales cannot afford to risk competition with one whose case has been decided by the body representative of all nations. With regard to Kahanamoku, it must be apparent that all the swimming authorities here owe it to our visitor that he should not be asked to do anything that will jeopardise his amateur status. His own controlling body will be represented at the meeting of the International Federation, and if the vote goes against Beaurepaire, then the great Hawaiian could not risk the chance of any further amateur competition by competing against a man who had been declared outside the pale by an international jury. If the federation decide for Beaurepaire, then, of course, all will be well; but the decision, whatever it may be, must be upheld.

For the sake of the sport, it is regrettable that South Australia and Tasmania have definitely decided not to receive a visit from Kahanamoku, but it is hoped that even yet the more fortunate States will be able to arrange for the others to have a visit from the great exponent of the sprint crawl-stroke.

ANGLING.

HINTS ON TROUT FISHING.

All anglers know before they leave home that the result of their prospective fishing trip is uncertain: the fish may be off the feed, the weather may be against them, and a number of circumstances may combine to keep the basket empty. It is not proposed to deal with natural obstacles to success, for which there is no remedy, but rather with the disadvantage by which the tyro or careless exponent of the art is apt to be handicapped. In almost every stream there are large fish—large by comparison with the average run of trout in the river—for instance, pound fish among fingerlings, and these larger trout are always the most difficult to catch; firstly, because they are older and more experienced, hence more discerning between the natural and artificial insect; secondly, they are shyer, more on the alert, and quicker to suspect danger from any unusual occurrence in the stream or its vicinity. All these points and many more must be in the mind of the angler as he approaches the water. Even the most careful expert fisherman reaches the river bank to be instantly advised of his clumsiness by a wave made by a good fish as he darts from under the bank across the shallow water, scaring all the rest as he goes, and spoiling a good stretch of river for some considerable time. It is seldom that the skilled angler makes such an error, as he is expecting just what is described above, and takes all necessary precautions. With the beginner is is different; he is in a hurry to get his rod together and make a start, and very often exposes himself unnecessarily to the watchful fish, which appear to regard everything strange or unusual as coming within the danger zone.

One of the most important, yet frequently-neglected precautions, is to see that the gut cast is stretched and straight, not hanging in coils stiff as wire, as it would be unless properly soaked. Another is to select flies suitable for the water, the light, and the time of day—bright flies for a dull day, sombre-hued flies for a bright day, etc. Assuming that the angler knows how to cast, the next consideration is where to drop his flies. The water before him looks the same from bank to bank, and the tyro is prone to throw his flies upon it without consideration as to where the fish may be lying. Watching closely for a moment, a tiny eddy will be seen, perhaps, denoting the presence of a boulder larger than the rest some distance below the surface. A good fish is likely to be lying behind it, and a couple of feet above would be the best place to drop the flies, allowing the current to carry them along and the eddy to suck them down. If a fish is there, he will generally rise, but if not, try again in the same place, as he may have been engaged in the opposite direction, or may have had his mouth full when the flies passed over him. Near the roots of a tree a rock or log in the water would be likely places for a good trout.

One of the principal causes of lack of success is handling the line badly—making a cast and allowing the line to drag against the current. The fish notices this unnatural ripple at once, and scents danger; and so do all the others within sight of the disturbance. The line must be cast in such a way as to avoid "drag" on the line, cast or fly, which is not always easy, particularly when 40 to 60 feet of line are on the water. The trend of the current must be watched and the angler's standpoint selected accordingly.

Before making even one cast the surroundings should be studied—the light, shade, and the likelihood of scaring the fish by flashes of sunlight reflected from the varnished rod or its metal fittings. These seem small matters, but they are important in all but rapid water, in which much less care is necessary, as the prismatic action of the "broken" water so distorts every image above the surface as to greatly minimise the risk of scaring the fish.

The experienced trout fisherman takes plenty of time to deliberately adjust his gear. Making sure that the joints are tight and the guides true, he threads the line carefully, and examines the end of it before tying on the cast, which has been well soaked and stretched. He then ties on the flies—a beetle type at the point, a coch-y-bonddu for preference; a slim-winged fly, such as the olive quill for the first dropper, and a claret-and-teal for the second (if three be used). Each knot is tested so that in the event of hooking a good fish no blame can be attached to the tackle. He keeps well back from the bank, if there is room to do so, and with a short line covers the water close to the near bank with his flies before approaching too close to try the more distant water. Should he hook a fish, his aim is to prevent it rushing too far up, down, or across the stream; and with care, if the water holds them, he may creel two or three nice trout without changing his position.

To be successful, an angler must be a student of nature; he must know where to seek his fish, and why such and such places are likely to contain fish. He must know the habits of the favourite food of the fish, or else he will not be able to imitate the movements of the natural insect with his artificial effigy of it. Taking into consideration the keen sight, instinctive shyness, and in some species the cunning of the trout, the wonder is that they take the fly at all, for our artificial imitations are hopelessly crude, and while some of us pride ourselves on the flies we have tied, we have to admit that they bear about as much resemblance to the natural insect they are supposed to represent as a leather-jacket does to a salmo irideus.

While on the subject of fly-tying, a tribute might be paid to Detective-sergeant Bradley, who has just gone to Europe on leave. It was he, in the limited leisure at his disposal, who taught the majority of the Sydney anglers now tying their own flies this delicate and fascinating art, spending Sunday after Sunday morning imparting his knowledge to a number of eager students.

A PAGE FOR WOMEN

NOTICES.

The "Herald's" Page for Women is published on Wednesdays.

Contributions, from Women preferred, will be considered. They should not exceed half a column in length.

Communications should be addressed to "The Editor, 'A Page for Women,' 'Herald' Office."

A WIDER FRANCHISE.

The women's deputation which waited upon the Premier last week has given much food for talk amongst women of every class who are interested in public matters, and many and varied are the opinions expressed as to the demands of the deputation.

The majority of women strongly support the request that women should be empowered to sit upon municipal and shire councils; indeed, the deputation of women of the Labour League has merely forestalled deputations of women from other quarters, deputations which would have embodied women of all shades of political opinion. For on this subject of municipal reform there is but one opinion, and women are prepared to sink all party feeling and join issue on this one point. Women are not, as a rule, strong partisans in politics; they are nearly always willing to lose sight of party questions in any matters affecting the common welfare. We have had strong evidence of this in the past when social reforms have been urged by women, as women, and not as supporters of one or the other political party. And in this matter of civic government, women feel that there should be no question of political feeling. They know that they have something of value to contribute to the city, an intuitive knowledge and an experience which no man can have by virtue of his upbringing; they have seen how useful woman's advice has been in the municipal government of other lands, and how her power of seeing things from a fresh point of view has cleared many a path for civic reforms. And because women know that their help and co-operation in civic government are necessary to the best interests of the citizens—even though they are not welcomed effusively by the aldermen and councillors in office—they are stepping beyond the narrow confines of party politics to meet on a common ground; and the deputation of Labour women has the strong support of all women in its request for further municipal enfranchisement.

On the matter of women in Parliament there is not such unanimity of opinion. Many women argue, of course, that if women are capable of voting they are quite capable of sitting in Parliament, and that one is the natural sequence to the other. Others argue against this, for, they say, while woman's whole life trains her for taking part in municipal government—which is only the larger housekeeping—it does not fit her for passing judgment on matters of finance, and big constructive works. But, object the first speakers, neither does the average man's training fit him for these things; and the arguers have to admit that this is a fact, and also that there are some women much more fit to sit in Parliament than many of the present male politicians; though, by the nature of their training, the average man is more suited than the average woman for the position.

Other women do not support the deputation in this matter, because they think the time is not yet ripe for such a step. "Let us first get the right to share in municipal government," they say, "and then we can prove that we are not incapable of sharing in the larger government." There is expediency as well as logic in this argument, for they fear that by asking too much at once they will lose all.

On the question of women on juries, opinions are again divided, though all thoughtful women despise the argument that women wrong-doers meet with more tolerance from men than they could expect from women sitting in judgment on them. The question is one of justice, not of tolerance, and whether women should not be judged by their peers. But, though some women are very earnest in their desire to see women as jurors and magistrates, more especially in cases relating to women and children, the majority of women seem satisfied to leave these things in men's hands, for, they say, there has been small cause for complaint in Australia of injustice on the part of men judges and jurors against women and children.

They are three big matters that have been brought forward by the Labour women, and they should receive earnest consideration from all women. For one of the responsibilities that goes with our franchise is the duty to weigh carefully, and to give our best attention to every fresh suggestion for altering the status of women in the community. And it is the duty of those women who have studied the subject, to help, by their advice and explanation, their fellow-women who have not such a clear grasp of the situation.

CHILDREN IN PUBLIC PLACES.

"No, I won't, I wont." The shrill little voice rose above the blare of the brass instruments and the rhythm of dancing feet upon a polished floor.

"I won't go. Turn me loose. Turn m-e l-e-e-s-e!"

Everyone in the vicinity turned to look in that direction, and those who were near enough saw a perfect picture of a baby putting her puny strength against that of a woman who, with a determined grip on the small wrist, was trying to drag the child away.

Plump, dimpled—golden curls, blue eyes, and a profusion of costly lace declared to all observers that the child was well nourished and fashionably clad. The lady who held the baby's wrist was also unmistakably of the well-groomed class. That she had not wilfully provoked the storm could be seen in the flush of her face and the distressed curve of her lips. It must, I thought, be some relation not used to children. Some auntie, who, on a rare visit to the parents, has brought her little niece out to see the children taking part in the festival. But no! Again planting her little feet firmly upon the floor, this baby rebel crying, "I won't go, mummy. I want to stay here. I won't, mummy; I won't," threw all her weight backward against the would-be guiding hand. The lady with great effort finally picked up the baby and carried her, screaming and kicking, out of the crowd.

You see continually, to a greater or less degree, in almost all public places, instances where mothers have apparently no control of their children. And this arises largely from the mistaken idea that mothers know instinctively how to train children; that where children behave badly the mothers have not tried to teach them to behave well. Never was there a more mistaken idea. The training of children requires, above all things, judgment of character, and the percentage of women who have this faculty by nature is no greater among mothers than among any other class of women. But all mothers might be taught certain things which would assist them largely in the development of that characteristic, did they but care to learn.

LADY HOLDER.

Lady Holder, who arrived in Sydney yesterday from America, where she has been representing Australia at the triennial world's convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, has a most enthusiastic report to make of the work of the movement in America. "I was told in Brooklyn," she said, "that nothing had ever stirred the city as much as our convention. And when I tell you that the big Academy of Music was thronged by 4000 people at each of the three sessions daily for a week, you can believe that it was attracting interest.

"But then the question of 'prohibition' is a very 'live' one in America. The women are working in a solid body for it, and they have been working so for a long time. One of the very first fruits of the women's vote in the different States has been the closing up of a number of bars, or saloons, as they call them. In Chicago, where women voted for the municipal elections last month for the first time, 1000 saloons were closed at once, and they don't have to wait for years there. But it is not only the women who are fighting for temperance in America; the men are backing them up. Statesmen, doctors, and business men all realise that if they would have the best out of their people, they must keep them physically and mentally 'fit,' and this can only be done by abstaining from alcohol. And so the thoughtful men of all classes are joining the women in the campaign, and it is confidently expected that by 1920 the whole of the United States will be for prohibition.

"They have two great examples of the value of prohibition in Kansas City and in Asbury Park. In the Savings Bank in Kansas there is enough money to give 124 dollars (about £24) to every living soul in the city—men women, children, and babies. These are the savings of the people, much of which would undoubtedly have gone to the public-houses. In Asbury Park, which is a lovely city, and some people liken it to Venice for beauty, the constitution of the city prevents the building of public-houses. It is a pleasure resort, and many thousands of people visit in the season, yet a police force of 32 is all that is necessary to preserve law and order in the city.

"Salt Lake City, which is one of the most beautiful cities I saw, although not prohibition, is strong for temperance. Abstention from alcohol, tea, coffee, and tobacco is part of the Mormon creed, you know, and many of them observe it closely. The Mormon bishop is a leader in the temperance movement, and many of the Mormon women are active workers.

"The reports from the European delegates to the conference did not tell nearly so cheerful a tale as the American record, and as one listened to the different speeches, one realised for the first time the need for more White Ribbon missionaries in the different countries. The Baroness de Laveleye, from Belgium, gave a gloomy account of the intemperance in that country, where there is a public-house for every 34 inhabitants, and where the number of total abstainers is 100. In Norway, too, there is much intemperance, but in Sweden, in a population of 7,500,000, there are more than 1,000,000 total abstainers.

"There were delegates from 47 different countries, and the work of the convention was colossal, as you may imagine. But everything went without a hitch. There was nothing to jar, all was friendly and good-natured, and I cannot speak too highly of the president, Mrs. Lillian Stevens. I had heard so much of her great influence and her wonderful speeches that I expected to see a tall, dignified woman of a commanding presence. Instead, I found a little, thin slip of a woman, of 70 years of age. But when she spoke, her voice was full and deep and carried to every corner of that vast hall. She worked indefatigably during the convention, and then went on to Washington to present the resolution in favour of national prohibition from the convention. While waiting on the White House steps she caught a chill, and died on April 6. It was a great blow to us all, and she will be greatly missed by the cause."

Lady Holder, herself from Adelaide, the model city of the south, was not by any means impressed by the cleanliness of any of the American cities she visited. Boston, she thought, was very dirty, much dirtier than Sydney. New York, too, she thought, left much to be desired. Salt Lake City was the cleanest of all the towns she visited, but, on the whole, she decided that none of them had much to teach us in the way of civic government. She did not visit the smaller cities, where the women have taken a hand in cleaning up, with practical results, but she believes that, whatever American women do, they do thoroughly, and on a large scale. "And they are so good-natured with it all; so friendly and pleasant. And I was greatly impressed by the deference that is paid to them by the American men. In fact, I said to one woman, 'Your men treat you much better than you treat them.' It was particularly noticeable after staying in England, where women still regard man, as man, as a superior being. Do you know, it was while I was staying in England that I felt afraid to express my opinion before the men of the house, for the first time in my life."

A DOMESTIC ECONOMY SCHOOL.

Miss Frances Fraser, who is well known in Victorian scholastic circles, having been for many years lady superintendent of the Presbyterian Ladies' College, in Melbourne, is now on a visit to Sydney. As one of the present council of the Government College of Domestic Economy in Melbourne, Miss Fraser has much to say that is of interest to Sydney women, many of whom have been hoping for years to see a similar school established here.

The buildings are in Lonsdale-street, and include a college and a hostel, where 30 students are in training to take up domestic science as a profession. These girls are taught all domestic arts, and periodical examinations are held, the examiners consisting of Miss Fraser among other women of experience, and several men from among the inspectors of the Victorian Education Department. Mrs. Mountain, wife of the Melbourne City Surveyor, is the president of the council.

From much observation of the practical work of a domestic science college, Miss Fraser has come to the conclusion that a highly elaborated system of training with complex and too-highly specialised appliances, such as some of the new American domestic colleges have, is a mistake in a country like ours, where most women are compelled by force of circumstances, to struggle with imperfect appliances and rough-and-ready assistance. In examining, she frames her requirements in a way that will bring out the practical side of the teaching and its value in that direction to the students. For the same reason, Miss Fraser thinks that to raise domestic science to University level would emphasise the theoretical side to the detriment of the much more valuable practical side of domestic training. The class of students who would be the best at theoretical work, would be likely to be the least adroit and deft on the actual working side; while the contrary statement can be made even more strongly. Housekeeping and house work do not call for the scholastic and academic mind. To train a house-worker on the exact and well laid-down lines of University education, very often means that her weak points are insisted upon and her strong points neglected.

Time is another important essence in the domestic contract. In examination, Miss Fraser finds that to get at a student's real capability for doing her work, the best way is to set a number of tasks to be done in a given time, and then compare the speed as well as the thoroughness of the girls examined. Housekeeping, too, should be taught as a branch of instruction, all the subjects should be co-ordinated, and then made to fit in together, like the pieces in a jig-saw puzzle, before a student is pronounced fit for a diploma as a thoroughly competent domestic economist. The aptitude of the students now in training at the Lonsdale-street College is most marked, and the Government experiment is an undoubted success. F.B.

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

"I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes."—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

Invitations have been issued by Lady Patey (president) and the members of the ladies' committee to the annual meeting of the Harbour Lights Guild, to be held at the Rawson Institute next Friday afternoon.

Miss Alice Bryant, the clever Sydney organist, is winning success in England, where she has appeared at the Queen's Hall and the Albert Hall, and been warmly received. She has also played at several famous London churches, and she had the good fortune to meet Sir Frederick Bridge, and to play before him on the Abbey organ. This great organist does not now take pupils, but he has made an exception in the case of Miss Bryant, and the Australian has the privilege of playing on the Abbey organ, and of sitting in the organ loft while Sir Frederick is playing. Miss Bryant greatly appreciates her good fortune, and speaks warmly of Sir Frederick's kindness and interest.

Mr. Julian Ashton has issued invitations to view what should prove to be one of the most interesting collections of pictures seen in Sydney. The pictures are all by Australian artists, and have been collected by Mr. Ashton during the past 25 years. They represent the work of the artists in their different periods, and thus have a unique value, for an artist can no more go back to his early style than can a writer. If the creator develops, the work created must change, and the artist who keeps always to the same style is the man or woman who has done growing. In Mr. Ashton's collection is to be seen the growth of such men as Streeton, Lindsay, and Lambert, and art lovers cannot be sufficiently thankful to Mr. Ashton for giving them this opportunity.

Mdlle. Eva Gauthier, the French-Canadian singer, who charmed us by her singing last year, is as glad to be back in Sydney as Sydney is to have her. She is just paying a flying visit now, as she leaves next Tuesday for Melbourne to join Mischa Elman, the great violinist, with whom she is to tour. She had to give up a trip to London to engage for this tour, but, as she says, London "can wait," and it is a joy to be back in Australia, amongst the friends she made when she was here before.

Invitations have been issued to the inaugural meeting of the N.S. branch of the Australian Forest League, to be held at the Royal Society's rooms next Monday night, when Sir William Cullen will preside, and Mr. Cambage will give an illustrated address on the "Distribution and Uses of Some Forest Trees." The work which the new league aims at, that of preserving and increasing the native trees throughout the land, should meet with the enthusiastic support of all women who have an eye for the beautiful, and all who love their own land.

Mrs. Edwin Blaxland has kindly lent her drawing-room at Canala Flats, 38 Macleay-street, for a meeting to-morrow afternoon, at 5 o'clock, to discuss the subject of suffering stock, which has attracted so much attention on this page recently; and she hopes that all women who are interested in the matter will be present, so that some definite plan of action may be arranged.

In these days of fleeting weather moods it does not do to boast ourselves of to-morrow, for it is impossible to guess from day to day whether we may expect rain or sunshine. It was very unlucky for the committee of the Day Nursery that on Thursday, which was very wet, they should have postponed Friday's opening ceremony, for Friday afternoon was bright and fair. However, there was no help for it, as the Day Nursery is not big enough to accommodate a large number of visitors on a wet day, when there is no chance of using the verandahs and garden. Lady Patey has consented to perform the ceremony on Tuesday, June 2, at the same hour, and it is hoped that all the friends who meant to be present last Friday will go next Tuesday.

Visitors to the Repertory Theatre these days are striding across the ages. Last week Miss Dorothea Spinney gave us a taste of ancient Greek and modern Celtic drama on two different nights. On Monday we were back in ancient Troy with Miss Spinney. To-morrow night we are to see the performance of four little plays written by a Sydney girl, Miss Mary Welsh; and the titles of three of the plays suggest very modern situations—"The Interview," "Down with Men," and "The Editor Regrets." Our girl playwrights are few, and it is something of an achievement for Miss Welsh, not only to have written the plays, but to produce them herself; and she deserves encouragement in her venture.

The Queen Victoria Club is fulfilling its purpose as a centre for women interested in the intellectual and moral progress of the community by the inauguration of two movements which are destined to stimulate the artistic talents of Sydney. The "evenings" with the composers opened by Mrs. G. Earp, May 5, with Wagner, will be followed by similar evenings with Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Landon Ronald, French, and English modern composers, and Sullivan. A circle for amateur artists is in course of formation, and club members are invited to exhibit their work in September. The applied arts will be eligible, as well as the work of brush and pen, and it is hoped that brass, leather, and fine needlework will figure on the catalogue. The age limit is 17.

"Keep your temper" is good physiological advice, said an English doctor the other day, for emotions affect the heart's action, and as a result of anger the heart's work may be increased from 152 to 224 foot lbs per minute. Great strain may also be imposed on the heart by many of the careless actions of everyday life, such as running for train or hurrying upstairs. The work of the heart may be economised in many ways. If one went to bed every night at 10 instead of 12 the heart would be saved 876,000 foot lbs of work in a year; by lying down half an hour daily there would be an annual economy of 219,000 foot lbs; an hour's rest every Sunday would save 62,400 foot lbs; and by spending every Sunday in bed instead of only sleeping eight hours, the savings in the year would be 998,400 foot lbs.

"I am glad you entertained Mrs. Pankhurst when she was here," said a man to Mrs. O. H. Belmont, one of New York's leading women. "Mrs. Pankhurst is, saving your presence, the most eloquent woman speaker I have ever heard." "And yet," replied Mrs. Belmont, "she never finishes her sentences, does she?"

Mrs. T. G. Talbot, of Barmouth, who was a great friend of John Ruskin, has celebrated the ninetieth anniversary of her birthday. It was in one of a number of cottages she had given to St. George's Guild that the occupant, an eccentric old sea captain, said to Ruskin: "If you would write better English, Mr. Ruskin, I could understand your books better."

THE WOMEN VOTERS OF ILLINOIS.

Tuesday, April 7, was a significant date for Illinois, for it was the first time that the women cast their votes for the municipalities. Though not so completely emancipated as their sisters of Australia, the women of Illinois are enfranchised for all the municipalities, and can vote for the Presidency of U.S.A. Miss Pethick, my travelling companion, and I went down to the polling booths with a reporter, and found everything very quiet and orderly, although the greater number of the newly emancipated sex were pledged to vote against the saloons and the hooligan element had vowed a dire vengeance upon them. One paper bore the exciting headline, "Gunmen Prevent Women from Voting," but it was a very sensational daily, and we did not rely upon its news. In spite of threats and intimidation, it was stated last night that 80 to 85 per cent. of the women on the rolls recorded their votes, a larger percentage than that of men, and the leaders of the "dry" forces may well be jubilant over the returns. Reports from down the State indicated at midnight that 16 counties had been added to the dry list, and that in two counties only one city was left in which liquor might be legally sold. Of the larger cities twelve that had been wet voted against the saloons. It is estimated that more than one thousand saloons will be closed by this election. One courageous woman, Miss Drake, stood for the first ward of Chicago against a man, who, for 22 years occupied the post of representative. She was beaten in the contest, but her spirit and energy in venturing into it at all won widespread respect and admiration. Miss Drake made a gallant struggle, though she had very powerful forces to contend against, the saloon interest being wholly on the side of her opponent. One of her supporters remarked: "That 'the Both' (his nickname) will win. We'll beat that skirt so bad, you won't know she ever ran. We aren't afraid of those Drake rubber necks, who come round with a bottle of mineral water in one pocket and a cream puff in the other." The women stand for temperance nearly every time, and that is why they are dreaded, and their energy is so great and their courage so indefatigable that they will conquer in the end, and vote the States dry from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. Mrs. M. H. van Sant, though 80 years old, travelled from Los Angeles in California, to Alton, Illinois, that she might vote for prohibition, and Mrs. E. B. Clarkson, 94 years old, and 50 years head of the W.C.T.U. in Alton, also cast her first ballot.

Miss Pethick, my travelling companion, who is the sister of Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, and was formerly a militant suffragist, and wears the prison badge, for she has twice suffered for the cause, was a person of great interest to the reporters, and I, as an Australian voter, came in for a great deal of their attention. We have figured in all the papers in various attitudes, and our impressions have been more or less accurately reported. In most cases rather less than more as I am represented as being surprised and delighted at seeing a woman in a polling booth. Now, as I recorded my vote four times in Australia, I may have been rejoiced, but I could hardly be much astonished at so commonplace a sight. The orchestral hall, Chicago, was thrown open to all persons of both sexes in the evening, and a cinematograph entertainment was given, whilst at the same time the upper part of the screen was used to report the result of each election. It was somewhat distracting to contemplate at one and the same time, scenes from the making of the Panama Canal, and the record of the number of votes obtained by candidates all over Illinois. The most interesting part of the evening's entertainment was the advent of the suffrage speaker; who were full of hope and kindling with enthusiasm for the new era which was opening out before them. The fact that they would now have control over the expenditure of the municipality—that they would have representation with taxation, led them to predict a more judicial and adequate, as well as a more economical expenditure of the public funds. Mrs. Barr, president of the Women's Club, spoke with the utmost confidence, and with an infectious optimism of the effect of the woman's vote in checking corruption in municipal and political life. Miss Jane Addams, of world-wide fame, spoke with a wonderful vigour, although she had been working at the elections since 6 a.m. The women of Illinois are entering into their inheritance, and they are determined to be worthy of their privileges and to act up to their responsibilities. If hope deferred maketh the heart sick, it is even a more obvious truism to say that aspirations realised in achievement give new life and youth to a noble soul.

CONVENTIONALITY AND LIFE-BELTS.

Since the wreck of the Titanic our ferries have provided themselves with sufficient life-saving appliances to meet the demands of their quota of passengers.

Stacks of lifebelts are piled in every rack, and in every available corner, and lines of whitey-brown canvas are apparently part of the decoration of the boats. Doubtless, we are well provided with cork for all emergencies.

Now, let us suppose the emergency to arise. I venture to say that not more than 20 people on a boatload of, say, 500 passengers would know anything about these belts, and would be totally ignorant of their manipulation. There they lie, stacks upon stacks of them, and hardly a soul who travels backwards and forwards has the temerity to touch them and see what they are like.

Being of a somewhat curious turn of mind, one day some months ago I reached up and took one of the belts down to examine it, thinking that, perchance, I might someday have to use one. To my surprise, everyone looked at me as though I were a strange animal. Not a few giggled, and one man said audibly and disapprovingly, "By jove!" I felt as though I had been guilty of some misdemeanour. Shortly afterwards I met a friend, who remarked, "I saw you take the lifebelt down on the boat. How unconventional you are!" The thought struck me then, and has often recurred since, when I have glanced at the serried rows of belts, that there was very little connection between conventionality and lifebelts, or in knowing how to protect oneself from danger. All the same, I verily believe that if we had a serious collision in the harbour, many people would be drowned simply because they are ruled by the foolish convention that will not allow them to dare to examine their means of safety.

To-day, happening to go to Watson's Bay by one of the midday boats, and finding the opportunity a good one, a friend and myself determined to try one of the belts, just to test the experiences that would befall had we to place them on ourselves hurriedly at some time or other. It took us quite a time to understand just the easiest and quickest way to get into them, and our essay caused a good deal of amusement to a group of young men on board. One of the deck hands very kindly came to our assistance, and tied us up securely, but had we been left to our own devices I very much fear that nervousness and awkwardness would have carried us down with a sinking ship. It may be just as well to explain the modus operandi, and, while even those who would rather drown than be unconventional may perhaps learn something useful, those who are not so foolish will take down a belt on the next trip across and fit it on.

In the centre of the belt, on the upper side, are a loop and a strap. The strap goes round the neck and ties into the loop in front. This must be done first. Then the ties at either end must be taken round to the back and brought back and tied in front, allowing the belt to overlap if it is too large. It seems curious that all the belts are of one size, and that so large that it appears as if only very fat men had been specially catered for when life-saving was the order of the day. They are positively enormous for children, almost going twice round their bodies.

One of the young men gave us a very pertinent piece of advice. "Tie the belt as high as possible under the arms, and that will keep you in an upright position in the water," he remarked. We saw immediately how extremely necessary such a course would be for the cork belt provides the floating centre as it were, and if it be not fastened securely, and should slip, the probabilities are that it would turn the person to whom it was attached upside down, and thus prove his destroyer rather than his saver. If the manner of working does not seem clear, it will explain itself immediately when one tries to put the belt on, which course should be pursued as soon as possible by everyone who travels across the harbour. Should one girl not like to examine the belts when alone, she will always find an opportunity when travelling with two or three friends. If small groups had the temerity to take them down and try them on, others would do likewise, so that all would come to know just how to use this very necessary equipment should accident overtake them. At any rate, don't let it be said of our debonnaire lads and lasses, "They chose rather to drown than to be unconventional."

MELBOURNE NOTES.

After the swearing-in of the Governor-General, Sir Ronald Munro-Ferguson, at Parliament House, there was a very pleasant tea party in the Senate clubrooms. The proceedings were most informal. Her Excellency Lady Helen Munro-Ferguson visited the State school at Hawksburn to express her sincere appreciation of the welcome accorded herself and the Governor-General on their arrival. The pupils lined the drive from Government House gates to the Vice-Regal mansion, St. Kilda-road.

Mrs. J. B. Morice, the president of the Adelaide Women's Non-party Political Association, voiced her opinion on "Manners in Melbourne" before leaving here. She found friends, railway and tram officials, attendants in shops, etc., courteous, kindly, and obliging. But our street traffic she was reluctantly obliged to condemn. The jostling may be due to carelessness or thoughtlessness, states Mrs. Morice, or to the negligence of the authorities in enforcing obedience to the rules of the road, but it is undoubtedly most unpleasant. Contrasting kindergartens, Mrs. Morice (who has been for seven years secretary of the Kindergarten Union of South Australia) said that Melbourne kindergartens did not compare quite favourably with those of Adelaide. She considers that our system of working them does not produce the best results. The philanthropic side is emphasised somewhat at the expense of the educational. While in Melbourne Mrs. Morice visited the prisons, and found the conditions and methods practically the same as in South Australia.

The Victorian Ladies' Photographic Association claims the proud distinction of being the only one of its kind in the world. The chief aim of the association is to encourage interest in outdoor work and to bring students in touch with nature in all its varying forms. The annual competition causes some friendly rivalry. The subjects this year are landscape or seascape, portrait of a baby, study of a dog, and street scenes. At the annual meeting recently held Miss Agnes Thomson was elected president and Miss Turner, Auburn, hon. secretary.

Lady Stanley presided at the annual meeting of the Ministering Children's League held in the Melbourne Town Hall. The report stated that 301 children had been received at the Cottage-by-the-Sea, being an increase of 49 over last year's figures. The cottage is now out of debt.

* * * * *

The Society for the Protection of Children reports that during the past 12 months much useful work on behalf of those children whose ill-usage or neglected circumstances warranted investigation, has been done. Investigation had been made into 123 new cases of reported cruelty or neglect involving the welfare of 327 children, and these, with 102 old cases, made a total of 225 cases inquired into, affecting 586 children. Of these cases 63 were still under supervision.

VERONICA.

WHAT HAVE WE DONE WITH THE VOTE?

"Australian women have done nothing with their vote. Absolutely nothing! It is most disheartening!" So said one recent visitor, and so say many others—all, be it noted, women who come to us from countries where only men are enfranchised, and who, therefore, are quite without experience. They enormously exaggerate the power of the thing which they do not possess, like the child who supposes that he could buy a railway train or a steam yacht if he only had a penny.

Some of us who asked for the vote may, like them, have been disposed to imagine that woman would effect wonderful reforms when she was enfranchised, but the great majority always maintained, and gave as a reason for their demand, that the woman's vote would make no immediate and striking alteration in anything. How could it do so? The vote is not a fairy wand wherewith to turn pumpkins into carriages, and mice into horses. Nor is it a lamp powerful enough to enlighten the dull ways of use and wont. It is only the ability to choose, once in a while, in the only place where choice can be effectual, from two or three men, the one who shall assist in the making of the laws we are to live under. An important duty certainly. But, as a display of individual power, almost infinitesimal. If we had, as they say, actually done nothing, need they be surprised?

But we, Australian women, did not ask for the vote only for the sake of voting. We had a higher and deeper motive. We asked to be enfranchised, to be made free, as free as our brother men. "The right to vote," we said, "is the right of the taxpayer. Allow women to do their duty as taxpayers. The parent, the householder, the citizen, should have the right to vote, and women fill these positions. Moreover, the vote is a teacher, and women desire to be educated. They ought, therefore, to be offered the education that the right to vote confers."

With this knowledge of our aims, let our visitors look around and consider the Australian woman, the position she occupies, and the work she does. If they continue to say that we have done nothing with the vote, they will at least have to admit that the vote has done something for us. The woman of the last century, unenfranchised, of no public importance, valued her services according to the appraisement of men, and did public work with a blush and an apology. That day has gone for us. The Australian woman, educated and encouraged by the vote, has learnt to take her part in politics, not as a creature of sex, but as an individual, with as much intelligent energy as a man. She has asked for and obtained for her sisters and for children, many concessions, just and reasonable concessions, which without her advice, men, however willing, might not have considered. For instance, the places where women work, and the places where men work also, and the conditions under which they work, are immensely improved and are improving. Employers are now proud to show their consideration for their workers, and we have a small army of factory inspectors, many of them women.

"Dear me," some one says, "this is not the result of the vote." It is certainly not the immediate result of a vote recorded by women, but it is undoubtedly the effect of the alteration in the status of woman, an alteration which gives her political power. For the children, has nothing been done since the enfranchised woman made her influence felt? Far be it from us to say that all that ought to be done is done! But, looking back at the conditions that prevailed 20 years ago, we may rejoice, and the improvement is, in the main, due to the initiative of women. Health inspectors, day nurseries, district nurses, schools for mothers, all bear witness to the willing work of enfranchised woman, and also to the willingness of man to follow where she leads. Indirectly perhaps, but not less certainly, every improvement in matters relating to women and children has owed its origin to the educated and enfranchised women who have succeeded in making their voices heard, and have claimed attention from the politician because they could practically influence public opinion.

Another instance. Sydney has now many women's clubs and associations, clubs literary, social, and political in great variety. One may easily affirm that these were not made by the woman's vote. That they were not directly made by it is true, but the woman enfranchised, educated in freedom, practised in initiative, has in a few years done for herself the work that her mother and her grandmother, during many years of repression, never thought of. Our visitors readily talk of "the graceful freedom and the organising ability of Australian women," but persist in declaring that we have done "nothing," because we cannot point exactly to one enormous reform gained by women working together. They think that women will some day work together to make a cataclysmic social change, but students of human nature know that nothing but disappointment awaits their mad desire. And why? Because women vary as their brothers vary. As Mrs. Poyser said: "God Almighty made them to match the men."

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

With the advent of the colder weather the daily meals acquire a greater importance than belongs to them in the summer time. Hot nourishing dishes become now a necessity, and she is but half a woman who does not enjoy serving them to her family.

Soup, so frequently banished from the household menu in our hot season, is now very welcome, consequently the stock pot, the cook's valued friend, has returned to its place by the kitchen fire. Naturally the first essential of a good soup is good stock; but, again, the stock, however good, should only be regarded as a medium in which to serve other valuable ingredients.

Soup may be made extremely nourishing and appetising, and one may safely assert that with the same basis the same soup need never be served twice in the same week. Nor is there any need materially to increase the butcher's bill to obtain the foundation of the soup

Half a shin of beef (at 9d) will make excellent "stock" for three days' soup for an average family. The liquor in which fish has been boiled frequently contains a good deal of nourishment—yet it, as often as not, is simply poured away down the kitchen sink. The bones and "scraps" from fish are exceedingly useful in the stock-pot. In France they make an excellent soup from some of the water the cauliflower was boiled in, and she would be counted a poor cook indeed who, in serving "boiled" rabbit did not utilise for soup the water in which it had been simmering. But to pass from the "stock" to the ingredients that make the soup both appetising and nutritious, one may say there is no end to them. Onions boiled in stock give it a gelatinous consistency. Both green and dried vegetables, besides those known as "soup" vegetables proper, are very useful. Milk, potatoes, marrow, rice, sago, macaroni, bread, and tomatoes, may all be used with advantage. One can make a good soup by simmering three sliced onions in 2oz of butter for an hour, then adding to them one pint of hot milk, stock, or cauliflower water, a few rinds of bacon, a slice or two of stale bread, and seasoning. Before being served this should be passed through a sieve and have the onions and bread well crushed with a spoon.

There are many brands of soup upon the market, and the soup powders may often be advantageously pressed into service to season and thicken one's own home-stock. These may be bought for from 6½d a tin, and while they certainly increase the cost they just as certainly improve the flavour of one's own manufactured soup. One would not recommend, however, except in an emergency, that they be used without a basis of home-made stock

* * * * *

Vegetables are very plentiful again. Fresh young green peas may be bought for only 1s 9d and 2s a peck—a considerable reduction from last week's prices. Cabbages are with us in abundance, and one may buy large fine ones for 3d and 4d each. French beans—still young and green—are 1s and 1s 6d a peck; chokos are 9d a dozen; cucumbers 2d and 4d a piece; cauliflowers from 2d to 1s each, artichokes, 2½d a lb; potatoes, 2s 6d a qr.; lettuce, 2d and 3d each; beetroot, 2½d a bunch; tomatoes, 9d and up to 1s 6d a dozen; watercress, 1d a bunch.

* * * * *

Eggs are rather more plentiful than they were last week, but remain still at 2s 6d a dozen. Butter in Sussex-street is, according to Sussex-street parlance, "weak." The housekeeper finds no difference in its price, her butter-merchant charging her 1s 2d a lb, as he has done for some time now.

SUFFERING STOCK.

It is with great interest that I have read all the letters in your valuable paper for months past re the above matter. I think I was the first woman to write to the papers on this subject, my letter appearing in or about December 17 last, under the nom-de-plume "Civil Servant." After the poor sheep have travelled without even a drink of water for so many miles under trying conditions, they receive scandalous treatment from Summer Hill to Glebe Island, having to walk all the way in a state of complete exhaustion, being hunted by dogs, beaten by sometimes dozens of boys along a dusty road in clouds of dust, dying on the way, all for the want of a drink of water, which costs so little. As "Pity" states in your paper, it is a disgrace upon our country, and if there is anything that would win respect for the Government it is that some thought and consideration for the comfort of the poor dumb animals be shown "who give us wool to clothe us with, and whose flesh feeds us," which would be far more praiseworthy than beautifying the city for the visit of some rich man, and would be money better spent.

Some time ago one of the members said in the House that he considered that it was inhuman for cattle to go without even a drink of water for the journey to Sydney, but evidently nothing has been done.

Just recently we had a very warm, trying day, and then it changed to cooler conditions. On the tram route along Marion-street, Leichhardt from Haberfield, I saw two large carts full of apparently dead sheep (only two were moving, as if breathing their last); and another day a shipping butcher's cart in the same procession with them. A thought occurred to me—Do they supply the public with sheep that die in this condition? It is too horrible for words.

"CIVIL SERVANT."

Having read the paragraphs in Wednesday's "Herald" about the cruelty to the poor dumb animals which are slaughtered for our gratification, I should like to say how much I agree with them, that all women should combine to do what they can to have the poor creatures killed mercifully, if killed they must be, and not travelled long distances herded together in trucks, tortured by want of food and water, having first been hunted and terrified by dogs and slashing of whips. It is all hatefully cruel. The most potent remedy would be to have the animals killed in distant places and brought to the metropolis in refrigerating cars, which surely could be managed, but for the present I think our best plan will be to help on the Animals' Protection Society in every way we can, and strengthen their hands so that they can move in the matter. I will gladly subscribe to a fund for the purpose, and would suggest that it be given to the secretary for the above society with mention of the special purpose for which it is to be used, in the first place.

It is not only large stock that are subjected to needless suffering before being killed, for it is said that poultry that are being prepared for market are plucked alive, and killed most cruelly, because, forsooth, the public prefer them with the heads on, and unblemished. It would be a good deed to inquire into this matter, and see if such cruelty is really being practised.

HARPALIUM.

Re letter signed Ada A. Hammon, in "Herald" of 20th instant, the suggestion of a public meeting on behalf of this most worthy cause is an excellent one. A collection taken up in the hall where the meeting is held would give an impetus in the right direction. This is no new thing. Every summer brings forth pathetic letters in the daily papers. I can only trust that this is the nucleus of a great national movement to place things on such a footing that they will not drift back again to callous indifference and hopeless apathy. In the transit of stock on the New South Wales railways there are three grave errors—1st, owners should see that stock are rested, fed, and watered before trucking; 2nd, the numbers placed in the trucks want checking by a responsible person; 3rd, water on the journey. Most of the suffering centres round this hideous journey. It seems a monstrous thing, and as if we were a non-civilised race here, to have, through the medium of the press, to ask for water for travelling beasts. The saleyards at Homebush are of the most primitive description; shade is badly needed. The cost of pepper trees would not amount to the number of cattle dying of heat apoplexy on a blazing summer day, falling down and trampled on in their agony, and the animals killed and fevered meat sold to the public.

At last something practical is being done with regard to suffering stock (thanks to the women). Mr. Lindsay Thompson brought up the subject at the Vaucluse Council, and a public meeting is to be organised in Sydney. This is a step in the right direction. May I make a plea for the horses coming from Woolloomooloo Bay up those steep hills into William-street, Darlinghurst, laden with wool and other heavy loads, struggling to get along, and when the roads are wet, slipping, and still making great efforts to do their duty? Cannot more horses be used and so lessen the burden?

On Friday last was held a meeting of the Animals' Protection Society with the object of forming a sub-committee of lady members to consider what can be done for the suffering stock. May I call to notice the secretary's emphasis on (1)—The inadequacy of the law, which is often the cause of prolonged suffering through giving it into nobody's power to act—if even the Abattoir Board sometimes does act in an extremity it does so only at the risk of prosecution—and which often, when prosecutions by the Animals' Protection Society are successful, makes the maximum penalty absurdly small, and of slight deterrent effect (often the judge has no power to refuse the option of a fine); (2) the inadequacy of the railway system, which, by its delays and insufficiency of trucks, in many cases forces on stockowners and officials only alternatives of cruelty. These facts point to the need of pressure on the Government to amend the laws, and of still more pressure to bring about that far more difficult amendment of the railway system. Government action rests on public opinion. Public opinion can be stirred only by an organised movement. But that it is not impossible to arouse public interest (and of a practical kind) is proved by the statement of a lady member at the A.P.S. meeting that in not much more than an hour's office-to-office collecting she received over £8. It was a pity that more did not know of this meeting. Another meeting to discuss the subject will be held at Mrs. Blaxland's flat, Canala Flats, Macleay-street, to-morrow, and we hope that all who sympathise will not only come themselves, but induce others, too, to come.

THE LURKING SHADOW.

CHAPTER XX.—Continued.

By the time they reached the Pike House, Eva was in possession of the main details of Naiada's love story—which amounted, really, to listening to the mournful confession of a flirt who had at last been caught in her own toils.

Eva had always realised that her friend was a flirt, and she had often taken her to task upon the subject. And Naiada had received her scoldings with a solemn expression upon her dainty fairylike face, her eyes all the while glistening with mirth and suppressed laughter. The only result of it had been that Eva in the end had realised how utterly impossible it was to make any impression upon so irresponsible a being.

Perhaps it was because Naiada was so irresponsible, so much a law to herself, that people were always ready to forgive her her transgressions. Eva was no exception to the rule. She had known Naiada for a good many years now, since, indeed, they were comparatively small girls.

They had met for the first time at a sort of fashionable school in London, where Eva had been deposited, for a few months only, while her father was abroad—travelling further afield and for a longer period than was his wont.

Sir Robert Gale, too, at this time, was absent upon one of those exploring expeditions which kept him away from home for years together, so if Naiada had not made friends among the other girls she would probably have had to spend her holidays at school, for her mother had long since been dead, while her half-brothers were at their own school, with no home to return to any more than had this sister.

It was, then, generally with one or another of her schoolmates that Naiada passed her vacations, and as a great friendship quickly sprung up between her and Eva, that series of visits to the Pike House which had been continued regularly ever since had its beginning.

The two girls were drawn to each other, perhaps, by the sheer contrast of their natures. Eva, straightforward and direct in all her dealings, would as soon have thought of carrying on a flirtation, such as Naiada admittedly did, as of telling a lie or striking a secret blow. Naiada, on the contrary, had but small regard for the truth when equivocation suited her book better—and all that could be said in her defence was that she was never ashamed of what she had done or said, but always turned her palpable crimes into an object of mirth.

And Eva liked her friend none the less, though she was aware of these failings; aware of them, however, to a modified degree only. She did not think that Naiada had it in her to inflict real pain, regarding her as a butterfly creature to whom much had to be forgiven for her very beauty and love of sunshine.

"If Naiada had had a mother to look after her she would have been different," Eva often thought. "That is what she has missed—mothering."

Naiada would never speak of her mother, who was supposed to have died when she was quite a tiny child. Eva had realised vaguely that there was some sort of a mystery attached to the subject, and so she had wisely avoided it.

And now Naiada's confession came as a painful shock, for in her trouble the girl blurted out all manner of things which Eva had never so much as dreamed of.

"I couldn't help men falling in love with me," sobbed the penitent; "they were always doing it, and I liked to make them think that I cared too. In a way I did, and that's the extraordinary part of it—I never thought till now that I should care for one man only, and that all the others would mean nothing to me—absolutely nothing."

She rubbed her eyes with a dainty little lace-edged handkerchief, and then resumed: "I liked men until they began to talk of marriage, but I never could bear the idea of that. Oh, I know, Eva, you must think me a horrid little heathen; you who are quite orthodox in your views, and who have been brought up to think that a husband and—and—several howling children tugging at your skirts and being about the place when they are not wanted are the true aim and object of every woman's existence. But I could never see that myself. To me marriage always seemed to mean the end of love, and maternity—oh, you can't think how I hated the very idea of maternity!"

She shuddered as she spoke. She knew that she must be horrifying Eva almost beyond words, yet, perversely, and like the penitent who delights in flagellation, she continued, sparing herself nothing, making herself out worse, perhaps, than she really was. The state of mind she revealed was quite beyond the understanding of the pure, white-souled girl who was her companion.

"But Naiada, darling Naiada"—Eva's voice shook a little as she spoke—"you have given up all those horrible views now that you have really fallen in love, haven't you? To my mind," she added simply, "there is nothing more beautiful than the union of man and woman for life, sharing their joys and their troubles, and"—she pressed her hands together and a slight blush suffused her cheeks—"if they should have children, oh, then, I think they are doubly blessed."

She spoke with all the simple purity of her nature—the purity which Naiada utterly failed to understand.

"I can't say that I'm converted," persisted Naiada, stubbornly. "I'd far sooner go through life just as I am, sipping a little honey here and there, and happy in the knowledge that people love me and think me good to look at. Oh"—she pressed her hands passionately to her brow—"when I get old and my beauty goes—such as it is—I should like to shut myself up somewhere out of sight of the world, so that no one could see me and be sorry for me; and that's what I hate about marriage; the man you love must be with you all the time and watch you—watch, as the wrinkles come into your face, and your eyes grow tired and lose their brightness, and your figure goes, and you feel that your step is growing heavy because of the very burden of your life. Oh, if you knew how I hate the thought, how I hate it!"

She spoke with an intensity of passion, her lithe limbs quivering with emotion, her bosom heaving. Never before had Eva seen her thus.

"But you tell me, dear, that you have really fallen in love at last," said Eva, very gently. "Don't you want to marry the man you love?"

"I am ready to do anything—anything—to win him back," returned Naiada, fiercely. "You see, at first I treated him like all the others; I never dreamed that I should grow to care so deeply. It was a little more serious though, for we were engaged in a sort of way, not exactly formally, for the engagement had never been announced in the papers, or of course you would have known of it, Eva. But my father knew, and was fond of the man, and used to tell me that he'd be very angry if I treated him as I treated the others. But all the while I never meant to marry—I didn't—I didn't—I thought I could get out of it easily enough when the time came; but I suppose all the while I was drifting into love without really knowing it."

She clenched her thin fingers into the palms of her hands, letting the nails bite the flesh. "And then he lost all his money," she went on, her voice hardly rising above a whisper. "And I suppose any ordinary girl would have wanted to marry him at once out of sheer sympathy. But I didn't—I saw the hatefulness of poverty. Even my father admitted that it was best for both of us that we should part. Clive—did I tell you his name? It's Clive Hartridge, and he's nephew to the old hermit of Swaneham Court close to you. Clive wanted me to go to America with him, where he had an opening offered to him on a ranch. Can you imagine me upon a ranch, Eva; can you imagine me struggling with poverty and trying to make a home look bright when I had no brightness in my heart; when life had lost its colour for me? That is what I told him. It was the same sort of thing that I had told to others, but somehow I had never felt ashamed of myself before, and I was ashamed now. He went away, oh, so sadly, and he said that we must never meet again, and I knew that he was disappointed in me; that, from his point of view, I had failed him—failed him utterly; and though I still believed in myself, knowing my own nature, I somehow felt, as soon as he had gone, that with him to teach me I might see things in a different light. And I cried, and it seemed so strange, for I can't remember when I have shed tears before for anything but sheer temper."

"And that is how things stand to-day, is it?" queried Eva. She passed her arm sympathetically about Naiada's waist, drawing her closer to her in the narrow confines of the car. "Dear, is there no chance of bringing you together again? Would you go out to America with him now if you had the chance?"

"There is no need for that," declared the other. "He is not going. The friend who had offered him the opening met with an accident in the London streets, and was killed upon the spot. And, meanwhile, my godfather, Charles Denham, seeing how miserable I was, made me a wonderful offer—an offer that could bring us together again if only Clive would accept it. It meant, too, that we could get married at once, and, knowing that, I was still glad! So you can guess, Eva, how much in love I really was—how much in love I am."

MR. LISTER-LISTER'S PAINTINGS.

A FINE COLLECTION.

Mr. W. Lister-Lister, president of the Royal Art Society of New South Wales, is now exhibiting a representative collection of nearly three-score water-colour paintings at Messrs. Anthony Hordern and Sons' Fine Art Gallery. Only three or four of these works have been previously exhibited, and visitors will accordingly be surprised at the energy and talent thrown into the task of reproducing nature in so many beautiful and varied forms. As a landscapist, or in depicting scenes upon the coast, or occasionally at sea, this artist generally prefers to depict the serenity of nature, and this characteristic is felicitously expressed in the new collection.

Yesterday afternoon a number of people assembled for the official opening, when Mr. R. S. Gillett (managing director) introduced Sir James R. Fairfax, whose presence he regarded as an endorsement of Messrs. Anthony Horderns' policy. In their efforts to promote Art, with a capital A, they did not forget three other capital letters—"L. S. D."—as essential to any kind of permanent success, and on this basis they were pushing on with their experiment of encouraging the appreciation of fine pictures by bringing such frequently before the public.

Sir James R. Fairfax then remarked:—"On looking round this collection of pictures I think we may congratulate Mr. Lister-Lister. We have here landscapes gathered from our Australian scenery, bearing out the opinion expressed by a recent distinguished visitor that the people who say that 'Australia is ugly are either without eyes or possessed of jaundiced minds.' He instanced places and scenery which are very beautiful, and those who take the trouble to travel in search of beautiful mountains, rivers, and trees will not find the country wanting in subjects in great variety. In some places may be found a grandeur and beauty not easily surpassed, even where British and European artists spend their time and skill. The Australian student will find no lack of subjects to exercise his knowledge and practice of his art, so as to earn the encouragement of those who wish to have examples of local scenery by local artists. I would not venture to express an opinion on the general progress of art in this country. Some who are supposed to know say it is standing still; others say the work of artists is improving. One thing we must be pleased with, that is, that men who began their study here, and have spent some years at work in the old country, have been so successful as to have their pictures accepted at the principal exhibitions in England and France. Whether we can put this success to the preliminary teaching in Australia, or to years of learning and hard work in the British or foreign schools, is a question for teachers and artists here to say. Whether a student succeeds or fails must depend upon his hard and constant work, for you cannot read the lives of great painters and great masters from centuries past to the present time without learning that art is a very hard master, and this must be recognised by those who talk of establishing an Australian school.

"While we admire and rejoice in beautiful landscapes, such as Mr. Lister-Lister favours us with, students must remember there are other departments of art, ideal and historic, by which they should aim to make records and make themselves famous.

"Though the subject of art would be fascinating dealt with now by one more competent than myself, I am reminded that besides the pleasure of seeing Mr. Lister-Lister's pictures there is also an element of business. I am sure we may congratulate him upon the venture, and hope that the result may be in every way most satisfactory. I have very much pleasure in declaring the exhibition open.

The most important works in the collection are those first catalogued, amongst which "The Winding Creek, Berry," is so deep and rich in tone, and so strong in treatment, that it might hang beside an oil of similar dimensions without loss. This scene is purely pastoral in its charm. The stream is screened in the foreground by rushes, the tranquil water reflecting the tints of foliage and sky, and cattle browsing within the shadow of the noble trees on the further side. The handling of the cloud-filled sky is especially fine. Mr. Lister's recent stay on the Blue Mountains has yielded him some great subjects, which he treats without definite emotion, perhaps, but with a breadth of style which does not preclude fidelity of detail. This will be observed in the fine painting, "The Shadow Across the Valley." The foreground shows the footpath to the Bridal Veil at Govett's Leap, with dark blue-grey shadows passing over the myriad tree-tops in the Grose Valley, the stems of these distant trees cleverly indicated. The same effect of aerial spaces and vastness is repeated in "The Bridal Veil," hanging whitely against the darkly shadowed cliff, which emerges further on beetling, brown, and weatherstained, into the fuller light of day. "Midday at Jervis Bay" is an Australian forest scene, treated with delicacy and charm of colouring. The polished white surface of a giant gum reflects the green shadows of the foliage around, and in the open glade a timber-jinker, perfectly drawn, with every detail carefully put in, betrays the occupation of woodmen at tea in the shadow, their ox-team still deeper in the bush. The scene has been idealised, and yet remains true to nature. "While the Billy Boils" illustrates the solemnity and the serenity of an Australian forest in the same district, a grand white gum soaring straight and strong, and all the tender poetry of the scene finely expressed, as the smoke ascends from the fire kindled in the open by some solitary pioneer. "When the Tide is Out" was exhibited at the Royal Art Society's show last year. Herein a vast stretch of smooth brown sand, broken by pools and rocks, till the far distant ripple of the ocean is reached, and with countless white-winged birds at play on the shore, owes much to the softness of the atmosphere which veils the harsh outline of the coast, and gives enchantment to the whole. In character this beautiful painting vividly suggests the Cornish coast.

COBAR MINES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I sincerely hope you will allow me space in valuable journal to criticise the reports appearing in the "Herald" of the 19th and 20th ultimo regarding the Cobar Mines I feel sure that the reporter had no knowledge or authentic report, and in publishing a leading article on an important matter like this only authentic information should be placed before the public, as it may be the ruin of many people, and also help to ruin the mining industry of New South Wales, that undoubtedly could be and should be worked on a sound commercial basis, if only a spade was called a spade, not upon lines worse than Monte Carlo. Sympathy begins at home, and the Australian speculator, as well as the oversea capitalist, has to be considered, and every publicity given to mining matters generally, and try and stay the wild cats. I am sure many speculators would like to know what has been done with the invested capital at Ardlethan, as only one of many instances. Some months ago I wrote your paper that the salvation of the Cobar Mines depended on a railway line from Cobar to Nymagee, Bobadah, and to loop on the line somewhere again about Fifield or Trundle, and I still hold to this opinion.

I have a fair amount of authentic information (1) That at the present time the likelihood of a thousand men being employed is only moonshine. Capital has been subscribed to mullock the mines, and no more. (2) The ores do not exist, as stated in your report, but, according to authentic reports and plans, the basic ores have diminished, both in quality and materially in quantity. This, in my opinion, leaves Cobar at the present time purely a smelting proposition, with vast quantities of silicious ores, a fine plant, but useless without basic ores of value, but obtainable by this railway line, and then Cobar would be better than ever for many years to come. Failing this, there is probably a few thousand tons of payable smelting ores that may be taken out and pay a company, and then put the fine plant on the scrap heap. I only hope that the Government will get all authentic information, and save the latter from coming to pass, and do all in its power to foster this great mineral belt of country. No progressive Government has anything to fear from building this line from a broad financial standpoint. Besides the mineral resources, the line will open up large areas suitable for closer settlement. The failure of Cobar means much at the present time to many worthy workers, citizens, and families, and numerous business people, and it would be a serious calamity for the State and the mining industry generally. The resources are only scratched, mainly through want of railway communication to prospect and develop it.

I am, etc.,
C. H. DAVIS,
Secretary A.M.A., Sydney.

[The statements respecting Cobar made in our issues of the 19th and 20th inst are facts, and come from men who know the exact situation.]

I met a little cottage girl,
A cold was in her head,
Her hair was lank and out of curl—
"Tish-oo!" the poor child said.
I knew her parents, so I said
(And no words could be truer),
Her health will soon return again
With Woods' Great Peppermint Cure.—Advt.

MOORE COLLEGE.

ANNUAL COMMEMORATION.

MEN FOR THE MINISTRY.

Moore College is claimed to be the oldest and largest Theological College in Australia. It was opened in 1856 at Liverpool, but was moved to its present site in 1889. Since its establishment about 400 students have passed through the college, and at the annual commemoration held yesterday there was a good muster of present students, as well as several ex-students and a large number of clergy and visitors.

The Archbishop of Sydney presided, and Principal Davies, in presenting the annual report, said that 16 students were in residence, while 50 persons in all received instruction at the college. Special instruction was given to those preparing for pastoral work in the bush, and he was able to report progress in the spiritual, intellectual, and physical life of the students. Great interest was taken in the Students' Christian Movement, and several ex-students were now in the mission field. The Walter Hall gift had freed the college from debt. The two most urgent needs of the college were a new hostel and some permanent endowment fund to secure the adequate payment of the teaching staffs, and to provide for continuity of instruction. More accommodation was needed, and the matter of the reconstruction of the college was being considered. More men to study for the ministry were urgently needed. (Applause.)

AN EDUCATED MINISTRY.

Archbishop Wright said the report was highly encouraging, showing that the principal and staff had the full confidence of the Church. Spiritual training was always the first consideration, though the education standard had been raised. For the good of the Church the very best was needed, and it was gratifying to note the closer connection with the University. He would not absolutely shut out the man without University training, though such training was very desirable. But more endowments were vitally necessary, as was also a continued supply of students for the ministry. (Applause.)

DUTY OF THE LAITY.

Bishop Stretch drew attention to the fact that while some men thought the ministry not good enough for their sons, they yet demanded a high standard in the Church. It was said that nowadays a man could not preach the old-fashioned Gospel without being a fool or a fraud. He denied that absolutely. (Applause.) The Church of England was never afraid of thought. They were the freest thinkers in the world. (Applause.)

The senior student, Mr. D. Haultain, briefly addressed the meeting.

After the meeting Principal and Mrs. Davies entertained a number of guests in the college grounds, those present including the Archbishop of Sydney, the Bishop of Newcastle, Bishop Stone Wigg, Judge Backhouse, the Dean of Sydney, Canon Vaughan, Archdeacon D'Arcy Irvine, Archdeacon Spencer, Sir William M'Millan, Mr. G. F. Earp, M.L.C., Dr. Radford, Mr. H. E. Barff, Miss Macdonald, Mr. Justice Sly, Mr. Justice Pring, Principal Harper, Professor Macintyre, Mr. J. Ashton, M.L.C., Professor Woodhouse, Canon Charlton, Professor Irvine, Canon Bellingham, Canon Martin, Canon Hey Sharp, Rev. W. F. Wentworth Shields, Canon Archdall, Dr. Digges la Touche, Judge Docker, Mr. Justice Harvey, Professor Wilson, Mr. Gordon Wesche, Dr. Trindall, Dr. Brady, Mr. Meredith Atkinson, and many visitors.

INDUSTRIAL MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

(Before Mr. G. C. Addison, Chief Industrial Magistrate.)

HOTELKEEPER FINED.

Mary Doyle, of the Royal Edward Hotel, Forbes-street, Redfern, was charged with a breach of the award of the Domestic Group No. 1 Board, in failing to pay a class B waitress the minimum weekly wage of 17s 6d.

Inspector Lynch appeared for the complainant, the Minister for Labour and Industry; and Mr. W. H. Drew for the defendant. A plea of guilty was entered, and it was stated that the girl received 15s a week.

Inspector Lynch said that it appeared to him that the girls ran the establishment, and worked the hours that they pleased. Award hours were not observed. The award had been in force a month.

Mr. Drew said that defendant did not know the award was in force.

An order was made against defendant for 10s, with 17s costs.

Another charge against the same defendant was of failing to pay the overtime rate of time and a half to the same waitress. It was stated that the girl worked 63 hours in a week, and no overtime was paid.

A penalty of 5/, with 17s costs, was imposed.

There were further charges of failing to pay a class B female cook, over 18 years of age, the minimum weekly wage of £1 11s 6d, and of not allowing the same cook one full day off in a week.

Inspector Lynch said that the cook was paid £1 a week. A fortnight's holiday on full pay had been given her since his inspection.

Penalties of 15s, with 16s costs, and 7s, with 16s costs, were imposed.

For failing to keep correctly-written time and pay sheets, the same defendant was fined 15s, with 6s costs.

TIME AND PAY SHEETS.

Giovanni Picone, trading with others as Picone Bros., 185 and 194 Enmore-road, Enmore, was charged with failing to keep correctly-written time and pay sheets.

A plea of guilty was entered. Inspector Davis, for the prosecution, said that the sheets showed incorrect hours that two employees had worked.

MILKMEN'S HOLIDAYS.

The New South Wales Fresh Food and Ice Company, Ltd., Harbour-street, Sydney, was charged with a breach of the Food Supply and Distribution, No. 2 Group, No. 5 Board Award, in failing to allow a person other than a milk receiver, pasteuriser, and taster, employed in the milk industry, two consecutive full days' holiday per month; or in the alternative every Wednesday, from not later than 10 a.m.

A plea of guilty was entered, and Mr. Ogilvie, for the defendant company, said that the matter of holidays was a difficult one, and the company tried not to deprive the men of them. The milk, however, had to be delivered each day.

A fine of £2, with 16s costs, was imposed.

There was a second and similar charge against the same company, in respect of another employee. The penalty imposed was £2, with 16s costs.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

The following Public Service appointments have been approved by the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council:—Mr. J. F. Woolnough, as a member of the local Land Board, Grafton; Professor Frederick A. Todd, as a member of the Board of Examiners for the award of intermediate and leaving certificates, vice Professor MacCallum, resigned; Mr. H. E. Barff, as a member of the Bursary Endowment Board, vice Professor MacCallum, resigned; Dr. J. English, as an appointed member of the Yass Licensing Court; Dr. E. Neumann, as Government medical officer at Manildra; the Rev. W. P. Best to act as Church of England chaplain, Armidale Gaol; the Rev. P. J. Moore, as Roman Catholic chaplain, Parramatta Gaol; Dr. C. J. Fallon, as medical officer in connection with the medical inspection of schools; Mr. A. G. A. Flower, clerk, as assistant book-keeper, Department of Public Works; Mr. V. B. Cox, as Crown land agent, Nowra; Mr. W. Armitage, as superintending inspector of factories and shops and industrial inspector, Department of Labour and Industry; Mr. F. M. Ryan, as clerk, Public Trustee's office, Department of the Attorney-General and of Justice; Mr. J. H. King, as an additional member of the Public School Board for the sub-district of St. Leonards, vice Mr. John Carter, resigned.

TINY RED SPOTS ALL OVER BODY.
28 Jarvie-street, E. Brunswick, Vic.—"When my little girl was 10 months old her skin became affected. Tiny red spots appeared all over the body, and in spite of various treatments rapidly grew worse until the spots were nearly the size of a shilling. She was very cross and could not sleep of nights, and used to scratch herself until her little body bled. This continued for over two months, and we were at our wits' end what to do to ease her. This complaint puzzled my elderly relatives and friends, and my chemists recommended me one thing after another, without success.
"Some time ago I determined to give the Cuticura Remedies a trial. After two or three applications of the Cuticura Ointment I noticed the skin looked more soft and less inflamed, and at the end of three weeks the spots had completely disappeared, leaving the skin beautifully soft and clear, and I now can say she is completely cured—thanks to the wonderful Cuticura Remedies." (Signed) Mrs. E. Holmes, Oct. 8, 1912.
Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. T., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," Herald Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Faraday.—1. You can obtain details of the Hawkesbury College egg-laying competition by writing to the Under-Secretary, Department of Agriculture. The poultry expert at Adelaide will send you a report of the last one held in South Australia. The detailed reports of the Victoria and Queensland competitions are not yet published. A letter to the Departments of Agriculture of the above States will secure them when ready. 2. The book you mention is a Government publication.

R.B., Emu Plains.—1. The symptoms mentioned point to an early stage of roup. Wash the bird's head daily in warm water, into which a little disinfectant has been mixed, and dry thoroughly with a soft cloth. 2. The Leghorn cockerel which has commenced to crow and developed other adult tendencies will probably not grow to the normal size of that breed, and the bulk of Leghorns are already small enough without breeding from diminutive specimens.

Wharepaka.—The galvanised iron houses, open-fronted, will suit excellently, and many poultry farmers use them. The other material mentioned has some advocates, but the iron has most advantages.

Doubtful.—The birds have roup in a most serious form, and unless extreme measures are adopted it may go through the whole flock. The ailing ones should be removed from the general flock, and placed in some enclosure. The heads and faces should be washed daily with warm water, to which add a few drops of disinfectant. A few drops of kerosene should be syringed into the nostrils and cavity in the roof of the mouth. If any bird does not respond to this simple treatment, it will be better to destroy it.

Percival-road.—It will not improve the laying qualities to cross the breeds, but most likely the reverse. If the White Leghorns have proved the best layers, mate a good healthy, vigorous one-year-old male bird to hens of the same age, or better still two-year-old ones. If your birds are not noted layers, secure a male bird from some good breeder.

K.F.—Growing birds, particularly cockerels, occasionally develop abscesses on the breastbone, from the size of a marble to that of a golf ball. An incision should be made, the wound afterwards being syringed with warm water, and dried. It will soon heal up. Various causes are assigned for the trouble.

W.W.—From the vague description given of the ailment it would be difficult to determine the nature; but possibly vertigo. You give no particulars how the birds are fed and otherwise managed.

Hatcher.—For your pen of 11 Leghorn hens one healthy male bird is sufficient, and you will get as good fertility as from the system you mention.

The second sale of purebred poultry by the Poultry Farmers' Co-operative Society was held at the firm's rooms on Wednesday last. The collection of fowls was superior in both quality and numbers to that offered at the first sale, while the buyers were more numerous. Wyandottes, Leghorns, and Orpingtons had most call. Birds of the respective varieties which showed much merit fetched really good prices. Pullets likely to soon lay were in greatest demand.

Poultry farmers who propose visiting the Hawkesbury College on conference day, June 10, should communicate with the Under-Secretary for Agriculture, if they wish to avail themselves of concession tickets. Prizes of two guineas and one guinea are offered for the best papers on any branch of the industry. The winning paper will be read, discussed, and afterwards put into circulation by the Department of Agriculture.

Some time ago a deputation waited on the Minister for Agriculture to protest against a proposal to increase the weights of some of the breeds competing at the future egg-laying competitions at the Hawkesbury College, and the Minister promised that the matter would receive attention. At the last meeting of the committee held at the college Mr. Hadlington submitted a scale for the various breeds, which was largely adopted, and no one can now complain of any severity.

The weights for the respective breeds at time of entering the competitions are to be as follows:—Orpingtons and Plymouth Rocks 5lb each; Wyandottes, Langshans, Minorcas, and Rhode Island Reds, 4lb; Sussex, 4½lb; and Leghorns, 3½lb. The English poultry standard for adults of the above breeds are:—Plymouth Rocks, 8lb to 10½lb; Orpingtons, 8lb; Wyandottes, Langshans, Minorcas, and Sussex, 7lb. The American standard for Rhode Island Reds is: Hens, 6½lb; pullets, 5lb.

The poultry expert of South Australia forwards an exhaustive pamphlet on the egg-laying competition, which concluded in that State on March 31. There were 160 pens, or 960 birds, competing, but owing to the fact that the eggs were under the stipulated weight at the end of three months, a number of pens were returned to their owners, leaving 900 birds to complete the term. Unlike the Hawkesbury College reports, the results are not tabulated in the order of merit, which is confusing to readers. In a paragraph it is stated that E. M'Kenzie, of Victoria, won in the Leghorn section, and in the heavy breed section the first four prizes went to breeders in other States. As to who these breeders are, or to what State they belonged, the report is silent, as no addresses are given. The poultry expert says a win at Parafield is worth a hundred pounds. It may be stated that D. Kenway, of this State, won in the heavy breed section, with Orpingtons, the six birds laying 1222 eggs.

The schedule of the Poultry Club of New South Wales is now ready, and embraces almost two hundred classes for poultry; pigeons and cage birds being also well provided for. The prize money is good, and there are numerous cups and trophies offered. Messrs. Godley, Craft, M'Donnell, Forster, Collard, Watkins, Plumb, and Godfrey judge poultry; Messrs. W. H. Smith and W. C. Forster pigeons; Mr. J. G. Miller canaries; and Mr. H. E. Pier cage birds. Entries close with the hon. secretary, Mr. W. H. Tombs on Saturday next.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

F.T. (Newtown).—Thanks for report.

W. H. (Melbourne).—Much obliged.

*Correspondence for this column must bear the writer's name and address.

NOTES.

Mr. Sewell, of Sydney, has sent two German sheep dogs to Mr. Sabiel, of Apia, Samoa.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies, of Walcha, have lately visited the principal silky Australian Yorkshire kennels in and about Sydney. Mrs. Davies has joined the club for those breeds, and so has Miss Crosse, also of Walcha.

Mr. F. W. Taylor, hon. secretary of the S.S.Y. and A.T. Club, writes that the club's social evening on the 18th prox. promises to be successful. He states also that the club show will be held on September 26, and that prize schedules will be out next month.

INTERSTATE TERRIER SHOW.

NEW SOUTH WALES SUCCESSES.

The recently formed Victorian Fox and Irish Terrier Club has made an Australian record. At its combined open show, held in Melbourne last Friday and Saturday, 390 entries were received, represented by 120 dogs.

In the smooth fox-terrier section the successes of exhibitors from New South Wales were remarkable. In the dog classes five first prizes, five seconds, and three thirds come to this State. The fortunate winners are: H. V. King (Waratah), with Mossgiel Taraban, first in Australian and limit; F. Roberts (Gladesville), first in novice puppy and junior, with Ivanhoe Result. Mr. Roberts also got three seconds with Ivanhoe Rare One, and one with Ivanhoe Rivals All.

Dr. I. Ham (Ipswich, Q.) secured the open dog award with Glendon Duke, who was bred by Mr. H. Moses, of Ashfield.

In the bitch classes, J. C. Wood (Newcastle) won the Australian limit and open classes with Newcastle Wattle: the runner-up in each of these classes was R. J. Wilson's (Sydney) Duncraggan Dalliance. F. Roberts (Sydney) was third in limit and open with Ivanhoe Radiance. Victoria scored in the younger classes with C. Orr's Niphetos Snowdrift and B. Howlett's Day Lily, who were first and second in novice and puppy. Watson and Dodds (Vic.) won with Riverton Beauty in junior. The brace class went to J. C. Wood (Newcastle), and the team class to F. Roberts (Gladesville).

In the wire-hairs, Sydney had but one representative—W. Paterson's Hazelmere Haldane, who could only score two third awards. Murch and Curtin (S.A.) "scooped the pool," their Maltravers of Gilberton won puppy, junior, Australian, and limit, and Hard Nut (imp.) won for them in the open class. The South Australians also won everything in the bitch section. Murch and Curtin's Marguerite of Paignton scored in puppy, junior, Australian, and limit, and their Hawes Sting (imp.) was the open winner. They also took the brace and team prizes.

With Irish terriers the Victorians recovered lost prestige. Captain Garland, with Barney, won the novice, puppy, junior, and Australian. W. Dash won limit with Eldner Ted, and C. L. Hewitt and W. Dash took the open with their recent importation, Musbury Diable. J. White (N.S.W.) could only get v.h.c. with Roscrea Wayfarer in two classes; C. G. Stevenson (Q.) was unsuccessful with Retort.

C. L. Hewitt's Rothwell Peggy won all her classes till she was beaten in Australian and open by W. Dash's Eldner Tallem.

The special for the best fox-terrier in the show of either sex was won by J. C. Wood (Newcastle), with his bitch Newcastle Wattel. Hard Nut (S.A.) was the best wire-hair of the show. Mr. W. Houghton, of Sydney, made all the awards.

"Dear Sirs,—With great pleasure I send you an account of the wonderful cure of my little daughter. She was two years of age last January. The following month she was seized with whooping cough, and had it for three months, when she was prostrated with pneumonia for sixteen weeks. She fell away to a mere frame, and was given up by the doctors. Having heard of your wonderful remedy, HYPOL, I resolved to try it; she had not finished one bottle when we saw a distinct change. She is now running about, a fine, healthy child.—Yours truly,

"To have your hair stained with so-called harmless hair stains, to have it dyed (stains and dyes are the same), or to use restorers upon it is to kill the hair entirely, for stains, dyes, and restorers are poisons, and very, very vicious poisons at that." This serious authoritative statement was made by no less a person that Dr. Von Lehr, the Anglo-German Scientist, who has just given the world what we have waited many, many weary years for—a cure for grey hair. "Restorers contain lead," continues the Doctor, "and dyes contain either lead or silver. Hair stains are just hair dyes. They burn up the hair until it is like dry grass; it falls, it crumbles into a thousand pieces, and finally the scalp becomes bald." Surmanol, Dr. Von Lehr's cure for grey hair, therefore, is doubly welcome, for no hair is too grey, too white, too faded to be cured by it, and once it is cured, that is the end of the greyness. Greyness is caused by the weakness of the glands in the scalp that supply the hair with its colour. Surmanol builds up and strengthens these glands, so that the greyness is banished.

GREY HAIR CURED—AT LAST.

A fortnight after starting to use Surmanol you see the precious colour creeping, creeping, creeping through every grey thread, until, in quite a short time, every trace of the greyness has gone. And it is gone for ever, because, you see, every day, every hour, month after month, year after year, these colour glands are pumping, pumping, pumping colour—rich, healthy colour—through the hair, and thus greyness is quite impossible. This is grand news for men and women folk—the best of news, in truth, for now there'll be no need to use messy, poisonous dyes, and to have one's healthy hair stained with miserable, wretched hair stains that will kill it, and burn it up, until it is like twisted, broken grass. We shall now CURE our Grey Hair with Surmanol. It is 5/ (post free, 5/9) from The Edgeworth Laboratories, Hoffnung's-chambers, 1st floor, Pitt-street, Sydney, near G.P.O., N.S.W. When writing, describe your hair troubles fully, and mention the original colour of your hair.

N.B.—Open from 9 until 6 daily, and from 9 until 9 on Friday.

ACTING SECRETARY AND REGISTERED OFFICE:
Frederick Morse Sky, F.C.P.A., 12 and 14 Loftus-street, SYDNEY.

The present issue of 30,000 Shares is for the purpose of providing capital for the erection of an enlarged manufacturing plant and for the carrying on of the manufacture, sale, and export of Sublimed White Lead.

PATENTS.

The Company holds patent rights on the process and apparatus to be used, for the following countries, in all of which the patents have been issued, except Russia, where application is pending:—
Australia, Canada, New Zealand, Belgium, France, Italy, Spain, Mexico, Chili, Austria, United Kingdom, Germany, Hungary, United States of America, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Switzerland.

PROCESS.

The reports following contain an abridged description of the process and apparatus.

It has been fully demonstrated in the operation of the existing plant (in which Sublimed Lead has been produced at the rate of 1 ton per day) that the finest grade of Sublimed White Lead can be turned out in quantity at minimum cost direct from galena ores, without loss of lead. All the necessary experimental and investigational work was completed before the existing plant was put into work. In contrast to other processes, a large margin of economy in cost is secured, labour being a minimum in consequence of the semi-automatic operation of the plant. There are no losses in inferior product, the whole output being of uniform grade. The process is a pure furnace process, and stands quite apart from various processes which have been proposed for the manufacture of lead pigments, requiring wet treatment of metallic lead and other chemical reactions. In the Banes process the only raw materials required are lead ore and fuel, and the ore is treated in the raw state, without being first reduced to metal, the whole of the lead contained in the ore being converted into pigment.

PAST OPERATIONS.

The output of the existing plant has been distributed amongst various well-known paint consumers and private users, and some of the testimonials received as to its qualities are appended.

Balance Sheets may be perused upon personal application to the Company's Secretary at the Registered Office, 12-14 Loftus-street, Sydney. At this date the total liabilities are something under £900, inclusive of a temporary Bank Overdraft of £800 guaranteed by the Directors. Without taking into consideration the substantial amount expended in securing the numerous patent rights mentioned herein, nor the admittedly great prospective value of same, there are tangible assets acquired in carrying on operations up to the present time (Land, Buildings, Plant, Ore, etc.) for realisation against this liability.

THE PRODUCT.

The dry Sublimed Lead, which is produced almost instantaneously by this unique process, is conspicuous for its extreme fineness, evenness of grain, and absence of crystals. [illegible] is at once in a condition for mixing with oil, without any of the tedious and costly intermediate operations necessary with ordinary dry white lead. Users of the Sublimed Lead speak highly of its fine grain, covering power, and freedom from chalking under special conditions. On account of its chemical composition, it has but little injurious effect on colours ground in with it. The want of permanency in chrome greens and yellows, Prussian blue, and various organic colours, so well known in ordinary paint, and resulting from the interaction between the colour medium and the Lead Carbonate, is almost eliminated. (See Professor Holley on Lead and Zinc Pigments, Pages 118, 119). It forms an ideal protective coating for Iron and Steel, in which respect it is superior to red lead. In America Sublimed Lead finds a large and rapidly extending field in railroad and structural Iron and Steel work. It dries readily with a hard, glossy, impervious surface, without the additions of turps or patent dryers. It withstands the effects of weather, sea water, smoke, and acid fumes, etc., to a much greater extent than ordinary white lead. The covering power is 30 per cent. greater than that of ordinary white lead.

The above statements are substantiated by the complete examination of the product made by Mr. F. A. Eastaugh, A.R.S.M., R.G.S., etc., of the Sydney University, who concludes an exhaustive report in the following terms:—"I find that the product from your process is very similar to Sublimed White Lead, which has a high reputation, and that it is in every way suitable for the formation of a high-class paint for the following reasons:—

"1. Fineness and uniformity of grain.
"2. Comparative resistance of sulphur gases.
"3. Resistance to sea air.
"4. Self-drying properties.
"5. Chemical composition."

A copy of Mr. Eastaugh's Report, and also of a report by Mr. W. J. Spruson, Patent Attorney, on the process and patents, is contained in the full prospectus.

The superiority of Sublimed White Lead over Lead Carbonate is clearly shown by the following statements by Max Toch, the eminent Paint Chemist, in a lately-published work—"The Chemistry and Technology of Mixed Paints," pages 18 and 78.

"White lead (ordinary) perishes through the action of carbon dioxide in rain water.
"Zinc oxide is also attacked by carbon dioxide, but not nearly as quickly as White Lead.
Sublimed White Lead is attacked still less than Zinc Oxide or Zinc Lead.
"Sublimed White Lead possesses excellent covering and binding power.
"Within the last ten years it has come into great prominence among paint-makers. Among 100 reputable paint manufacturers in the United States 65 used Sublimed Lead.
"It produces a most excellent paint, and at the sea shore its wearing quality is superior to that of Carbonate of Lead. Sublimed White Lead as a marine or ship paint is of much value owing to its hardness of drying and imperviousness of film."

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

COST OF PRODUCTION.

On a basis of Broken Hill Concentrates, containing 67 per cent. lead, 7 per cent. Zinc, and 9oz. Silver, and costing (with Lead at £17/12/6 per ton) £10/5/5 per ton delivered at Works, Sydney, Sublimed White Lead should be produced on a commercial basis at the following cost:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Concentrates necessary to produce 1 ton White Lead equals 1 ton 2cwt 2qr 25lb at £10/5/5 per ton | £11 13 5 |
| Fuel—Converting above into White Lead | 0 16 4 |
| Wages—Converting | 0 12 0 |
| Oil for Mixing | 4 10 11 |
| Wages—Mixing and Packing | 0 4 0 |
| Containers | 2 0 0 |
| Depreciation of Plant | 0 6 8 |
| | £20 3 4 |

The above are from figures supplied by Messrs. Thomas Davis and Co. and Messrs. Vigars and Sky (Public Accountants), whose data and calculations are available for inspection. The estimate is based on actual purchases of concentrates in 20-ton lots in what is considered a dear market, and it has been ascertained that much more advantageous arrangements can be made for supplies of galena ore and concentrates.

The expenses of manufacture included above are ascertained from working the present plant, and are believed to be sufficient to more than cover the cost of working the plant to be installed. (See Report of Mr. G. C. Gashler, F.I.T.S., Vienna, prepared at the request of the late Mr. Marcus Clark, in full prospectus.)

COST OF DISTRIBUTION.

To the above figures must be added the cost of administration and of marketing the product, which should be fully covered, on an output of 750 tons per annum, at £3 per ton. Thus the total cost delivered would be £23 3s 4d per ton.

SELLING PRICE.

When the estimates of cost, etc., were prepared, the landed cost of best White Lead from London was found to be £33/9/7, based on £27 less 5 per cent. at that port. The London price of lead on 1st April, 1914, was £18/7/6 per ton, and white lead was quoted on the same date in the "Sydney Morning Herald," at 40/ per cwt. The merchant's profit has been intentionally omitted in order to keep the figures conservative.

NET PROFITS.

From the above it will be seen that the estimated profit per ton from manufacturing and trading is as follows:—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Selling Price (landed cost, duty paid, of imported Lead, without including anything for merchant's profit) | | £33 9 7 |
| Cost of manufacture (including depreciation of plant, as above stated) | £20 3 4 | |
| Cost of Administration and Distribution, as above stated | 3 0 0 | |
| | | 23 3 4 |

RETURN TO SHAREHOLDERS.

Allowing the odd 6/3 per ton as a further margin for contingencies, thus reducing the estimated net profit to £10 per ton, the annual net profit on the output of the proposed plant (750 tons per annum) should amount to £7500. As soon as the demand justified keeping both units at work, the return on capital should be more than doubled, as the same capital should suffice, but the cost of operation of the plant would not increase in anything like the same proportion as the output.

The Company holds practically the world's rights for the process, and when its outstanding advantages become known, it is anticipated that very large sums will be obtainable for the rights of the United Kingdom, America, and other manufacturing countries.

FIELD FOR OPERATIONS, AND PROSPECTS.

The market for such a product is an extensive, ever-expanding, and continuous one. The consumption of White Lead in the Commonwealth alone must be large; but, unfortunately, the imports of "Dry White Lead" are grouped with "Patent Dryers," and "White Lead ground in Oil" with "Colours ground in Liquid." The total importation for 1912, under these headings, amounted to 11,586 tons, and, although the items are not separable, the greater proportion of this quantity may be taken to be White Lead ground in Oil.

According to the "Oil and Color Trades Journal" of December, 1912, the imports of White Lead and Paints into Great Britain for the eleven months ending November 30, 1912, reached a total value of £1,762,519, and the exports for the same period to £2,980,809. In the former the White Lead alone amounted to £313,000 and Zinc White to £380,000; while in the latter, White Lead alone reached over £500,000. When it is remembered that of the remainder of this trade White Lead is the base, and that the statistics do not take into account the enormous quantities manufactured in the United Kingdom for local consumption, the potentialities of the trade will be evident.

The total capital invested in the White Lead Trade in the United States of America is £30,000,000 (thirty million pounds sterling, not dollars). The annual output (paint) is given as 200,000,000 gallons, valued at over £50,000,000 (Dun's Review, March, 1912).

Mr. A. D. Pedley, Chairman of the Company, during a recent extended trip through England and America, devoted practically the whole of his time to inquiries in the interests of the Company, and he states that certain brokers of highest standing in the trade are anxious for our business, and that a large and assured trade is awaiting us now—provided the quality of our lead is as represented.

In America he found the output of Sublimed Lead was being increased to an almost incredible extent. As the result of his investigations, Mr. Pedley is convinced that the Banes Process stands head and shoulders above other processes, and that for rapidity of treatment and saving of labour, with resultant low costs, it is unapproached.

PROPOSED PLANT.

The new plant to be erected at the outset will consist of one working unit, and one duplicate unit, each capable of turning out 750 tons of Sublimed White Lead per annum, or 1500 tons per annum if both units are put into work together. This Plant will embody still further improvements resulting from the additional knowledge and experience gained in manufacturing and giving many demonstrations with the existing plant. The total cost of the abovementioned two-unit plant, inclusive of site and buildings, has been carefully estimated at £10,000.

CONTRACTS.

The only contract affecting this issue is an agreement dated the seventh day of May, 1914, made between A. D. Pedley and others of the one part, and the Company of the other part, which document can be inspected at the office of the Company.

Mr. Banes has undertaken to act as Works Manager for a period of two years after erection of the new Plant, and will enter into an Agreement to that effect if so desired.

VALIDITY OF PATENTS.

Before the patents were applied for a very exhaustive investigation was made into the particulars of then existing methods of manufacturing Sublimed Lead. This search established the fact that the Banes invention was clearly distinguished from all the known processes by certain broad features of novelty which are the essentials of its success. Those features constitute a difference in substance, and not merely a difference in detail, between the Banes process and the known prior processes which were directed to procure similar results. As far as can be ascertained, the Banes process is the only process of manufacturing Sublimed Lead from lead ore or concentrates in which substantially all the lead contained in the ore is converted into fume and recovered as pigment. Furnace processes were known in which a portion of the lead is successfully sublimed, but an irregular product requiring subsequent separation and retreatment, involving consequent losses, is also obtained in such processes. The results of the official examinations of the patent applications in England, Germany, Austria, Hungary, Denmark, Sweden, United States, and Canada, did not disclose the existence of any prior patent affecting the substance of the Banes invention, and the claims allowed in all cases are claims on a broad basis, covering the essential feature by which the Banes process of manufacturing Sublimed Lead is at once distinguishable from all those which preceded it.

OPINION OF COUNSEL (Mr. F. Leverrier, B.Sc., K.C.).

"I have given most careful consideration to the specification and drawings of Mr. Banes' two inventions.

"The first of these relates to the manufacture of Sublimed White Lead from galena ores. The drawings of the specification and claims for this patent is a task of considerable difficulty and complexity, necessitating a thorough acquaintance with the existing processes for the production of Sublimed Lead sulphate and a clear appreciation of the forward steps taken by the patentee. The work, however, has been most thoroughly done, and cannot, in my opinion, be better. The claims have been drawn so as to cover every patentable feature of the invention. In the event of litigation and an attack on the validity of the patent, all the claims could, in my opinion, be supported. The first claim is framed on the widest possible form, and will afford ample protection against infringement.

"The second invention relates to a Blowpipe Tuyere for injecting pulverised ore into a furnace. The drawing of specifications and claims in this case is a comparatively simple matter, and has been well done in every respect."

Denman Chambers, March 20, 1911.

A FEW TESTIMONIALS, OUT OF A LARGE NUMBER, FROM USERS OF THE COMPANY'S PRODUCT.

From HANNAM'S LIMITED, Gas and Hydraulic Engineers, etc., 134 Castlereagh-street, Sydney.

"For the past ten (10) years we have been experimenting in paints to get the best results with the enamelling of our Hospital Appliances. It is of great importance that the articles, when finished, should be free from cracking or chipping, which always takes place with stove work. For the past few years we have used an enamelling process which does not require special drying.

"We have tested the sample of Amorphous White Lead which you supplied, and find it equal to any zinc or lead we have ever used in connection with this process. For the first three coats we used your lead as the foundation, and are quite satisfied with the result, as it gives what we require—a fine, white even metal surface of pure lead; and we can say that you have a White lead equal to any that we have ever used."

MORT'S DOCK AND ENGINEERING COMPANY, LIMITED, Balmain.

"Reply to your letter of the 13th instant, we beg to say that the samples of White Lead submitted for trial—considering the limited time given to test them—have given good results. There is no doubt that the lead is good, and when the plant is in full working order there should be a good demand for this locally-made article."

"The sample of your White Lead submitted to me has been thoroughly tested, and I find it possesses the following qualities:—
"1. It works well under the brush, and more easily than the ordinary White Lead.
"2. Its covering capacity is greater than that of any other paint I have used.
"3. It leaves an excellent smooth finish, which enhances its weathering capabilities.
"4. I consider the colour equal to that of the best White Lead on the market.
"5. The paint, used with raw linseed oil, dries out in about twelve (12) hours; no driers are necessary—this is an important feature.
"I consider this White Lead superior to any at present on the market, and have no hesitation in recommending it as a first-class paint.

"W. E. McDONALD, Painter, 10 Norwood-street, Petersham."

Applications for shares on the subjoined form, accompanied by 2/6 per share, may be sent to the Secretary, either direct or through any recognised channel.

BROKERAGE.

The usual Brokerage will be paid by the Company in respect of all allotments upon applications identified as coming from Members of any recognised Stock Exchange.

Allotment of the new issue of 30,000 shares will be proceeded with when in the opinion of the Directors a sufficient number of shares to warrant allotment are applied for, but should the Company not go to Allotment of the new issue all application money will be returned in full.

This advertisement contains only an abridgment of the Prospectus, copies of which may be had post free on application to the Secretary of the Company.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

IN CHAMBERS.

(Before the Chief Justice, Sir Samuel Griffith.)

NIELSON v COMMISSIONER OF PATENTS.

Mr. Flannery, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared on behalf of Matthew Montgomery Nielson, to apply to have the hearing of his appeal expedited in the case in which the New South Wales Minister for Works is the respondent. Mr. Mack, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, appeared for the Minister.

This is an action arising out of litigation between the appellant and the Commonwealth Commissioner of Patents, with the Minister for Works as the actual respondent, that has been going on for five years. On July 7, 1909, Nielson applied for letters patent for an improved septic tank, introducing a new process for the treatment of sewage matter, consisting essentially of partially fermenting the matter under anaerobic conditions. The New South Wales Minister for Works filed notice of opposition. The matter was heard by the Commissioner of Patents on April 13, 1911, who dismissed the opposition. The Minister appealed to the High Court, the case being heard by the Chief Justice and the late Mr. Justice O'Connor, the appeal being upheld, but with liberty to the patentee to apply for leave to amend his plans and specifications. On February 27, 1913, the Commissioner of Patents granted leave to amend the plans and specifications, and when they were amended he allowed all the proposed amendments except two. Against this decision Neilson lodged an appeal to the High Court, which appeal, according to the regulations, had to be lodged in the principal registry at Melbourne. The case was not reached in the November, 1913, sittings of the High Court in Melbourne, and subsequently, on application made to him in Chambers, Mr. Justice Rich made an order transferring the appeal to the Sydney list. Again the appeal was amongst those not reached, and it went back to the Melbourne list, where, for the third time, it was blocked by the cases before it on the list. It was again transferred to the Sydney list, but was again not reached at the last sittings of the High Court at Darlinghurst. It is now, however, among the first to be heard at the next Sydney sittings of the Court.

The present application was to have the appeal allowed to remain on the Sydney list, instead of being again transferred to Melbourne, to take a place low down on the Melbourne list.

On behalf of the Minister for Works, it was objected that all arrangements had been made, solicitors and a Bar engaged, in Melbourne, and that much expense had been gone to in preparation for the argument of the case in Melbourne. If the case is left in the Sydney list, it was contended, the respondent Minister would be placed at great disadvantage. Appellant contended that the appeal was certain to be heard at the July sittings of the Court, and that it was of great importance that there should be no further delay.

The Chief Justice said it would be more in keeping with the order made last year by Mr. Justice Rich if the appeal were allowed to remain in the Sydney list. He made an order that the appeal be left in the Sydney list until further ordered.

CASHMORE v RAILWAY COMMISSIONER.

Mr. Pitt, instructed by Messrs. Munro King and Dowd, appeared on behalf of William Cashmore to apply to have the security in the matter of his appeal in the action for damages against the Chief Railway Commissioner reduced to a nominal amount. It was also asked that the printing of the transcript of notes be dispensed with. Mr. Weigall, instructed by the solicitor for railways, Mr. J. S. Cargill, appeared for the Chief Commissioner for Railways.

This was an appeal arising out of the action by Cashmore, a labourer employed by the Metropolitan Board of Water Supply and Sewerage, against the Railway Department, claiming £500 for damages received in a railway carriage at Penshurst. The action was heard before Mr. Justice Sly and a jury. It was admitted that plaintiff was resting his arm on the rim of the window sill of the carriage, but contributory negligence on the part of railway servants was alleged. The jury returned a verdict for Cashmore, and awarded him £100 damages. Against this verdict the Chief Railway Commissioner appealed to the State Full Court, which set aside the verdict, and awarded costs against Cashmore.

Under the rules of the High Court Cashmore would be required to lodge £50 with his appeal from the Full Court judgment, and to have the transcript of the notes printed and bound.

Counsel for appellant said he was a poor man, and could not be expected to be able to comply with these rules. The case was of considerable importance, and it was necessary for the point of law involved to be settled permanently.

Counsel for the Chief Railway Commissioner offered no objection to the application, and the Chief Justice, by consent, made an order reducing the security to £1, and dispensing with the printing of any documents not already printed. The costs of the application are to be respondent's costs of the appeal.

SUPREME COURT.

IN BANCO.

(Before Sir William Cullen, C.J., Mr. Justice Pring, and Mr. Justice Street.)

ST. IVES TRAGEDY.

WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS APPLIED FOR.

An application was made to make absolute a rule nisi calling upon Mr. J. McKensey, Deputy S.M., and Senior-Sergeant Bowler, to show cause why they should not be prohibited from proceeding further with an order made by Mr. McKensey in the case of Thomas Edwin Brown, who was recently acquitted at the Central Criminal Court of a charge of murder.

Mr. Ralston, K.C., with Mr. A. Ralston and Mr. Macken (instructed by Messrs. McElhone and Barnes), appeared in support of the application; and Mr. Garland, K.C., and Mr. Pickburn (instructed by the Crown Solicitor) appeared for Senior-sergeant Bowler.

At the Criminal sittings, Brown was charged with the murder of Sergeant Hickey at St. Ives. He was acquitted of the charge, but as soon as he left the court he was "verbally" arrested, and charged under the Lunacy Act with being a person found "in circumstances denoting a purpose to commit an offence against the law." After his arrest, Brown was taken to the police station and charged by Senior-Sergeant Bowler. He was brought before Mr. Wilkinson, P.M., and remanded. After a further remand, he was brought before Mr. McKensey, who was sworn in as a stipendiary magistrate for the purpose of the inquiry, and committed to the Parramatta Asylum.

The grounds upon which the prohibition was asked were:—(1) That Mr. McKensey had no jurisdiction to find that Brown was not under proper care and control; (2) that the medical certificates did not comply with the Lunacy Act, 1898; (3) that Mr. McKensey had no jurisdiction to enter on an inquiry under section 6 of the Act; (4) that the judgment was against the evidence, and the weight of evidence; (5) that the magistrate was in error in saying that Brown was not under proper care and control, and that there was no evidence to show that Brown was found in circumstances denoting a purpose to commit an offence against the law.

In moving for the rule nisi, Mr. Ralston said he intended to confine himself to the common law grounds in connection with the points raised. It seemed to him, however, that sooner or later there would have to be a further investigation into the matter.

His Honor: Is this the right way to get it?

Mr. Ralston: I am instructed by the relations, and also by Brown himself, to go on with this application, though I have pointed out to them that it will not carry us much further. The matter is surrounded with difficulties, for there seem to be some omissions in the Lunacy Act. There is a provision for a preliminary inquiry by Justices who get two medical men to assist them, and make out certificates. Whatever order is made can only remain in operation 28 days. Then some relation or person interested comes forward and alleges that the person is insane.

Mr. Garland: You are quite mistaken. There are two different procedures.

Mr. Ralston: In either case these appear to be preliminary proceedings. There is also a method of holding an inquiry as to the insanity of a person. That is usually held before a lunacy Judge on a petition apparently by a relation, and the inquiry may be held either with or without a jury. The question to be decided is whether the man is able to control himself and his affairs. There does not appear, however, to be any method of procedure when the relations allege that a man is sane.

The Chief Justice: I suggested that if you wished the merits of the case investigated, it was hardly a fitting method to make the Full Court revise the evidence taken before a magistrate.

Mr. Ralston: I am not going to ask that. We wish to have an inquiry before a lunacy Judge and jury, and that would definitely settle the question once and for all. At first glance we thought it a necessary preliminary to get rid of the present order. That seems to me to be only a temporary one, and apparently it has expired.

The Chief Justice: I want to know how long the application will take, because Mr. Justice Street may not be able to sit until its conclusion if it were to take up much time. It would be, therefore, necessary to reconstitute the Court.

After further inquiries, Mr. Justice Street left the Bench, and Mr. Justice Harvey took his place.

(Before Sir William Cullen, C.J., Mr. Justice Pring, and Mr. Justice Harvey.)

Mr. Justice Pring: I have been looking into matters, and I find that the order for Brown's incarceration has expired.

Mr. Ralston: In one sense, yes.

Mr. Justice Pring: The Act says the order must only remain for 28 days. How can he be detained any longer?

Mr. Ralston: The order is being acted upon, and therefore there is something to prohibit.

Mr. Justice Pring: You are asking us for a prohibition, but the order has expired, and nothing can be done.

Mr. Ralston: Then Brown ought to be discharged at once.

Mr. Justice Pring: If you were to ask for a writ of habeas corpus it would be a different matter.

The Chief Justice: I assume that the Court will be informed under what process the applicant is detained now. If the Act says that the order expires after 28 days then there can be no detention, lawful or unlawful, under the order. That is how it appears to me.

Mr. Justice Pring: The order is dead, and there can be no prohibition.

Mr. Ralston: If the Court rules that way, and I cannot apply to have the rule made absolute, then I will apply for a rule nisi for a writ of habeas corpus. I have the affidavits ready.

Mr. Justice Pring: Then you have come prepared for this objection.

The Chief Justice: The procedure for the reception of a person into a reception-house, irrespective of whether it is based on an application to a magistrate under sections 5 or 6, or on medical certificates under section 9, is governed and his detention secured by section 18. If he has been unlawfully placed there he is either in fact sane, or else some formality in the law has not been complied with, and so the Court sees that justice is done, either under an application for release or an application for a writ of habeas corpus. In this case the order has been acted upon, and the specified time has expired, therefore the order has ceased to operate. I am of opinion that the rule nisi should be discharged.

Mr. Justice Pring and Mr. Justice Harvey concurred.

Mr. Ralston then applied for a rule nisi, asking for the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus directed to the Superintendent of Parramatta Asylum. The grounds for the application were the same as those formulated in the previous application, with one exception. That set out that Brown was illegally detained in the asylum.

Their Honors granted a rule nisi, and made it returnable on Friday next.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

ORCHARDIST'S CLAIM.

In this action Frederick Franklin, orchardist, of Liverpool, sought to recover compensation from the Commonwealth Government in respect of the resumption of 20 acres of land near Liverpool for military purposes.

The hearing of evidence was concluded on the previous day, and yesterday was occupied in hearing addresses of counsel. His Honor reserved his decision.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

A WOLLONGONG SUIT.

Wall v Finlayson and another.

Owing to the death of the wife of one of the defendants in the suit the further hearing was allowed to stand over generally.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

A PATERSON RIVER ESTATE.

Flaretty v Jones and another.

The case stated by Elizabeth Flaretty, the applicant, in a request to bring certain property known as Glen Albyn, on the Paterson River, near Vacy, under the provisions of the Real Property Act, and the case stated in reply by Clara King, of Baan Baa, and Mary Ann Jones, who had lodged caveats against the application, was concluded.

On October 17, 1911, Elizabeth Flaretty applied to have 2353 acres 1 rood 13 perches of the Glen Albyn Estate brought under the provisions of the Real Property Act; and against the application caveats had been lodged by the respondents in September last. It was agreed that the cases should be taken together, and that the decision in one should be binding on the other, both caveats being of a similar nature. When the matter was last before the Court it was decided that the issues to be tried were:—(1) Had the caveatrices documentary title to an estate in fee simple to a one-eighth part of the one-seventh share of Emily Cardow under the Crown grant and indenture referred to in the applicant's amended case. (2) Had such documentary title (if any) been extinguished by possession of the applicant, and those under whom she claimed, or any of them. It was further decided that the caveatrices should be the plaintiffs in respect of the first issue, and the applicant the plaintiff in the second issue.

Mr. Loxton, K.C., and Mr. Jordan, instructed by Mr. A. J. Grant (agent for Messrs. Hooke, Borthwick, and Co., of Taree), appeared for the applicant. There was no appearance for the caveatrices, who had given notice of discontinuance.

His Honor directed the caveats to be removed, and declared the caveatrices to be the persons finally unsuccessful.

IN DIVORCE.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

DAVIS v CLOUGH.

Mr. Young (instructed by Mr. W. Linton) applied on behalf of Vincent Davis, of Richmond, draper, who is asking the Court to nullify his marriage with Annie Clough, falsely called Davis, for permission to take the evidence of Harry Leonard Clough on commission in England.

Mr. Jaques (instructed by Mr. R. H. Levien) appeared for the respondent.

His Honor directed that a commission should issue for securing the evidence, and directed that a sum of money should be paid into court to allow the respondent to be represented before the commission.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before the Registrar, Mr. F. H. Salusbury.)

CERTIFICATE APPLICATION.

Re George William Gore. Messrs. J. M'Laughlin and Son appeared for the bankrupt. A certificate was ordered to issue, subject to a nominal suspension of one day.

SINGLE MEETING AND PUBLIC EXAMINATION.

Re Frank John Levy, otherwise Levee. Bankrupt was further examined by the official assignee and the meeting closed, and the public examination was declared concluded.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

SUBMISSION TO THE COURT.

An application was made to the Court, under section 35 (3) of the Industrial Arbitration Act of 1912, by the chairman of the Transport Group No. 5 Board.

The submissions were:—(1) Whether the Transport Group No. 5 Board has jurisdiction to hear and determine the following claims:—(1) That persons whose duty it is to receive, discharge, collect, distribute, or store goods, shall be paid not less than £2 10s per week. (2) That persons employed in parcelling, or tying up paper parcels, shall be paid not less than £2 13s per week. (3) That persons whose duty it is to open up cases shall be paid not less than £2 10s per week.

Mr. Miller appeared on behalf of the United Storemen's Union, and Mr. Kelynack (instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell) for the Warehousemen's Association of New South Wales.

After hearing argument His Honor referred the questions back to the chairman without answering them, for the board to inquire what wage shall be given, and whether they have jurisdiction to deal with the persons mentioned in the submission.

(Before Judge Edmunds.)

NOMINATION OF BOARD REPRESENTATIVE.

Mr. Bretnall, for the Solicitor for Railways, nominated Edward Joseph Doran, Tramway Traffic Superintendent, as the employers' representative on the Government Tramways Group No. 3 Board, in place of the late Mr. John Kneeshaw.

The nomination was recommended.

ELECTRICAL TRADES CASE.

An application was made by the Electrical Trades Employees' Association, and also by the Electrical Trades Union, for variation of the award of the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group No. 6 Board (State Electrical).

Mr. Rupert M'Coy appeared for the Electrical Employers' Association, and Mr. A. R. Croft for the Employees' Union.

Mr. M'Coy commenced his address, and had not concluded when the Court rose.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT.

Connelly v Fish.

The hearing was concluded of the case in which James Connelly, drainer, of 152 Commonwealth-street, Sydney, claimed £400 compensation from Frederick Fish, licensed drainer, of 220 Liverpool-street, Sydney, for injuries alleged to have been sustained by him while in the employ of defendant.

Mr. Bignold, instructed by Messrs. Monro King and Dowd, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. Hinton, instructed by Mr. F. Lynne Rolin, for defendant.

Plaintiff claimed that he was a workman within the meaning of the Employers' Liability Act, in the employ of defendant, and on February 9 last, while so employed, the head of a hammer became loose and flew off the handle, striking him violently on the forehead, and severely wounding him. He was taken to the hospital in an unconscious condition, and had not been able to do any work since. The defendant denied that plaintiff was employed by him at the time of the mishap, and pleaded not guilty of any act causing the injuries.

His Honor said he had no doubt defendant was the employer of the plaintiff, nor had he any doubt that defendant supplied the hammer, which was unfit for the purpose for which it was being used. There would be a verdict for plaintiff for £100.

CLAIM FOR COMMISSION.

Steadman and others v Pitt and another.

This was an action in which Steadman, Russell, and Connolly, estate agents, of 114 Pitt-street, Sydney, sought to recover £87 10s from Leo S. Pitt and C. A. Eastway, trading as Pitt and Eastway, auctioneers, of 12 and 14 O'Connell-street, Sydney, alleged to be the amount due to plaintiffs by defendants for half commission on the sale of certain property at Putney for £7000, at 2½ per cent.

The defence was that plaintiffs did not bring about the sale, and that they were not employed by defendants.

Mr. Power, instructed by Mr. W. E. Hawkins, appeared for plaintiffs; and Mr. Curtis, instructed by Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley, for defendants.

Plaintiffs were nonsuited.

THROWN DOWN IN PITT-STREET.

Schroder v M'Mahon.

Philadelphia Schroder, milliner, of 183 Pitt-street, Sydney, was the plaintiff in an action against James M'Mahon, of Loftus-street, Sydney, trading as "James M'Mahon and Company," for £100 damages for injuries received by her on February 5 last through the alleged negligence of defendant's servant.

Mr. C. G. Addison, instructed by Mr. J. J. Carroll, appeared for plaintiff; and Mr. W. J. Coyle, instructed by Mr. W. D. M'Mahon, for defendant.

The case for the plaintiff was that on the morning of February 5 she was walking to her business along the footpath near Trautwein's Hotel, at the corner of King and Pitt streets, Sydney, when a rope that was being used in lowering some cases into the cellar of the hotel, and one end of which was tied to defendant's lorry, caught round one of her legs, throwing her violently to the ground, and causing serious injuries, including the dislocation of a thumb, whereby she had incurred expense, and been prevented for a long time from following her occupation. At the time she wished to pass the rope was lying across and on the footpath, but at the instant of her stepping over it the rope became taut and caught her foot, throwing her down.

The defence was that the driver of the horse and lorry on the morning in question was not in the employ of defendant, without whose knowledge the man had been asked to look after the work for a few hours for the regular driver, who paid the man for doing so.

His Honor found a verdict for defendant without costs, defendant's counsel stating that his client did not ask for costs.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Hamilton and a jury.)

Mr. R. J. Browning, Crown Prosecutor.

CONSTABLES CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

Patrick Thomas McDonnell and Edward O'Donnell, police constables, pleaded not guilty to a charge of having assaulted John Edward Chinnery, at the Erskine-street Police Station, on April 2, occasioning actual bodily harm.

Mr. J. C. Gannon, K.C., instructed by Mr. P. K. White, appeared for the defence.

The case for the prosecution was that Chinnery, a fishmonger, carrying on business in Hunter-street, Sydney, was with a fish agent, named Latona, when he was arrested on a charge of having struck a man named Mullis, but when at the police station the charge was withdrawn, a charge of drunkenness and assault on Constable O'Donnell being afterwards substituted. The Crown alleged that while Chinnery was at the station the constables exceeded their duty, and, being aggrieved at something that was said, set out to wreak vengeance upon Chinnery by striking him on the face, breaking his nose and blackening his eyes.

McDonnell, in his defence, said that he was a first-class constable with 9½ years' service in the force, and had recently been promoted. He remembered Mullis going to him and making a complaint. He showed witness the state of his mouth, and he went with witness to Carrington-street. He saw Chinnery and Latona there, and Mullis gave Chinnery in charge. Chinnery was very drunk, and said that he would not go, but witness said that he would take him, and that he would use as much force as was necessary. They all went to the police station in a taxi-cab, and Chinnery, who sat next to witness, several times looked round at the number on his tunic and said, "All right, 306." "When we got to the station," continued witness, "Mullis then said, 'I do not think that I will go on with it.' I then said that it would be necessary for both of them to go inside till I reported to the lockup-keeper (O'Donnell). We went into the charge room and Constable O'Donnell asked for their names, and when they were given he said that they could go. After some time Chinnery went outside and I followed, and he again looked at my number and wrote something on his shirt cuff. He said to O'Donnell, who was standing near, 'You are the lockup-keeper,' and then staggered outside on to the verandah. Later on Chinnery went inside again and O'Donnell walked from where he was sitting towards the door, when Chinnery rushed at O'Donnell and said, 'I will kill you,' and caught O'Donnell by the throat with the left hand and put his right hand into his hip pocket, where a revolver was subsequently found. As O'Donnell was pulling Chinnery towards the corner of the room the latter struck and kicked O'Donnell. Chinnery then fell and sat in the corner. In falling he struck his face on a stool. I deny that Chinnery was struck, and what injuries he sustained were occasioned by the fall. Chinnery did not in my presence ask for a doctor to be sent for."

O'Donnell also went into the witness-box and corroborated McDonnell's evidence as to what happened at the police station.

Superintendent Mitchell, Inspector McLean, and others gave the accused very good characters.

The case for the defence had not concluded when the Court rose for the day, the jury being locked up for the night.

GOVERNMENT NOTICES.

State Fisheries,
Chief Secretary's Department,
Sydney, 20th May, 1914.

APPLICATION FOR LEASE FOR OYSTER CULTURE.

It is hereby notified, for general information, that the undermentioned persons have applied to lease for oyster culture the portions of land set opposite their respective names. Tracings, showing the positions of the several portions enumerated may be inspected at this Department (Fisheries Branch) daily, excepting Saturdays, between 11 and 3 o'clock, and on Saturdays between 11 and 12 o'clock. Any person may, by memorial to the Chief Secretary, within thirty days from the date of this notice, and on grounds to be stated in such memorial, pray that leases of the portions may not be granted. All objections on account of interference with alleged hauling grounds must be accompanied by a statutory declaration by one or more of the licensed fishermen so objecting, that they have personally known bona fide hauls to have been made over the area during the preceding twelve months. They must also be prepared to make a test haul with their own nets when requested to do so.

G. H. S. KING,
Acting Under-Secretary.

FARM AND STATION.

WHEAT-GROWING.

OPINIONS OF A CHAMPION.

A wheatgrower who has won the champion prize and gold medal at the Royal Show on three different occasions since 1909, who has annexed many other prizes at the same show and had almost an unbeaten record where he has competed at country shows—must certainly be considered one of the champions of Australia, and an authority on wheat-growing. Such is the proud record held by Mr. Smith Pollock, of Glengarry, in the Quirindi district with whom recently the writer had an interview. "Smith," as he is familiarly known in the locality, is a genial, big-hearted man, who considers nothing any trouble, so long as he can be of assistance to his fellow man. He is ever ready to give the benefit of his experience to his fellow-farmers, and he accepts defeat if it comes merely as a lesson by which he can profit. Needless to say Mr. Pollock has one of the best-kept farms in the district. Everywhere is met evidence of the man of method. The buildings are neat and substantial, the machinery in the best of order, and all the working stock well kept. Glengarry consists of several hundred acres, and it is significant of his faith in the district that Mr. Pollock recently paid the highest price given for land locally, viz., £15 per acre for an area of about 200 acres. The farm comprises sandy loam, red or chocolate, and black volcanic soil. The owner is a great believer in mixed farming, and excels as a wheatgrower, haymaker, dairyman, and lamb-raiser, while some fine animals prove his good judgment of horseflesh. His principle is that if anything is worth doing it should be worth doing well; and his cultivation is rather of the intensive, than the extensive order. He recognises farming is becoming more and more a science, and, that the successful husbandman must use his brains as well as his muscles, and, above all things, must be industrious; consequently the rising sun always finds him up and doing, and the 48 or 44 hour week finds no place in his lexicon. With Smith Pollock there is always something to do, and always something doing.

Last season he cultivated about 150 acres, which, in his opinion, is about as much of his class of land as one man can work thoroughly, and even with this area, assistance is necessary at harvest time. On this area he experimented with 20 varieties of wheat. The season on the whole was a good one, though, with some varieties he did not achieve the success of previous years. Speaking generally on the subject of wheats and wheat-growing, Mr. Pollock considers the present method of disposing of the grain offers little encouragement to the farmer to grow wheat of high-class flour varieties, as both merchants and millers will give little, if any, better price for high flour-testing wheats than for those giving a low percentage. All that is necessary to secure top market price is a good sample, and, therefore, the farmer's main consideration under present conditions is to grow those varieties which will give the biggest yields. Mr. Pollock is also somewhat sceptical of show results as being likely to mislead the average farmer. For instance, for the past three years wheat of the Cedar variety has carried off the champion prize at the Royal Show, and since the recent show he has been fairly inundated with applications for seed of that variety, evidently from farmers who think they must get good results if they grow the varieties which are successful prizewinners. Yet Cedar is a variety which Mr. Pollock has no time for, except for show purposes, and its possibilities as a wheat to cross with some other variety. As a commercial wheat he gives it no place, and says the farmer who goes in for it will find himself a considerable loser by allowing it to take up ground where another variety would give, perhaps, twice the yield. The following are the varieties which Mr. Pollock grew last season, with some information furnished by the grower concerning each which should be useful. Most of these varieties have been tried for several seasons:—

Cedar.—This is the wheat with which Mr. Pollock carried off the prize at the recent Royal Show. Grown on black soil it returned 16 bushels, with a weight of 68.4lb to the imperial bushel; and though it stands as the best milling wheat it cannot be recommended, as it is a poor yielder. It is also of poor quality as a hay wheat. In 1912 Mr. Pollock grew this variety on red soil, and got a return of 20 bushels, but it lacked the flour strength.

Bobs.—Grown on black soil; yield 30 bushels; weight, 68.1lb. This yield was rather above the average, but it may be classed as a fair yielder. It is a good hay wheat, and should be sown mid-season. It was with this variety that Mr. Pollock carried off the championship at the Royal Show in 1910, when he exhibited there for the first time. In that year he obtained a flour test of 75.6 per cent., an achievement which has never been equalled in this State, and the total marks obtained was 97 out of a possible 100. It is a singular thing that this wheat was exhibited at the local show in 1910, but failed to secure a place. Mr. Pollock showed the writer a sample of the 1909 season Bobs, which, though perhaps a little faded in colour, was without the slightest trace of weevil.

Comeback.—Grown on black soil; yield 24 bushels; weight 68.2lb. A good wheat to sow late; very suitable for the district, and a good hay wheat. It was with a bag of this variety that Mr. Pollock was successful at the local show in 1910, but at the Sydney show it did not get a place. A sample grown in 1909 was in splendid order, with no trace of weevil.

Rymer.—Grown on sandy loam; yield 20 bushels, which was below its fair average; weight 65lb. Good wheat for mid-season sowing, and a good hay wheat.

Marshall's No. 3.—Grown on sandy loam; yield 38 bushels; weight 63lb, which was below its usual standard. A splendid yielder, and highly recommended locally. A fair hay wheat and should be sown early.

Yandilla King.—Grown on sandy loam; yield 41½ bushels; weight 63lb. A splendid yielder, and a good hay wheat, which should be sown early.

Federation.—This is a wheat much favoured locally, and can always be relied upon, except in rusty seasons. Grown on sandy loam, yield 39 bushels; weight 63½lb; sow mid-season. It is very nutritious as hay, but on account of its bad colour is not very marketable.

Warren.—Grown on black soil; yield 26 bushels, weight 64lb. One of the best rust-resisters, and an excellent hay wheat. Sow mid-season to late. Mr. Pollock advises sowing some every year.

Florance.—Grown on black soil; yield 20 bushels; weight 67lb. Good wheat to sow late, but very liable to shell. It is also a good hay wheat, but can only be recommended for late sowing.

Payah.—Grown sandy loam; yield 38 bushels; weight 67lb. As this wheat is very similar to Federation Mr. Pollock is discarding it in favour of that variety.

Buds Early.—Grown on black soil; yield 23 bushels; weight 62½lb. For mid-season sowing. Not good for hay, but recommended as a good reliable average yielder.

Gluyas Early.—Grown in black soil; yield 28 bushels; weight 66½lbs. Good for late sowing, but rather weak in the stalk. Fair hay wheat. Mr. Pollock has tried this wheat for three years, and cannot recommend it, although he believes a neighbour got a return of 50 bushels about two seasons ago.

Bunyip.—Grown on black soil; yield 21 bushels; weight 65½lbs. The earliest of all wheats to mature. Good wheat to sow late; but inferior for hay.

Petatz Surprise.—This is a wheat introduced from South Australia by Mr. Sholtz, of Gilgandra, who expects big things of it. Mr. Pollock grew his sample on sandy loam, and it yielded 20 bushels, with a weight of 68½ lbs. It is one of the heaviest weighing wheats, and Mr. Pollock expects to make it reach 70lbs. to the bushel. He has only tried it one season, and intends to persevere with it. He carried off the prize with this variety at the last Tamworth show.

Jonathan.—Grown on red soil; yield 18 bushels; weight 66lbs. A mid-season variety, but after trying it for four years, Mr. Pollock is discarding it.

Thew.—Grown on red soil; yield 16 bushels; weight 64lbs. This is highly recommended as a splendid wheat for green feed, being superior to skinless barley, and strongly recommended to dairymen. It is also a good crop to clean land of black oats, and is a fine hay wheat, but no good for grain. Sow late.

Marquis.—This is a wheat which has been greatly talked about lately, being the latest thing in wheats from America. Mr. Pollock obtained 7lbs of seed last season from Mr. Sholtz, of Gilgandra. He sowed it on sandy loam, and got a return of six bushels from the 7lbs of seed, with a weight of 66lbs. It is a splendid flour wheat, but Mr. Pollock does not think it will be a good yielder.

Medeah.—A macaroni wheat, which grows to a height of 7ft. A bearded variety, very hard to strip. Returns up to 30 bushels per acre, but so far is of no commercial value. It is a very heavy cropper, and will give 4 tons of green feed to the acre. Should be splendid for dairymen.

Hayne's Blue Stem.—Tried for several years, and cannot recommend it. Weight 63lbs.

Steinwedel.—Grown on sandy loam; yield 36 bushels; weight 66lbs. Sow mid-season. Good hay wheat. Owing to its liability to shell, it is not recommended for extensive cropping.

Mr. Pollock thinks every farmer must use his own brains, but as a general summary, he recommends the following wheats for grain:—Early sowing (April), Marshall's No. 3 and Yandilla King; mid-season to late (May-June), Rymer, Federation, Buds Early, Warren and Steinwedel; late (June-July) Bunyip, Florance, Comeback. Hay Wheats.—Rymer, Florance, Thew. Green Fodder Wheats.—Huguenot, Medeah, Thew. He does not advise cropping with any single variety, but advocates a judicious distribution, according to area, so as to secure good average results. He considers that the 64lb f.a.q. standard of last season was too high. The heaviest wheat he ever saw was the sample of Petatz Surprise shown at this year's Royal, which went 68.7lbs to the bushel. This season Mr. Pollock hopes to put up a record by raising a wheat which will go 70lbs to the bushel.

THE FORESTRY DEPARTMENT.

"Eucalypt" writes:—For a number of years past the Forestry Department of New South Wales has been making various experimental efforts to extricate itself from a weird tangle of ridiculous regulations, and become established on some semblance of a sensible working basis. So far, the system is a sort of compromise between right and wrong. The adoption of a few progressive ideas, such as reafforestation, weeding out, etc., is set up as an apology for the miserably defective system of collecting royalty and discriminating between Crown and private timber. The timber boom of the last few years, with new sawmills tapping the forests at almost every available spot, has enabled the department to exhibit a good balance-sheet, and partially hide the glaring highroads the proverbial "coach and four" have made racing through the regulations. Collecting royalty on the mill output is a crude method of managing timber revenue. "To err is human," therefore, we should aim at minimising frail humanity's temptations. The present system is unjust to the ordinary sawmiller, inasmuch as it leaves him exposed to the callous suspicion of every wayfarer.

Recently some zealous individuals have prepared a lengthy petition to be submitted for signatures amongst the timber trade, asking for greater consideration to be shown for the value of the timber industry of the State, and also for those engaged in the industry. The good objects of the petition are neutralised by the chief proposal made for adjusting the grievances complained of. The request is the reinstatement on the statutes of a clause that six years ago lived a short and impotent existence. This clause, 28, of 1908 Land (Amendment) Act provided for the payment of royalty on timber from all land subsequently alienated under any tenure. Section 21 of the same Act specified that, in determining the capital value, "the timber thereon, and the means of access thereto, shall be considered." Consequently this anomaly was wiped off at the first opportunity, by the 1909 Amendment. The Crown now charges for the timber through the capital values, and any attempt to impose additional charges as suggested will only smother the originators with ridicule. Every applicant for reappraisement knows how difficult it is to get a reduction if it can be represented that the land carries marketable timber. The cost of marketing the stuff is never properly considered, and even though the timber may be more of an encumbrance than otherwise, the land is invariably loaded to pay for it.

In the face of this it is hard to guess in whose interests the idea of collecting royalty on p.p. timber is expected to operate. Some guileless individuals are parading the proposal in the alleged interests of the timber-getters, and the trade generally, but just how and where the benefit is derived is presumably left to the obedient signatories to work out. A "largely signed petition" is about the simplest form of referendum imaginable. People who can't spare a moment for the most intelligent reasoning will sign a petition at every corner, without hesitation or inquiry. As long as the other fellow signed his name you can go on mechanically building it up indefinitely. The actual consequence of these restrictive conditions was—and still is, wherever operative—the destruction of much valuable timber. The settler having purchased it through the capital value asks a royalty, so does the Crown; and if the timbergetter can't afford to pay the price, the settler can't afford to delay improvements, and the timber goes up in smoke to make way for grass.

The hard forest lands of the coast are the ideal timber reserves, yet they seem to be peculiarly neglected by the Forestry Department. Too much attention is devoted to pursuing the immediate royalty into the mountain brushes, and not enough bestowed on protecting the "cut out" ironbark areas passed over. While fostering a precarious pine crop here in the Manning district the department seems indifferent to nature's efforts to reafforest herself. Every year "cut out" areas are alienated without regard for the young crop, which is usually ringbarked by the selector. There are thousands of areas, in fact, that it would pay the Crown to resume as permanent forests, areas from which later on the Crown could collect special royalty rates. More practical steps towards ensuing future supplies is a question of more importance to-day than the introduction of even sensible legislation to slightly swell the revenue. It would be no harm to overhaul the present machinery before installing any more.

VICTORIAN DAIRY PRODUCE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

During last season 73,381,567lb of butter were made in Victoria, as against 67,655,834lb for the preceding season. The cheese made amounted to 4,856,321lb, as compared with 4,176,778lb, and bacon and hams 19,289,258lb, as compared with 20,043,706lb.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES.

MILTON.—The election of officers for the A. and H. Association for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—Patron, M. F. Morton, M.P.; president, F. W. Cork (re-elected); vice-president, H. R. L. Kendall; hon. secretary, H. Seccombe; hon. treasurer, A. Riley. The financial statement showed that the year began with credit balance of £12 11s 4d, and after raising and expending £329 16s 7d, finished with a debit balance of £2 0s 6d. The subsidy, amounting to about £63, is still due.

QUIRINDI.—At the farmers and settlers' meeting on Saturday the president, Mr. Henry Hall, of Braefield, resigned that position, and Mr. R. H. Ingall was elected in his stead. Messrs. W. Bridge (secretary) and A. M. Pountney were appointed as delegates to the annual conference. Mr. Hall, who was also a strong supporter of the local P. and A. Association, has also resigned from the committee of that body.

TAREE.—The annual meeting of the Manning River Agricultural and Horticultural Association was held on Saturday afternoon on the show ground. Mr. David Cowan (president) was in the chair. The report and statement of accounts showed that in consequence of wet wether at the show the takings were £100 less than those of last year. The chairman read the statement of the election committee, which showed that only a sufficient number were nominatd for the vacancies required, and declared them elected. The election of other officers will take place at the next committee meeting.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

BOGGABRI.—Fine weather has enabled farmers to resume ploughing and sowing work, and satisfactory progress is being made.

QUEANBEYAN.—Messrs. R. Moore, J. M. McIntosh, E. E. Grace, and A. G. McKeahine have been returned unopposed as directors of the P.P. Board.

QUIRINDI.—The season in this district is magnificent, feed being in abundance. The season is also good for wheat-farmers and dairymen.

FIRE IN A SHOP.

Yesterday morning, shortly after 4 o'clock, a fire broke out in the basement of the confectionery shop of Alex. Firos, at 37 Oxford-street, city. The contents of the basement and part of the floor above were damaged by fire and water. The inmates escaped through a window in their night clothes on to the awning, from where they were rescued.

SURRY HILLS TRAGEDY.

ALLEGED MURDER.

KING COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

The death of Margaret Jane King, 36, who was killed in a lane at the back of a house in Crown-street, Surry Hills, on May 15, was inquired into by the Acting City Coroner (Mr. Fincham) yesterday.

Mr. Robinson represented the Police Department. William John King, who had been charged at the police court with feloniously slaying deceased, his wife, was present in court.

Mrs. Esther O'Brien, of 598 Crown-street, Surry Hills, said that deceased's children and her husband had lived at her home for some time. Mrs. King was inclined to give way to drink. For two or three months prior to the tragedy King did not live with his wife. At the end of February King came to the house and told witness that he had caught his wife with another man's arm round her neck. On the following morning Mrs. King came home after staying away for three nights. The husband and wife then met and a quarrel ensued. King first knocked his wife down, and then took a razor from his pocket. As he appeared to be going to use it witness got behind and shoved King away. The husband and wife then became reconciled, King saying that he would forgive her. On the night of May 14 a man stayed with Mrs. King. Shortly after 6 p.m. on May 15 King came to the Crown-street house and quarrelled with his wife. In the course of the quarrel witness heard King say, "Well, Mag, I've loved you with all my heart; but you've told me lies." His wife retorted, "I haven't," and ordered him to get out of the house, as she did not want him. King then asked for his clothes, and presently he descended the stairs, carrying a bag. He asked some questions about the man who had stayed with his wife, but witness declined to tell him anything. He then went out the back, followed shortly afterwards by his wife.

Constable C. E. Montague said that at 7.30 p.m. on the 15th inst he went to the scene of the tragedy and picked up a pair of spectacles and portion of a razor handle. At No 3 police station on the following day King's attention was drawn to these spectacles. "They're my wife's," he said. Witness then asked if the razor handle was portion of the razor that had been found on him on May 13. "I don't know anything about that," he replied.

Mrs. Mary Wilson said that while in the lane she heard a child scream, "Daddy's killing mummy." Mrs. King was calling for help. As the man walked away he muttered, "I've done it. I told her I'd do it. I'll give her other men."

John E. Eastey, 13 years of age, said that at about 6.30 p.m. he saw King, whom he knew by sight, in the back lane close to the fence. Mrs. King came out. King then sprang at her, and cut her throat.

The Coroner committed King for trial on a charge of murder.

BALMAIN SHOPPING CARNIVAL.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.

The industrial competition and exhibition of needlework, cookery, and art, in connection with the Balmain shopping carnival, will be officially opened by the Mayor (Alderman H. B. Swan) at the local Town Hall this afternoon. The exhibition has been divided into two sections, the first embracing needlework and children's exhibits, which will be on view at the Town Hall; and the second, which will be held in St. Thomas's Hall, Rozelle, embracing cookery competitions for professional and amateur adults, and girls under 16; and art competitions in watercolour painting, drawing, artificial flower-making, and school-children's work in stencilling, pencil drawing, mapping, and handwriting. Considerable interest has been taken in the exhibition by the ladies of the district, with the result that the entries have been exceptionally large, and the competition correspondingly keen. The exhibition will remain open from 2 p.m. till 6 p.m., and from 7 p.m. till 10 p.m. to-day, and to-morrow, and on each afternoon and evening a programme of music will be given.

The cadet brass band contest for the Paling Challenge Shield, which was commenced at the Star Picture Theatre, Rozelle, last evening, will be concluded to-night; and on Thursday evening a benefit concert in aid of the Balmain District Hospital will be given in the National Theatre, Darling-street. In addition to the street decorations, electric light illuminations and open-air band performances lend extra attractiveness to the shopping thoroughfares at night.

OLYMPIC FUND.

It has been decided to issue membership badges to all who have given one guinea or more to the fund. The design of the badge is a laurel wreath surrounding the figures VI., to denote the sixth Olympic period.

A meeting of the Olympic Ball committee will be held at the Town Hall to-morrow at 3 p.m. to deal with financial matters. The fund committee will meet on Thursday afternoon at 4.45 o'clock.

THE ANTI-SYDNEY AGITATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In a letter published under the above heading in your issue of to-day, Mr. Robert Thomson, among other things, makes a splenetic attack upon the port of Newcastle, in the course of which he ventures upon a number of assertions which are amusing in their absurd inaccuracy or inconsequentiality—an unwieldy word this latter—which I ask to be pardoned for using. He states by inference, if not directly, that this "so-called port" has been built up by the lavish expenditure of public money without making any return therefor. If, instead of thus following the lead of other equally unreliable critics of Newcastle, he would find out for himself something of the subject upon which he presumes to write as an authority, he would probably not be guilty of making a charge so utterly lacking in justification. A considerable sum of money has, it is true, been spent by the present and past Governments upon this port, but as has been stated over and over again that expenditure has been more than recouped. The coal trade alone contributes a net profit to the State coffers of not less than £200,000 per annum. Every pound sterling laid out in improving the port increases its revenueproducing capacity, so that to carp at the action of the Government in adding to its shipping and other trading facilities is like querulously condemning a business man who enlarges and improves his premises in the certain knowledge that his turnover and net returns will be greatly increased thereby. Mr. Thomson goes on to argue against the provision by the Government of more cranes, etc., at this port, on the ground that vessels now lie here for weeks, unable to get their loading. One would expect that which must be obvious to most people to be apparent and understandable to Mr. Thomson, viz., that it is because of the inadequacy of the shipping appliances and wharfage accommodation of the port that ships are subjected to delay. The idea that Newcastle is seeking to rob Sydney of its trade is nothing less than humorous. Is this gentleman so ill-informed as to be unaware that daily during the wool and wheat season long strings of trucks loaded with pastoral and agricultural products intended for export from the north and north-west of the State are dragged past this their nearest and therefore their proper sea outlet to Sydney, an additional 102 miles, at rates of freight that hardly pay for the axle grease used, and yet at unnecessary cost to the producer? Newcastle has a fair and legitimate claim to this trade, and when she gets it, as she certainly will, in the very near future, the benefits she will derive from it will be shared by the northern producers and by the taxpayers of the State as a body. Mr. Thomson is of opinion that the immense coal traffic of this Hunter district should be dealt with at Port Stephens. This is another crude and badly conceived view. To take the coal from the Maitland field alone to Port Stephens would impose, roughly, another shilling per ton in haulage charges upon the mineral. Does he imagine that with the competition it has to meet in markets oversea it could stand this further impost? Anyhow, why should millions be spent to establish a deepsea outlet for coal or anything else at Port Stephens when nearer at hand there is already this fine port of Newcastle, which, at moderate cost, and within a reasonable time, can be so improved in such matters as depth of water, additional wharfage and cranes, wheat elevator, etc., as to render it capable of dealing with the whole of the trade in imports and exports of the north, north-west, and near North Coast for the next 25 years at least? I will leave the Sydney Harbour Trust and Sydney Chamber of Commerce to reply to Mr. Thomson's other fulminations—if they think it worth while to do so.

I am, etc., E. FLYNN,
Secretary Northern Decentralisation League.

HALF-YEARLY MEETING.

CUSTOMARY DIVIDEND DECLARED.

The report of the Bank of New South Wales for the six months ended March 31, which was presented at the half-yearly meeting of shareholders yesterday, showed that the net profits for the period, after deducting rebate on current bills, interest on deposits, paying note and other taxes, reducing valuation of bank premises, providing for bad and doubtful debts, and fluctuations in the value of investment securities, and including recoveries from debts previously written off as bad, amounted to £275,747, which, with the £68,658 carried forward from the previous half-year, made £344,405 available. Out of this an interim dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum for the quarter ended December 31 last, paid on February 26, absorbed £87,500, leaving £256,905 for distribution. The directors recommended that this amount should be dealt with as follows:—To payment of a quarter's dividend to March 31, 1914, at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, £87,500; augmentation of the reserve fund, £100,000, leaving a balance of £69,405 to be carried forward.

During the half-year branches of the bank were opened at Castlereagh-street, Sydney; Portland, New South Wales; Renmark, South Australia; and sub-branches at Wallumbilla and Yungaburra, Queensland. The branch at Lithgow (N.S.W.) had been closed. The branches and agencies now numbered 340.

The chairman, Sir Charles K. Mackellar, in moving the adoption of the report and balance-sheet, stated that the circulation had been reduced in the year by about £22,000, due to the retirement of some £16,000 of the old Australian issue, and a slight casual contraction of the New Zealand issue, which still remained as part of their current business. The deposits showed the fairly large increase of £2,185,000, which was evenly spread over the whole Australasian business. There had been some increase in fixed deposits, but the major portion was in the current accounts. They were keeping this feature well in mind when dealing with their resources. The bills payable and other liabilities showed the small decrease of £157,000, which was a casual fluctuation only. The exchange business had been well maintained. The coin, bullion, and cash balances, nearly the whole of which were assets held on this side, showed an increase of nearly £2,000,000. This was almost entirely due to the growth of the current account balances, and it was a matter of fixed policy with them to maintain exceptionally large reserves for this portion of their liabilities, the fluctuations of which in a business as large as theirs was sometimes considerable. The money at short call in London was £235,000 higher than at March, 1913, caused by the more rapid maturity of the season's wool bills.

The investments in British and other stocks were about £100,000 less. They had sold some of their long-dated stocks with a view to replacement in loans of short-dates, which would be done as opportunity offered. They had no intention of departing from the policy of keeping a due proportion of their funds in Government securities. The bills receivable in London and on the way thither were higher by nearly £700,000, which represented an expansion in the exchange turnover. As the exports of the country increased they welcomed the growth of this portion of the business, which was a legitimate phase of their activity, and was the natural outcome of the share which they had taken financially in the development of the primary products of Australasia. The aggregate of what they viewed as their immediately liquid assets was £24,215,000, an increase of £2,900,000 on the year. This was a large sum of money to hold in these forms, but a considerable portion was earning interest in some shape or other, and for the rest they deemed it wise with their increasing figures to maintain a high ratio of cash reserves. The bills discounted, loans, and advance figures, which practically represented the lending business in Australasia, stood at £24,829,406, a decrease of a little over £550,000 on the year. The favourable season had enabled many borrowing clients to pay off or reduce their debts, and the money which had thus come in had been used in the exchange business. The loans and advances were well spread throughout the whole of Australasia, and the reports from their officers who were in charge of the various districts where the money was lent warranted them in being satisfied with the quality of the business. The premises showed a reduction of £10,900, but this was the net result of a much larger writing off. Viewed from a rental aspect, the bank premises account stood at a very moderate figure.

The capital account had been brought up to the even £3,500,000 within the year, and with the substantial addition now recommended the reserve fund would stand at £2,450,000, together making up nearly £6,000,000, which was a satisfactory ratio, so far, to their liabilities to the public. The board was alive to the desirableness of keeping this ratio at a sufficient proportion. Taking the position all round into consideration, the past year had been a satisfactory one. There were disappointments in the wheat harvest in some places, but the total result was good, and the amount available for export large. The wool clip was an excellent one in quantity, and very good in quality. The prices ruling for this staple were gratifying to the growers. Australasia depended for its prosperity on the out-turn of its primary products, and it was pleasing to note that there was a steady growth in this direction. Here and there the seasons had not been favourable, but taken as a whole the condition of affairs so far as it affected the man on the land had been satisfactory. But with regard to this important factor in the prosperity of the country, it must not be forgotten that the man on the land was bearing a very large share of the burden of taxation, and that the prices of his produce might not be maintained in the future at their present high level.

In Queensland a considerable impetus had been given to the cattle industry by the advent of meat buyers from the other side of the world.

Altogether the outlook of trade was encouraging. A more steady and conservative tone had been introduced into the operations of the community, which was a healthy sign for the future, for it could not be too often inculcated that steadiness in finance and in development generally, public and private, was what was required to maintain Australia in a state of really sound prosperity.

The report and balance-sheet were adopted.

COUGH MIXTURE RECIPE.

FOR HOME USE, SAVES 10s.

By a Qualified Chemist.

There is water and sweetening in every family cough mixture.

But you can add the water and sugar just as easily as it can be done in a factory.

All you really need to buy is the starting point—the necessary medicinal ingredients, or the actual "essence" of the mixture.

Did you ever think of that?

You can easily make about 12s worth of cough mixture by using the following splendid recipe. It makes a pint of cough mixture good for all members of the family. It is good for grandparents, grandchildren, and all the ages in between. It brings the cost of an eighteenpenny bottle of cough mixture down to less than fourpence.

Obtain from your chemist, or grocer, one bottle of Hean's Essence, mix it with sugar, treacle, and water, as per easy directions on the label. Pour into a large, clean bottle, and keep ready for use. It lasts a long time and never spoils. The dose is from a few drops to a spoonful, according to age requirements.

This simple recipe takes hold of a cough and soothes a sore throat more quickly than anything else you have ever tried. It has a good tonic effect, and is slightly laxative. Being so easy to make, pleasant to take, and costing so little—a whole pint for 2s—and valuable in its curing properties, there is no wonder the above recipe has become quickly popular in thousands of Australian homes. Most chemists now sell Hean's Essence, or can easily procure it for you. It is regularly sold by Anthony Hordern and Sons, Pattinson's, Lassetters, W.H. Soul and Co., M'Ilraith's, or post free on receipt of price 2s, from G. W. Hean, 178 Castlereagh-street, Sydney. Wherever you buy be sure you get Hean's Essence, as no other will do.—Advt.

For Bronchial Coughs take Woods' Great Peppermint Cure. 1s 6d.—Advt.

LATROSS.—In loving memory of my dear daughter, Clara Latross, who died May 27, 1913, aged 22 years.

I saw her suffering day by day,
It caused me bitter grief
To see her slowly pine away
And could not give relief.
Not dead to me I loved her dear,
Not lost, but gone before,
She lives with me in memory still
And will for ever more.

Inserted by her loving mother, Annie Morgan, and little son, Willie.

LATROSS.—In loving memory of my dear friend, Clara Latross, who died May 27, 1913. Inserted by her dear friend, C. [illegible].

COMING EVENTS.

To-morrow is to decide the fate of the Government Preference Prohibition Bill in the House of Representatives, when the third reading division is to be taken. While it is among the possibilities that it will pass both Chambers, the probability is that the Senate will reject or emasculate the measure, and trust to the chapter of accidents. A double dissolution, in that case, will be upon the shoulders of the new Governor-General as a first burden of responsibility. We have suggested an acceptance of the bill by the Senate as a possibility, because Labour Senators are shivering at the thought of an appeal to the country, and at last in desperation they may decide to vote with the Government. Members of the caucus have not ceased to declare the bill a sham, and an insult to their intelligence. They argue that as there is no preference to unionists now in Commonwealth employment, it is absurd to prohibit anything of the sort; and they insist that since there is no reality in the proposals of Ministers, time is being wasted in discussing them. But when it comes to the pinch the bill may pass to prevent that awful jump into the unknown which a double dissolution portends. It will, nevertheless, be wise for Liberals to assume the contrary. There seems no reason why the division to-morrow should not result in sending the bill up to the Senate; and later on the Senate will refuse to pass it. Assuming this to be the natural course of events, Liberals will do well to prepare for battle in the electorates somewhere about October, though a later date may be needed to cover the tasks involved in preparing new rolls. Here comes a critical issue, in that the police are apparently beginning a work which should be ending if an appeal to the country is to be made as soon as possible after a double dissolution has been granted, should the Governor-General see his way so far. It is true that the onus of enrolment is being placed upon the electors themselves. The individual elector so far has been helped by the house-to-house visitation of the police, and few have been able to plead ignorance as to the way of getting upon the rolls. Now, however, every man and woman in the Commonwealth must see for themselves that they are actually in possession of the power to vote when the time comes, and to Liberals the call is insistent that there shall be no mistake about the matter. If names are found to be missing when the rolls are ready and in use, there will be prosecutions and fines to follow, but that is not offered as an inducement to hurry now. The apathetic Liberal may make sure of enrolment to save his skin, but it will not help anybody or benefit the cause if he is too lazy or careless to vote.

What remains to be said is that the immediate appeal is to earnest men and women who wish the Government well, and are concerned to give Ministers a good working majority when the time for voting comes. As far as the preparation and printing of the rolls are concerned, we have expressed doubt on present facts whether they will be ready by October. The truth is that the Labour methods and administration have left so much to be done that a Liberal Government with the best wish in the world cannot hurry. It is met with obstacles at every turn, and not the least of them is the need for screwing up the whole of the electoral machinery. Yet once more assuming, as is wise, that the earlier and not a later date will see the country preparing for a general Federal election, Liberals may reasonably ask what is being done about nominations for the various seats so that there shall be no overlapping, and so that a solid vote may be cast for accredited candidates. What of the six Senate seats? We hope that, in this State, the Farmers and Settlers' Association is taking stock of recent results in connection with the Council elections in Western Australia. It may be suggested, perhaps, that as Labour has lost ground in the West, the overlapping has done no harm. But the final figures are still too close for comfort. The lesson to be learned is that in the Senate nominations, at any rate, we cannot afford to take any chances. The accredited candidates to win must command the solid enthusiastic support of everybody opposed to Labour-Socialism, and they must be prepared to give the necessary guarantees of good faith and capacity. So the sooner we get the six names the better; and the more heartily Liberals and the members of the Farmers and Settlers' Association work together the more impressive will be the final victory.

JAPAN AND AUSTRALIA.

The possibility of a collision between Japan and Australia has produced endless discussion, and has been responsible for a great deal of extravagance, both in thought and speech. There is one type of mind to which Japan is a positive obsession. The most innocent actions of Japanese subjects are supposed to cloak some deep-laid scheme of invasion, and this blind Japanophobia, through some strange perversity of logic, leads its victims to adopt towards the Japanese nation an insulting and provocative attitude, calculated to bring the disaster they fear appreciably nearer. There is another type of mind which goes to the other extreme and refuses even to consider the possibility of a conflict sooner or later. Japan, it says, is Britain's ally, and her interests will always be those of Britain. She can achieve her national destinies without encroaching upon the sphere which Australia will presently fill in the Pacific, and in time to come we shall see the glorious spectacle of two great nations side by side, almost hand in hand indeed, controlling this side of the world in perfect harmony. This school of thought scoffs at the idea of an invasion by Japan. She is too poor; she has too much to do in setting her own house in order, and exploiting her new Asiatic possessions, to cast an envious eye at our empty spaces. We confess that the arguments of neither party appear to us to be very convincing. The truth lies somewhere in between. Obviously in the immediate future we have no reason to suspect the intentions of Japan. As obviously no man can prophesy what the more remote future may bring forth. One can only estimate the probabilities which geographical, economic, and military arguments suggest, and all of these point to ultimate Japanese expansion towards the south. This is not a matter of racial prejudice or rancour, it is the logical outcome of ascertained facts, and it follows the inevitable laws of national development.

Many observers now recognise that sooner or later Australia will become the natural outlet for Japan's surplus population, unless Australia can prevent it. A few years ago this idea would have been scouted, but the concentration of armaments in European waters has made even the most incredulous admit the possibility. Recently an article by Major Stewart Murray on this very subject caught the attention of the whole world, and, as if to reinforce his argument, a German officer attached to the embassy in Japan has published a book which teaches the same lesson. Major Haushofer is an impartial witness. The prospect of the absorption of Australia by Japan does not affect him or his country one way or another. He points out that the Japanese are essentially a southern folk, and that the rigour of a northern climate is more fatal to them than a war. This disposes of Korea as a field for emigration, so where are they to turn. There are the Dutch Indies, already densely populated, and the Philippines, already well guarded, and soon to be better guarded when the Panama Canal is opened. But a little further south lies a huge empty continent, garrisoned by less than five million souls, and the vast majority of these far away from the northern shores, which invite occupation. The moral is so obvious that it need not be pursued. A time may come when Britain is fighting for her life at the other end of the world, and then Japan may very politely request us to repeal our Exclusion Act. If we refuse, we must fight. If we agree, we shall be conquered by the methods of peace. Hosts of Japanese will undersell, underwork, and underlive us until eventually we are driven off the face of the map, and Australia will become, in fact if not in name, a territory of the Mikado. That is why we should strain every nerve to fill our empty land so that we can face such a possibility with some degree of confidence. If there is ultimately to be a conflict between Australia and Japan, let us be ready for it. At the same time, it is neither good manners nor good policy to insult Japan simply because she may one day be our enemy.

EVIDENCE OF PROSPERITY.

When the economist is desirous of arriving at a clear conception as to whether a country is making material progress or is retrograding, he applies several tests. He does not go round to his friends and take their evidence as conclusive for the community as a whole, but he goes beyond, and secures a broader as well as a more accurate view. He analyses the trade statistics, and if he finds, as he would find in the Commonwealth to-day, that the exports have already increased in value by several millions, while the imports are also larger, though not so pronouncedly so, he will say that, other things being equal, there had been progress. He would look at the Customs revenue, at the Post Office receipts, at the railway takings, and if each of these exhibited expansion, then he would be satisfied that the country was not going backwards. But of all the tests that may be applied, the banking test is the safest. The banks are in some way partners in every business. In some their partnership is of a very direct character, as where they supply part of the capital. In others it is not so direct, though none the less evident, as where they buy wool bills and earn profits from exchange. When their customers are thriving, they increase their deposits, and so supply the banks with the wherewithal for financing other industries needing more capital. They are the middlemen of finance. They accept responsibility from their depositing customers for the deposits lodged with them, and they use their expert knowledge in making safe loans to such as may require accommodation. So the progress of our banks is largely symptomatic of the progress of the people at large.

It is, therefore, interesting to know that during the last quarter the deposits in the Australasian banks have increased by no less a sum than 9½ millions sterling, which easily establishes a new record for the Southern Hemisphere. The total deposits have now reached the stupendous sum of over 180 millions sterling, of which about one-third are to be found in our own State. This must be regarded as eminently satisfactory. It shows that a large section of the people are once more making rapid accumulations after the slight set-back that occurred a year or two ago, when many hard things were said of those bankers who had backbone enough to refuse the importunities of those of their customers who were desirous of using the banks' money for speculative purposes and land booming exploits. There can be no doubt that a debt of gratitude is owing to those who were wise enough to use their influence to assuage that unhealthy fever of speculation and inflation of which, for a time, there were obvious symptoms. Possibly this is now being more generally realised than it was at the time. Nor have the banks themselves suffered in any way from the deliberate pursuit of their policy of restraint. Yesterday the half-yearly meeting of the proprietors of our oldest bank took place. The Bank of New South Wales stands at the forefront of our financial institutions, and for the first time in its history, or in the history of any other banking institution in the Commonwealth, the aggregate of the balance-sheet that it presented to shareholders exceeded 50 millions sterling. There are not many banks in the world that can show such figures, and few indeed that are run on lines that are sounder or more conservative, using that term in its best sense. "The favourable season," said the president, Sir Charles Mackellar, yesterday, "has enabled many of our borrowers to pay off or reduce their debts." This shows that the profits that the bank has been making, large as these have been, have not been earned at the expense of its customers, who have managed to improve their position with the assistance of the capital which the bank has supplied them. In these days the great banks have a responsibility quite distinct from that involved in either properly safeguarding the deposits entrusted to their care, or from that to their shareholders, for seeing that adequate dividends are declared on the capital that they have subscribed. They hold a quasi-fiduciary position as far as the general public is concerned. This view cannot be too strongly emphasised. But we feel sure that while the leading bankers of this generation continue at the helm this part of their duty will be faithfully and fearlessly carried out.

ARBITRATION CHANGES.

One of the numerous matters with which the Government is pledged to deal in the coming session is the question of industrial arbitration. Although the system which was inaugurated in 1901 in this State has been subjected to various changes since that date, it has been clear for some time that further alterations in the law would be necessary if a satisfactory system was to be evolved which should have a degree of permanence and be accepted by all classes of the community. Mr. Piddington's report pointed the way to some of the reforms which experience has proved to be desirable, and others have been foreshadowed in the speeches of Ministers. The Labour Council, after what appears to have been a full investigation into the whole matter, has now presented to the Government a number of demands for alterations in the law, and the policy of the Ministry in the light of these and other recommendations will be awaited with considerable interest. The subject may be discussed without necessarily importing party controversy, although naturally there will be differences of opinion on various aspects of the question. The general principle of industrial arbitration is accepted by all parties in the State, and a system which plays so vital a part in the social and economic life of the community should, if possible, be moulded so as to meet with the wishes of the people generally. Continual changes are disturbing to industry, and the aim of the Government should be to introduce such amendments as possess, so far as possible, the character of permanence.

One of the causes of the present unsatisfactory operation of the Industrial Arbitration Act is the excessive delays which take place in the hearing of cases brought before the wages boards. One of the elements in this delay is the composition of the boards, and especially in the methods under which the chairmen are selected and conduct their work. Mr. Piddington recommended what amounted to reversion to the system of Industrial Courts, with three Judges conducting the whole of the work at present undertaken by about 30 chairmen. The Labour Council desires the retention of the boards, but the appointment as chairmen of "permanent salaried officers," with continuous sittings. The important desideratum is continuity in the work and speedy hearing of cases; and Mr. Piddington's recommendation appears to be calculated to attain both these ends. Whilst the question of inclusion of industries and the enlargement of powers of the wages boards, as suggested by the Labour Council, will need to be carefully watched, there is much to be said for making the approach to the industrial tribunals as easy as possible, and removing technical objections to their deciding any matters which may be the subject of difference between employers and work-people. Some of the additional powers suggested by the Labour Council will undoubtedly be resisted by employers. However, the co-operation of all parties and sections of the community should be the means of assisting the Government to introduce a measure which will assist, to a larger extent than has been the case in the past, the promotion of industrial peace, the more cordial relations between employers and employed, and the more efficient and progressive conduct of the industries of the State.

The "Sydney Mail."—This week's "Mail" is capitally illustrated, the subjects pictorially dealt with presenting a wide variety. There are excellent portraits of the Governor-General, his wife, and staff, taken last week at Melbourne. The submarines lying at Garden Island make a striking picture. There is a page of interesting portraits in connection with the British amateur golf championship. The arrival of a large batch of Dreadnought farm boys and other immigrants last week is pictured, the newcomers being evidently of the type we want. The procession in connection with Sydney University "commem." has provided material for some amusing snapshots. There are beautiful photographs of the Dorrigo country, on the north coast of New South Wales, and another very interesting page represents scenes in the big game country—in the Northern Territory.

Qualifications for the Ministry.—The many and varied qualifications for the Christian Ministry were referred to by the Bishop of Newcastle at Moore College yesterday. In his early days he would ride 50 miles a day and think nothing of it. He once saw a letter from a parish asking for a minister, and it was indicated that he would have to be a good rider, well educated, with a knowledge of floods, and an instinct for river bottoms, a good musician, good-looking (though this was a luxury and not a necessity), and should also be sound in the faith. The stipend was £150 a year." (Laughter.)

National Insurance.—Mr. Robert Thodey, president of the Actuarial Society of New South Wales, speaking at a meeting of that body on Monday, said that only experience would demonstrate whether the national insurance scheme now in force in England was financially solvent. There was, however, little doubt that the total result of schemes of national insurance, old-age, and invalidity pensions, would be a financial burden whose dimensions and weight were quite unappreciated by the present generation. The Federal Government had recently been making inquiries about social insurance, and it would be one of the duties of the Actuarial Society to watch carefully the progress of any scheme that might be seriously put forward, and to offer unsparing criticism if it appeared that the financial burdens had not been properly estimated and adequately provided for. Experience in England would suggest the advisability of deferring the introduction to Australia of a scheme until more complete information of its working and financial position was available. The first requisite for a scheme of this sort was that it should be compulsory. Australians had consented to compulsory military training, but whether they would as readily accept compulsory insurance was quite another question. The scattered nature of the population in Australia, except in the capital cities and larger towns, meant increased administrative charges, with probably decreased efficiency in management.

Municipal Flats.—Some weeks ago the City Council completed the building of a number of quite palatial residential flats on land resumed at Chippendale, and they were all let long before they were ready for occupation. An effort is being made by some of the Labour aldermen to embark upon further enterprises of this character. Alderman W. P. Fitzgerald assured the works committee of the council yesterday that the Chippendale scheme would give a return of 8 per cent. on the money invested. "Don't you run away with that idea," the chairman (Alderman A. M'Elhone) replied, adding that the council would be lucky if it got 3 per cent. without making any allowance for depreciation, while another alderman pointed out if the flats while in a perfectly new condition were only just paying, the council would probably be faced with an annual loss on them in a very few years.

Trades Union Library.—The library at the Trades Hall was opened on Monday night by Mr. A. J. Agnew, the president of the Trades Hall Association, who was made the recipient of a gold key. There are 2000 volumes, costing £800. Rules have been printed and circulated amongst the various unions, and the "objects" of the library are set out as follow:—"To offer to members of unions affiliated with the Trades Hall Association the means of acquiring deeper knowledge of their several trades by the provision of technical books relating thereto, and also by the provision of other standard works, periodicals, and newspapers, to give opportunities of obtaining general information and recreation."

Queen's Birthday.—Yesterday being the anniversary of the birthday of Her Majesty Queen Mary, a royal salute of 21 guns was fired by the Royal Australian Garrison Artillery battery at South Head at noon.

Stamp-selling Machines.—An application by the Postal Department for permission to erect automatic stamp-selling machines at various street corners in the city was refused by the works committee of the City Council yesterday. The chairman (Ald. A. M'Elhone) said that he had gone into the matter, and ascertained that the machines were to be housed in buildings 11ft in height. He strongly objected to them, as he did, also, to the numerous pillar boxes, which were unnecessarily large. Ald. English remarked that if the Commonwealth would only give shopkeepers a decent commission, and so encourage them to sell stamps, there would be no necessity for the introduction of the machines. It was decided to recommend to the council that permission to erect the machines be refused.

The Naval College.—The Minister for Defence (Senator E. D. Millen) stated yesterday that no successor to Captain Chambers, who recently retired from the position of principal of the Commonwealth Naval College, had yet been appointed. The Admiralty had agreed to obtain the services of a suitable officer, but no name had yet been submitted to the Commonwealth Government. It is possible that the Admiralty are waiting for the return of Captain Chambers, who is now on his way to England, in order that the authorities may consult with him before making a selection.

Economical Passengers.—The R.M.S. Tahiti, which arrived from San Francisco, via Wellington, yesterday, had on board two live alligators, consigned to the Zoological Gardens at Melbourne. The alligators were bred in California, and were placed on the steamer at San Francisco. They have not had anything to eat since they left America, the instructions received from the consignors being that, as they could go without food for three months, they were not to be fed during the voyage, but a bucket of fresh water was to be thrown over them once a day.

Sociological Research.—The Premier has been officially advised of the establishment of the Economic and Sociological Research Society, which will be conducted on the lines of the research branch of the Fabian Society, but without any political or party complexion. "The objects are purely scientific," writes the secretary, Mr. T. R. Bavin. On the strength of this communication the Premier has undertaken to supply the society with the State "Hansard," Parliamentary Blue Books, Royal Commissions' reports, etc.

PERSONAL.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Joseph Cook, left Sydney for Melbourne last night.

The Minister for Labour and Industry, Mr. Estell, left Sydney yesterday for Maitland, where he will conduct the State Governor and Sir Hartmann Just, Assistant Permanent Under-Secretary for the Colonies, on a visit to the collieries.

Mr. W. Hutchinson, Minister for Agriculture, and Dr. Cameron and Mr. R. Crowe, Victorian Director of Agriculture and Superintendent of Exports respectively, who have been on a visit to Queensland, left Sydney last evening on their return to Melbourne.

Mr. Hagelthorn, the Victorian Minister for Public Works, left Melbourne for Wagga yesterday to inspect the New South Wales Government research farm in company with Mr. Hutchinson, the Minister for Agriculture.

Major F. J. Darvall, D.A.Q.M.G., has been granted leave of absence until July 6; and Major R. C. Holman, D.S.O., has been appointed to temporarily carry out the duties of the D.A.Q.M.G.

Mr. William Russell Wilson Bligh, a grandson of Governor Bligh, died yesterday at his residence, Whiteleaf Cross, Tourmaline-street, Blackheath. The deceased, who was a bachelor, was 86 years of age.

Mr. A. K. Young, who for the past six years has occupied the position of Chief Justice of the Seychelles, has taken over the position of Attorney-General of Fiji.

Mr. Henry Bracy, of J. C. Williamson, Ltd., returned from a brief visit to the United States by the Tahiti yesterday. He made the journey in order to see his wife, who is at Los Angeles.

Judge Murray, Administrator of Papua, and Mrs. Murray, will arrive in Sydney from Melbourne to-morrow on their way back to Port Moresby.

Mr. John Leitch was, at yesterday's meeting of the Executive Council, sworn in as Vice-President of the Metropolitan Board of Water Supply and Sewerage.

Mr. Walter Bevan, barrister, was yesterday appointed by the Executive Council to act as a District Court Judge and chairman of Quarter Sessions from June 1 to July 11.

MORE JUDGES.

INDUSTRIAL COURT CONGESTION.

The three societies of carpenters and joiners are dissatisfied with the delay that has occurred in having their appeal against the combined award heard by the Judge of the Industrial Arbitration Court.

Representatives of the Progressive Society of Carpenters and Joiners (and others) saw the Minister for Labour, Mr Estell, yesterday. Mr. Estell said that he would do all in his power to give them relief, and promised to ask the Cabinet to give immediate consideration to a proposal for the appointment of additional judges. The deputation also saw the Premier and got a promise from Mr. Holman that something would be done at once.

BURIED AT SEA.

During the voyage of the Russian ship King Edward from Guayaquil to Sydney, a seaman named J. Higgins died from consumption, and was buried at sea on Thursday, May 14. The vessel was 67 days on the passage, and has come here for docking. She is anchored in Double Bay.

THE ARMY.

BUSINESS MANAGEMENT.

PROPOSED DECENTRALISATION.

"The thing is too absurd to-day. The present position in the Commonwealth military organisation is clogging the wheels of the whole business machine of the army."

The Minister for Defence (Senator E. D. Millen) made this remark in discussing with a representative of the "Herald" yesterday those portions of Sir Ian Hamilton's report which recommend the establishment of a business department as a branch of the military administration, and a further measure of decentralisation in various directions to State commandants. Although the Minister is considering each portion of General Hamilton's report, he is addressing himself more particularly to this aspect of the necessary reorganisation, which must be undertaken in order to place the military forces of the Commonwealth on an efficient basis.

DANGER OF COLLAPSE.

Sir Ian Hamilton expressed the view that the centralisation in the Defence Department at Melbourne exceeded anything he had experienced during more than 40 years service, that this centralisation connoted an increasing unwillingness on the part of officers to act on their own responsibility; and that there was, in consequence, a danger of disaster in time of war, caused by "the collapse of the officer trained for many years to be frightened to death of a sixpence, when he is suddenly called upon to decide a matter in which thousands of pounds may be involved." The Minister for Defence, having investigated the whole of this side of the department's work independently, has come to the same general conclusion as the Inspector-General of the Oversea Forces, and he is now endeavouring to devise a scheme which will be calculated to remove the defects resulting from the present state of affairs.

A BUSINESS DEPARTMENT.

It may be taken for granted that the general principle of a new business department for the army, which is put forward by Sir Ian Hamilton, will be adopted by the Government, and Senator Millen hopes that some steps forward in this direction will be taken at an early date. General Hamilton recommended that, pending the production of capable military men trained in up-to-date business methods in connection with military administration, there should be appointed a Comptroller-General of Military Administration, under whom the Quartermaster-General would act as second in command. He should be "a civilian of knowledge and experience, and well versed in the public affairs of the Commonwealth." It is understood that general effect will be given to this recommendation, although the resources of the civilian side of the Public service will be exhausted before a non-official civilian is appointed to the proposed new post. The promotion of Colonel V. C. M. Sellheim, at present Quartermaster-General, to the post of Adjutant-General will leave the former post vacant, and this will make it easier for the Government to proceed on the lines suggested by Sir Ian Hamilton without encountering difficulties with regard to the staff which would otherwise have to be met.

ABOLISHING THE ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT.

Under the scheme adumbrated by Sir Ian Hamilton the post of Chief of Ordnance would cease to exist. It is understood that effect will also be given to this recommendation, and the recent promotion of Colonel R. Wallace, who at present occupies the position, to be State Commandant of Victoria, in succession to Colonel J. W. Parnell, who will succeed Brigadier-General Bridges as Commandant of the Royal Military College at Duntroon, will make it possible to take this course without interfering with existing appointments.

In his report, General Hamilton stated that the evils arising from a lack of homogeneity are well exemplified in the existing state of the Ordnance Department, "two-thirds of whose members are under the Defence Department, and one-third under the Public Service Commissioner. I venture to suggest that not a soul, either in the Ordnance Department itself, or outside of it, can be found to defend this system, or rather want of system."

Major Austin, whose services have been temporarily lent to the Commonwealth by the War Office, is at present engaged in a general overhauling of the whole of the Ordnance Department, and in the general reorganisation of this branch of military administration, which is now to be undertaken, the Government will have the advantage of his experience, and the result of his investigations, throughout the Commonwealth.

MINISTERIAL CONTROL.

In suggesting the formation of a business department, Sir Ian Hamilton remarked that "the danger of the Comptroller-General's Department setting up a new financial autocracy must be guarded against, and it is not meant to imply that Ministerial responsibility for and control over military expenditure shall be in the least degree weakened."

Senator Millen yesterday expressed satisfaction at this passage in the Inspector-General's report, as he regarded it as most important that any further responsibilities delegated to the proposed new department and any measure of financial control and decentralisation should not remove in the slightest degree that grip over the finances of defence which was essential if the Government of the day and the Minister specially charged with defence administration were to check extravagance, synthesise the various branches of military work, and bring the task of promoting the efficiency of the army into relation with the public finances.

ADMINISTRATIVE CHANGES.

Quite apart from the absorption of the Chief of Ordnance Department, a good many other changes will be necessary if the new business department is to be formed on the lines proposed by Sir Ian Hamilton. In the first place, the Quartermaster-General's Department will be merged in the new department, together with the existing Army Service Corps and the finance department. Amongst the duties which General Hamilton suggests should be assigned to the department would be the compilation of Parliamentary estimates, the accounting for all sums expended by the Defence Department, cash payments, the examination of accounts, and provision of the financial personnel required to assist the other branches of the Defence Department. Accordingly, the General points out, the creation of a special finance section would be essential, and the necessity for the present finance department would disappear. A scheme on these lines is now being worked out by the Minister, but obviously, as he pointed out yesterday, the framing of a detailed plan involving so complete a reorganisation of the administrative functions of the existing military system of the Commonwealth cannot be undertaken rapidly, and needs very careful consideration.

DECENTRALISATION PROPOSALS.

Concurrently with the proposed reorganisation at headquarters, a scheme for decentralising a good deal of the administrative work is also being worked out. This cannot, however, be arranged adequately until the new business department is organised, as an essential feature of the new department is a considerable measure of devolution in financial and general administrative matters. Senator Millen stated yesterday that the necessary decentralisation in military matters, which will also have to be dealt with in due course, was not nearly so important or urgent as what might be called the business side of the work. The congestion at present existing was caused mainly by a mass of correspondence and reference to Melbourne on a variety of administrative matters, which would in future be dealt with by the new business department, thus relieving the State commandants and their staffs of a great deal of detail work, to which they have at present to devote a considerable amount of time, and leaving them free to direct their energies into purely military channels, and the training of the members of the military forces for which they were primarily appointed.

HOME RULE BILL.

THE THIRD READING

CARRIED BY COMMONS.

NATIONALISTS JUBILANT.

LONDON, May 25.

The House of Commons was crowded this afternoon in anticipation of the resumption of the debate on the motion for the third reading of the Home Rule Bill.

Mr. Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, on taking his seat, was greeted with ironical cheers and cries of "Where's Charley Masterman?"

There was a renewed demonstration on the Opposition side on the admission of the new Unionist members, Major Bowden and Mr. Gansoni.

The Speaker, referring to the disorder on Friday, when he suspended the sitting, said he ought not to have used the expression he did when addressing Mr. Bonar Law. He regretted the implication that Mr. Bonar Law had been responsible for the disorder, and suggested that Mr. Asquith (the Prime Minister) should give further information regarding the proposed amendments to the Home Rule Bill.

Mr. Bonar Law paid a warm tribute to the impartiality of the Speaker, adding that, as leader of the Opposition, he would always endeavour to support the Chair.

Mr. Asquith said that the Government intended to incorporate in the Amending Home Rule Bill any settlement which might be reached before it was introduced; otherwise it would contain the offer the Government made on March 8, to provide for the exclusion of such Protestant counties of Ulster as might so desire for a period of six years.

Speaking on the motion for the third reading of the Bill, Mr. Bonar Law said he would not make a further appeal to Mr. Asquith. It was futile and ridiculous to discuss the Bill. "Let the curtain ring down on the contemptible farce," he added. "But, though this is the end of the act, it is not the end of the play. The final act will be played in the country, but there it will not be a farce when the Government are unable to find a seat for their Ministers. It is evident," he concluded, "that the final tribunal is not far distant."

Mr. Asquith replied that the indignation of the Opposition was due to want of imagination. He did not desire a better mandate than the confidence of the majority of the House of Commons.

The motion for the third reading was then carried, the voting being—

For the Motion .................. 351
Against .......................... 274

Two hundred and forty-five Liberals, 35 Labour members, and 74 Nationalists, voted for the Bill, and 272 Unionists, and Sir John Cory (Liberal), and Mr. Agar-Robartes (Liberal) against it. Mr. D. V. Pirie (Liberal) refrained from voting.

The O'Brienites abstained from taking part in the division.

One Liberal and two Nationalists were absent from the division, but did not pair. Two members attended walking with the aid of crutches.

The Nationalists were jubilant, and waved their hats and order papers.

The Liberals joined in the cheering, but the Opposition retorted with scoffing cries of "Toe the line."

There were renewed Nationalist demonstrations in the lobbies.

The bill was taken to the House of Lords, accompanied by 20 Nationalists, cheering and waving their hats. Mr. W. G. Gladstone accompanied them, and the public in the Central Hall cheered the procession.

A number of visitors in the lobbies sang "God Save Ireland" and "A Nation Once Again," as the bill passed to the House of Lords.

The House of Commons adjourned till June 9.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

The Home Rule Bill was read the first time in the House of Lords this evening.

The second reading will be moved on June 8.

The House of Lords adjourned till June 15.

MR. REDMOND'S STATEMENT.

THE AMENDING BILL.

Mr. John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, when interviewed, said "The division marks the death of an inglorious union. The dead union's place will be taken by a new union, founded upon mutual respect and goodwill, which will be followed by peace, prosperity, and loyalty. There is a prospect of what is called an amending bill, but let there be no mistake about that. No amendment is called for either by the Government or the Irish party." They all recognised, however, he added, that it was worth paying a great price to ensure that Home Rule would operate amid universal goodwill, and he hoped Ulster would abandon its unreasonable demands. Only two eventualities would prevent the bill becoming a statute—should Parliament dissolve within a month, or the House of Commons go mad and pass a resolution not to present the bill for the Royal assent. Both were absurd. The Home Rule Parliament was now indisputable, if the amending bill did not outrage fundamental principles.

"Every Nationalist," Mr. Redmond declared, "will rejoice."

NO CELEBRATIONS.

PRECAUTIONS IN IRELAND.

LONDON, May 26.

There will be no general celebration in any part of Ireland. The news was quietly received at Dublin, and met with an unusually quiet reception at Belfast.

Further detachments of constabulary, fully armed, have been drafted to Ulster, and the railway companies have been ordered to be ready to convey military if the police requisition assistance.

There was excitement at Newry this morning on receipt of an order to send the wives and children of the soldiers to The Curragh, which was carried out. Troops at Newry are now confined to the barracks.

Extra police have arrived at Londonderry. Over 1000 have been drafted to Ulster since Tuesday.

Ulster volunteers and Nationalist volunteers are patrolling their respective districts in Londonderry, where all is quiet.

A Catholic peace committee has been formed at Belfast to assist the authorities to preserve order.

"TIMES" ON THE SITUATION.

The London "Times" says that the situation has hardened, and the chances of agreement are more remote than they were six months ago.

ALBANIAN REVOLT.

TURKISH FLAG HOISTED.

DURAZZO, May 26.

The rebels at Kavaja expelled the Government officials, hoisted the Turkish flag, and proclaimed Essad Pasha.

Prince William visited the outposts at Durazzo, and later rode to Schiak to confer with the insurgents.

An Austrian squadron, including two Dreadnoughts, is proceeding to Durazzo.

KING CRITICISED.

VIENNA, May 26.

The press severely criticises Prince William of Wied's precipitate flight before a horde of peasant insurgents, and suggests that his timorousness has seriously compromised his sovereignty.

The difference between the Austro-Hungarian and Italian Cabinets on the matter is believed to be acute.

MEXICAN SITUATION.

AEROPLANES FIRED AT.

VERA CRUZ, May 25.

United States military airmen, while aeroplaning over the outskirts of the city, received a volley from Mexican riflemen, but no damage was caused.

There are renewed rumours that a revolt is pending in Mexico City.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

WASHINGTON, May 25.

Mr. Bryan (Secretary of State) has received messages through the Spanish Ambassador indicating that there is no cause for alarm through the activity of the Mexicans around Vera Cruz.

The United States agreed that no aeroplanes should pass over the Mexican lines while hostilities were suspended.

The Department of War has decided not to withdraw the United States battleships from Mexican waters until the possibility of war disappears.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

Satisfactory reports have been received from the mediation conference at Niagara Falls to the effect that a basis has been arranged on which the United States and Mexico should be able to reach a settlement.

THE TITANIC.

LIABILITY OF OWNERS.

UNITED STATES RULING.

WASHINGTON, May 25.

The Supreme Court held that the owners of the White Star liner Titanic, which was wrecked on an iceberg in the Atlantic, in April, 1912, with great loss of life, are liable only in accordance with United States maritime law.

This means that litigants will receive nothing by way of compensation or damages, as the law limits the liability of United States companies to salvage from the wreck, and passenger and freight money collected from passengers, which in this case amounted to 90,000 dollars.

Mr. Justice M'Kenna dissented from the decision of the Court, holding that the British law ought to apply in the case of British companies.

Suits involving 13,000,000 dollars are pending in American courts.

IMPERIAL PREFERENCE.

FEELING IN SOUTH AFRICA.

CAPETOWN, May 26.

The income tax debate in the Assembly developed into a discussion on Imperial preference, which Mr. H. E. S. Fremantle denounced as "poisonous," and Mr. J. X. Merriman described as "absolutely ludicrous, and a premium on the indifference and laziness of the British manufacturer."

General Botha (Prime Minister) said that if preference was abolished, reciprocity would be impossible, which would do much harm to South Africa.

The followers of General Hertzog expressed themselves in favour of the abolition of preference.

The debate was adjourned.

MR. HAMEL'S FATE.

AIRMAN STILL MISSING.

LONDON, May 25.

There is no news of Mr. Hamel, who started to fly from France across the Channel on Saturday.

The captain of a steamer has reported that he saw an aeroplane when in mid-Channel on Saturday afternoon.

PANAMA EXHIBITION.

LONDON, May 25.

Mr. Asquith announced in the House of Commons this evening that the Government adhered to its determination not to participate in the Panama Canal Exhibition.

British traders, he stated, were not willing to participate on such a scale as would ensure adequate representation.

EMPIRE DEFENCE.

JAPAN AND THE PACIFIC.

COLONIAL INSTITUTE DINNER.

LONDON, May 25.

Prince Arthur of Connaught presided at the dinner of the Colonial Institute to-night, and among those present were:—Prince Alexander of Teck, the Duke of Marlborough, Lord Bryce, Sir John Madden, Sir George Reid, Mr. Thomas Mackenzie, Lieutenant-General Sir Edward Hutton, the Agents-General for the Australian States, and Mr. G. Fowlds (New Zealand Minister for Education).

Messages of greeting were received from Sydney, Melbourne, and Hobart.

Prince Arthur of Connaught said that whether Imperial Unity proceeded on the lines of trade preference, or whether the solution was to be found in common duties and responsibilities, some day the Empire would be not only splashes of red across the map of the world, but a real union of hearts and brains, and common interests, intent on solving questions affecting the destinies of the Empire.

Prince Alexander of Teck recalled the enthusiasm and loyalty to the Crown shown in the Dominions during his tour in the Ophir.

Sir John Madden (Chief Justice of Victoria) responded to the toast of "The Dominions," and detailed Australia's view of the Pacific problem. "Australia," he said, "is not disposed to accept the British Government's dictum that the Pacific is safe because Japan will look after it. Australia's trouble is that Japan will look after the Pacific a great deal too well. Australia recalls that the man up a tree, who is safe from the bull, can give good advice, but the man in the field takes another view of it. Australia is anxious that the Pacific shall be fully guarded."

Sir George Reid (High Commissioner for Australia) proposed the toast of "Imperial Defence." He said that a love of peace had recently become the highest evidence of national respectability. Nevertheless, the British fleet was a most potent instrument to keep the dogs of war in their kennels. "In previous wars," he added, "Britain has relied on Providence, while our enemies have licked us into shape. It is time to let Providence have a rest."

Australia, he concluded, was not aggressive, but submitted to compulsory service and to the spending of millions on the navy.

OVERSEAS CLUB.

SUCCESSFUL OPENING FUNCTION.

LONDON, May 25.

The Overseas Club, the membership of which numbers 120,000, opened its London headquarters to-day, the ceremony being performed by the Lord Mayor.

A luncheon was held in honour of the occasion at the Waldorf Hotel, among those present being Lord Stanhope, Earl Meath, and the Agents-General for the Australian States.

Lord Northcliffe, the president, and founder of the club, read telegrams from the Duke of Connaught, Mr. Alfred Deakin, the Lord Mayor of Melbourne, the Governors of New Zealand, Tasmania, and Western Australia, branches in New South Wales, Brisbane, Melbourne, Wollongong, and remote places like the Falkland Islands.

Lord Selborne and Lord Buxton proposed the toast of the Dominions, which was replied to by Sir George Reid (High Commissioner for Australia) and Mr. Thomas Mackenzie (High Commissioner for New Zealand).

NAVAL LIBEL CASE.

OFFICER AWARDED DAMAGES.

DISCONTENT ON THE LONDON.

LONDON, May 25.

The hearing was concluded to-day of the case in which Captain T. W. Kemp, formerly commander of the battleship London, sued Mr. Yexley, editor of a periodical named "The Fleet," for libel.

The plaintiff was awarded damages amounting to £3000. An application for stay of execution was refused.

Mr. Yexley admitted that he only investigated the case of the men on the lower deck, and did not ask Captain Kemp for an explanation. Defendant further stated that Lord Kilverstone, formerly First Sea Lord, and Mr. McKenna (Home Secretary), late First Lord of the Admiralty, had thanked him for his services to the navy.

The Judge, in summing up, protested against the increase of the pernicious habit of trial by newspaper. Mr. Yexley's plea of justification was the most ragged he had ever seen. If Captain Kemp was a strict disciplinarian, the jury must say whether he was blameworthy for the discontent on the London.

Captain Kemp's counsel stated that the paper appealed to the lower deck, and solicited the crew's criticisms of their superior officers. The articles on H.M.S. London likened the conditions aboard to the swashbuckling of German officers at Zabern. In giving evidence, Captain Kemp denied that the vessel was seething with discontent, but admitted that when the London was recommissioned he was not reappointed.

THE LATE PIERPONT MORGAN.

SON DENIES ALLEGATIONS.

NEW YORK, May 25.

Mr. J. P. Morgan, son of the late Mr. Pierpont Morgan, has denied the statement made by Mr. C. S. Mellen before the Interstate Commerce Commission that Pierpont Morgan concealed the truth as to the management of the New Haven line. He also denies that he had removed Mr. Mellen from the position of president for personal reasons, or that his father overrode Mr. Mellen's activities in any way.

ALLEGED ESPIONAGE.

WATCHING A ZEPPELIN LAND.

PARIS, May 25.

A sensation has been caused by the arrest of M. Clement Bayard and two companions near Cologne on Friday on a charge of espionage.

They were imprisoned in a common cell for 36 hours, being accused of witnessing the landing of a Zeppelin airship from a considerable distance, though they had secured German permits.

Mr. Bayard subsequently returned, and lodged a complaint with the Government.

BERLIN, May 26.

The Foreign Office has ordered an inquiry as to the treatment of Mr. Bayard.

ANGLO-PERSIAN OIL DEAL.

LONDON, May 26.

An official memorandum issued by the Admiralty on the transaction with the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, states that it is important and essential that the Navy should secure control of oil supplies. The Government will have two directors on the board, with a power to veto, which will only be exercised in the interests of the nation.

POISON BY PUNKAH.

INDIAN INGENUITY.

DELHI, May 26.

During the trial of natives charged with conspiracy, the Crown Prosecutor produced a pamphlet recommending the use of poison. It advised Indians to disguise themselves as punkah pullers, and pump poisonous gases into the bedrooms of Europeans.

LAUNCHED.

THE ONE BIG UNION.

WORLD-WIDE VIEW.

A CONSTITUTION ADOPTED.

170,000 UNIONISTS.

The constitution and rules of the proposed "Australian Union Federation"—the outcome of the alliance of unions which controlled the interests of Australian industrialism in connection with the New Zealand strike—were discussed at the conference of unions, which was concluded at the Trades Hall yesterday, under the presidency of Mr. W. M. Hughes, M.P.

It was decided to have a permanent federation on the lines of the allied unions' conference.

The following preamble was thereupon adopted:—

> "Whereas modern union methods tend more and more to the complete control of the means of production by powerful groups of capitalists, and whereas the influence and power of capital is not confined to any one locality or any one industry, but already extends to the entire industrial sphere of countries and continents, and bids, before long, to embrace the civilised world in its octopus-like grip; and whereas the interests of the workers are in grave danger from such causes; and whereas, under the present loose system of localised control of industrial organisations, a successful struggle against these combinations of capitalists is almost hopeless—therefore, it is expedient and necessary, that there should be a closing up of the ranks of labour, irrespective of the interests in which they are engaged or the country in which they dwell, in order that the workers may present a united front to the capitalists, and, by the power of concerted and well-considered action, wage successfully the battle of humanity against the power of wealth."

ANNUAL CONFERENCES.

The federation will consist of federations and unions only; any bona fide organisation of employees will be eligible for membership. The affiliation fee will be £5. The general control of the federation is to be vested in an annual conference, and the general management in a council of 12, to be elected at the conference. The council is to elect its president, two vice-presidents, and general secretary. No affiliated organisation is to withdraw from the federation during any dispute or pending dispute in which an affiliated organisation is involved. Representation at the annual conference or any special conference will be upon the following basis:—(a) Up to 5000 members, one delegate; (b) 5001 to 10,000 members, two delegates; (c) 10,001 to 15,000 members, three delegates; (d) over 15,000 members four delegates.

INDUSTRIAL DISTURBANCES.

The rules dealing with industrial disputes are the following:—

Every affiliated organisation shall at the earliest opportunity notify the general secretary of the federation of any dispute (which may involve an industrial disturbance) or any proposed alteration of existing industrial conditions in the industry in which such organisation operates. The general secretary shall make a record of all such matters in a special book kept for that purpose, and immediately upon receipt of such notification refer all such matters to the council, which shall determine the course to be adopted by the organisation immediately concerned, as well as by all affiliated organisations, and such decision shall be binding upon the organisation immediately affected, and upon all other affiliated organisations.

No cessation of work or disturbance of existing industrial conditions (which may involve an industrial disturbance) by any affiliated organisation shall take place unless and until the matter has been laid before the council and the council has so decided.

In the event of any industrial disturbance or dispute or alteration of industrial conditions in which any organisation not affiliated with the federation is concerned, the council shall take official notice of the matter, and shall decide the attitude to be adopted by the federation and every affiliated organisation, and no affiliated organisation shall act or refuse to act in regard to such dispute except as decided by the council.

A resolution was carried, "That the delegates present pledge themselves to take every opportunity to bring about the acceptance of the constitution and rules by their respective unions."

GREETINGS TO NEW ZEALAND.

A letter was read from the New Zealand Federation of Labour, asking the conference to send a delegate to the conference to be held in the Dominion in July. It was decided that arrangements could not be made to send a delegate, but the following resolution was carried:—

> "That this conference of Australian unions sends its fraternal greetings and good wishes to its fellow-unionists in New Zealand, and trusts that their labours in conference will be crowned with the best results for the workers generally."

COAL DUST.

Consideration was given to the safety of the Metropolitan Colliery, Helensburgh, which question had been referred to the conference. In view, however, or the arrangements made for dealing with coal dust, a resolution was passed congratulating the Southern miners, and stating that, pending the settlement being given effect to, further consideration of the matter be postponed.

PROVISIONAL COUNCIL.

The following provisional council of 12 was appointed:—Mr. W. M. Hughes, M.P., Waterside Workers' Federation (president); Mr. J. H. Catts, M.P., Amalagamted Railway and Tramway Service Association (general secretary); Mr. W. G. Spence, M.P., and Mr. E. Grayndler, representing the Australian Workers' Union; Senator Guthrie, representing the Federated Seamen's Union; Mr. D. Watson, Colliery Employees' Federation, Northern district; Mr. Kirkwood, Illawarra Colliery Employees' Federation; Mr. H. A. Mitchell, Federated Engine-drivers and Firemen's Association of Australasia; Mr. J. Elffe Newcastle Coal Trimmers' Union; Mr. H. W. Delaney, Western Miners' Federation; Mr. D. A. O'Sullivan, Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association; and Mr. J. Rudd, Federated Carters and Drivers' Union.

It was decided that this council (to be convened by the president) should meet from time to time. This, however, would be on the assumption that the federations and unions concerned would agree to adopt the constitution.

In addition to the representation, published in yesterday's issue, the further inclusion of the Federated Engine-drivers and Firemen's Association and the (officially omitted) inclusion of the Waterside Workers' Federation would, Mr. Catts said, make the conference representative of about 170,000 unionists throughout Australia. He also said that the conference expected to see other big unions follow the example of Mr. Mitchell, and join the federation.

MR. HUGHES' COMMENTS.

Mr. Hughes, seen at the concluson of the conference, stated that delegates were to be congratulated upon the result of their deliberations. The constitution had, of course, to be submitted to various organisations for approval, but there was every reason to believe it would be adopted. The view he took was that the conference marked a notable advance in industrial organisation, and that under the wider federation of unions Labour would enter the field of industrial conflict armed with the most effective weapon in modern industrial warfare—solidarity and concerted action.

DEMENTED MAN.

ATTEMPTS TO JUMP FROM TRAIN.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

While a demented man was being conveyed from Gunning to Goulburn by train he made a desperate attempt to jump through the window while the train was travelling at a high rate. He succeeded in shattering the glass, and would have jumped through the window if he had not been promptly seized by the legs.

SUBMARINES.

WELCOME TO OFFICERS.

CIVIC RECEPTION.

A civic reception was tendered by the Lord Mayor (Alderman R. W. Richards) at the Town Hall yesterday to the officers of the submarines AE I. and AE II.

The assemblage included Rear-Admiral Sir George Patey, Captain Glossop (of H.M.A.S. Sydney), Captain Brownlow, Flag Lieut. Poe, and Lieut. Commander Besant, Lieutenants Stoker and Haggard, and Engineer Lieutenants Paterson and Hubbard, of the submarines; Colonels Wallack and Luscombe representing the military forces, the Speaker (Mr. R. D. Meagher), the Anglican Archbishop of Sydney (Dr. Wright), Sir William M'Millan, Messrs. S. Hordern, Norman Murray, H. Pratten (president of the Chamber of Manufactures), W. J. Donnelly, Milner (president of the Water and Sewerage Board), Keele and Walsh (Harbour Trust), and several of the aldermen and other leading citizens.

In proposing the toast of the officers of the submarines, the Lord Mayor said that from particulars that had been supplied to him by an authority he had learned that the idea of a submarine was conceived as far back as 1578, but that it was not until 1887 that it assumed practical shape. The French led the way, and they were perfected by the British Navy. It was gratifying to know that the submarines had been concerned in a record voyage for such craft. He welcomed the officers, assuring them that the hearts of the people were with them, and that all hoped that they would long be spared to be an effective unit in the defence of Australian shores. (Applause.)

Lieutenant Commander Besant responded on behalf of the submarine service. Eighty-two days had, he said, elapsed from the time of their departure till the end of the voyage, of which 52 days were spent at sea, and as long voyages in such small craft were monotonous they were glad to be ashore again. They had covered 15,500 miles, and been towed for a third of the distance. At Port Darwin and Cairns, the only other Australian ports called at, extraordinary interest had been displayed in the visit of the submarines, and great hospitality had been extended to those aboard them. The Australian submarines were of the latest type, and though much larger than the original type, still larger ones were being built, and it was hard to say where they were going to stop. Finality had not been reached. Seventy trained men had been brought out, and of them 30 were Australians, who, on the way out, had proved themselves good men, some exceptionally so. (Applause.) The submarines would, he thought, be found very valuable additions to the defence of the Commonwealth. (Applause.)

Rear-Admiral Patey thanked the Lord Mayor and citizens for the interest they had always taken in the Australian fleet. He could assure them that it was appreciated.

The health of the Lord Mayor was proposed by Archbishop Wright.

The Minister for Defence (Senator E. D. Millen), who was unable to be present at the reception at the Town Hall, expressed his appreciation to a representative of the "Herald" of the remarkable voyage which had been undertaken by the submarines. Not only was it notable as having been the longest journey undertaken by British submarines (the total length of the voyage has been estimated at upwards of 15,000 miles), but the vessels kept to the scheduled time to a remarkable degree. "The vessels," said Senator Millen, "were due to leave Portsmouth on March 2, and to arrive in Sydney on May 21. This programme would have been adhered to but for a stay arranged at Cairns in deference to the wishes of the citizens of that town and district. This fact, together with the inclement weather encountered after leaving Cairns, made the submarines three days late in their arrival in Sydney. Otherwise they would have kept to the scheduled time. Admiral Patey, in referring to the recent battle practice of the Australian fleet, called attention to the fact that his programme had been observed with regard to dates in every particular, and the voyage of the submarines, in spite of all the difficulties surrounding such a lengthy journey, is a further instance of the punctuality which is a cardinal point in the administration of the Royal Australian Navy."

CONSERVATORIUM.

COUNCIL APPOINTED.

REPRESENTATIVE SELECTION.

One of the missions on which Mr. Carmichael, the Minister for Public Instruction, has gone to Europe relates to the establishment in Sydney of the Conservatorium of Music of New South Wales.

He has undertaken the quest of a principal for the Conservatorium, and is bent on securing a professional of high standing in the musical world. This is one of the positions that, it is agreed almost by common consent, the State should look abroad in order to fill satisfactorily.

In the meanwhile the Government has taken steps to appoint the council of the Conservatorium. This body is to consist of ten members representative of interests in touch with the musical life of the community, and the members are to hold office for three years. Yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Council, the Governor, with the advice of the Government, approved of the appointment of the following as the first council:—

Mr. Peter Board, M.A., (chairman), Alderman R. W. Richards (Lord Mayor of Sydney), Judge Backhouse, M.A. (vice-chancellor of the University of Sydney), Messrs. Octavius C. Beale, H. Y. Braddon, Joseph Bradley, Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O., J. A. Bryant, Alfred Hill, W. Arundel Orchard, Mus. Bac., and Hugh Ward.

POLICE FORCE.

INCREASE NEEDED.

CHIEF SECRETARY'S INTENTIONS.

The State Parliament will in all probability be invited during the next session to consider the condition of the police force, and the various police stations in the country. An extra vote to improve matters is to be asked for.

The Ministerial head of the Department, Mr. Cann, said yesterday that it was his intention to ask Parliament to vote money for extra police. It is recognised by the Minister that the growth and development of the State requires the force to be kept fully equipped, especially in view of the fact that so many duties outside purely police work are thrown upon the shoulders of the force, in the way of collecting rolls, and so forth. Contemporaneously with the growth in volume of this extra work that falls to the lot of the police, the necessities of the internal administration of the department are daily becoming more and more exacting. During recent years there have been a considerable number of retirements on the part of officers reaching the age limit, and this makes a constant and larger infusion of new blood absolutely necessary. Added to all this, the criminal class are matching greater skill against the advanced and scientific methods now in vogue in the Police Department in the direction of detecting offenders by means of the finger-print system, and altogether, Mr. Cann thinks a substantial increase in the personnel of the force should be made.

UNION OF FLEETS.

BATTLE PRACTICE.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND

UNDER ADMIRAL PATEY.

The Minister for Defence (Senator E. D. Millen) stated yesterday that an inquiry had been made by the Imperial authorities whether the Commonwealth Government would permit the Imperial warships on the New Zealand Station to participate in annual battle practices with the fleet unit of the Royal Australian Navy.

"The Commonwealth Government has," Senator Millen stated, "readily fallen in with the suggestion, nd the ships will join Admiral Patey's command for the desired purpose towards the end of the year. It is obvious," remarked the Minister, "that the vessels in question could not take part in battle practice by themselves, and, if they are to maintain the necessary training for active warfare, the only other alternative would be for them to join the British vessels on the China Station.

"The Government has been very glad to be of some slight service to the Admiralty in this manner, especially having regard to the generous assistance which has been given to the Royal Australian Navy in a variety of ways, and this affords a further instance of the fact that the Royal Australian Navy is essentially an Imperial fleet, ready to co-operate with other Imperial forces, both in time of peace and in time of war, and to serve the general purposes of the Empire to which Australia, in common with other Dominions, is proud to belong."

TREATMENT OF INSANE.

THE EARLY CASES.

INSPECTOR-GENERAL'S REPORT

The Inspector-General of the Insane has furnished the Premier with a report in which he makes recommendations for the treatment of mental diseases.

"What is specially needed," says Dr. Sinclair, "is a more vigorous treatment of early cases, with a view to preventing them becoming less curable." He points out that the lunacy laws in the past have taken more care of the legal requirements than of the medical, and he emphasises that the patients' diseases should not remain undealt with through legal formalities until it has advanced to a stage in which it is certifiable. His recommendation is that provision should be made for mental cases in the general hospitals, which should be open to patients on the simple recommendation of their medical attendants, certificates for those whose illness requires legal restraint to be provided at a later stage.

"Since cases of mental diseases," he says, "occur generally throughout the community, the treatment of the early stages cannot be reserved for mental specialists. Accommodation requires to be available even in remote country towns. In the metropolis, however, the numbers are large enough to warrant a ward in each of the large general hospitals. As these hospitals are used for clinical teaching the student would become familiar with the early symptoms of the disease, the cases being more like those they meet in practice than those in the later stages usually observed in the ordinary mental hospital. Greater attention to the teaching of mental diseases at the University is also necessary, and the subject should no longer be regarded as one of the minor or optional ones. The Lunacy Department need not be associated with the work, except so far as it may be desired to have inspection."

For more advanced cases Dr. Sinclair recommends (1) enlargement of the mental hospital; (2) remodelling of the Reception House; (3) further classification of existing hospitals; (4) classification of all mental cases into (a) those to be treated medically without certification; (b) those to be treated needing moderate certification; (c) those to be treated needing full certification. The Inspector-General of the Insane also considers the cases of the feeble-minded, imbeciles, inebriates, epileptics, and the criminal insane, in each of which he makes certain recommendations necessary, to the bringing of lunacy administration in New South Wales abreast of the most modern practice.

Mr. Holman said yesterday that, though the proposals of the Inspector-General were far-reaching and important they would not involve the country in very great expense. He proposed to discuss them almost at once with Mr. Flowers, the Minister for Public Health.

ALDERMEN DISAGREE.

SCENE AT NORTH SYDNEY COUNCIL.

A scene occurred at the North Sydney Council meeting last night.

Alderman Cowdroy had been discussing the matter of the submission of duplicate building plans to the council, and said that, in one case, a plan for a 9-inch wall had been sent in, and when the building was erected, the wall was found to be only 4½ inches. In another case, a window, which did not appear in the plan, had been put in the building.

Alderman Green made a remark about "always crawling round."

Alderman Cowdroy: You're a liar.

Alderman Green: The man who says I'm a liar is a liar himself. I won't be called a liar by a thing like you.

Alderman Green then rushed round to where Alderman Cowdroy was sitting. Alderman Blue caught Alderman Green's hands, and pinned them behind his back.

Order was restored after a good deal of noise, and the Mayor (Alderman Anderson) demanded withdrawals and apologies from both aldermen. These were immediately given, and the business of the meeting was proceeded with.

MANUAL LABOUR.

"MERITS UNIVERSITY DEGREE."

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

In the course of an address on education at a meeting of the Women's Electoral League last night, Mr. Blair, Minister for Education, said Queensland had a marvellous system of education. If the Government was judged on its education policy alone, it ought to be remembered gratefully for all time. The State was spending £600,000 a year on education. The fault of the education system was that it did not teach the people to view labour in its true perspective. He would like to see an education system which recognised the work of the hand as on an absolute equality with the work of the brain, and which would confer on the worker by hand a university degree equally with the man who worked with his brain.

DEATH OF A CHINESE.

A PANIC-STRICKEN FRIEND.

BOMBALA, Tuesday.

A well-known Chinese gardener, Ah Too, died under peculiar circumstances yesterday. He was being driven in a spring cart from Bombala to his home at Craigie by a fellow Chinese, and was sitting at the back.

The Rev. Robt. Elliott, who happened to be driving along the road, noticed the huddled-up appearance of Ah Too in the cart, and, on examination, the man was found to be dead. The driver of the vehicle became so alarmed that he bolted into the bush, leaving the clergyman with the dead body. Mr. Elliott drove the Chinaman's vehicle to a neighbouring house, and communicated with the police.

An inquest was held to-day, when a verdict of death from natural causes was returned.

AVIATION.

GOVERNMENT'S INTENTIONS.

LATEST MACHINE WANTED.

The Minister for Defence (Senator E. D. Millen) stated yesterday that, having regard to a recent cable message to the effect that the British War Office had solved the difficulty of stability in flight, and were purchasing and constructing a number of machines conforming to the latest pattern possessing this desideratum, he had placed himself in communication with the Imperial authorities in connection with the matter. He proposes to act on Sir Ian Hamilton's general recommendation for the purchase of additional machines, but, before deciding to take any step in developing the Commonwealth Aviation School, the Minister is anxious to obtain information with regard to the most up-to-date and efficient aeroplanes which can be secured for military purposes. The inquiries which have been set on foot in London will, Senator Millen thinks, enable him to come to a decision with regard to future purchases of machines. The type of machine referred to in the cable message may be only an experiment, but, on the other hand, may prove to be an invention of which every military organisation possessing an aviation section should avail itself.

"The answer to the inquiries which I have made will be either definite or indefinite. That is to say, we shall know whether the new machine is worth having, in which case we shall ask the War Office to allow us to purchase one, or we shall be told that the machine is still in the experimental stage, or cannot at present be permitted to be used outside the United Kingdom. Whatever the answer is we shall be guided in making our future arrangements. One thing, however, I wish to make clear. I do not propose to put the cart before the horse. The development of an aviation section of the Commonwealth military forces must proceed in a natural and orderly sequence. The first thing we have to do is to get our aviation school fairly going before we widen out the work. How far we go in purchasing machines suitable for the highest kind of aviation work will, to a large extent, depend on the inquiries which we are now making."

Senator Millen added that he hopes at an early date to be in a position to issue regulations with regard to the admission of volunteer pupils to the aviation school on the lines recently announced in the "Herald." In this, as in other directions, the Minister desires to "utilise the citizen soldier, and to keep the permanent element down to a minimum compatible with efficiency." He is not at present making any inquiries about seaplanes.

A BIG DEAL.

CITY PROPERTY SOLD.

The firm of Hardie and Gorman Proprietary, Ltd., has effected the sale in London of one of the principal business sites of Sydney, and the price paid was £75,000.

The land is at the corner of Pitt and Moore streets, and is known as Martin-chambers. The rooms of Richardson and Wrench Ltd., are also embraced by the site. The purchasers are the London Bank of Australia Ltd., and the vendor is Mr. Henry Bull, of London. The property is the opposite corner to that upon which the head office of the Commonwealth Bank is being erected.

The site has a frontage to Pitt-street of 57 feet, by a depth of 135 feet to Moore-street. Most of the buildings on the land will have to come down. The leases for these, however, have yet a year or two to run. On the Pitt-street frontage the price paid works out at about £1320 per foot, but the price in this instance was fixed per block and not per foot. The Commonwealth Bank site, on the opposite corner, has 6½ feet more frontage to Pitt-street. The purchasers of Mr. Bull's block will be called upon to pay the betterment tax on the Moore-street portion.

THREATS OF MURDER.

"MUST DIE BEFORE NIGHT."

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Love so ardent that it found vent in threats of murder was alleged in the City Court today, to have entered the breast of a young man named Samuel Claye, of South Melbourne, and so consumed his better judgment that it became necessary to issue a criminal summons against him.

The informant was Jessie Faulconer, whose solicitor (Mr. A. C. Secombe) explained that she is well known in the city as a daring rider of motor cycles and driver of motor cars; but her nerve apparently cannot stand the strain of perpetual intimations that she must die before night.

Claye was charged with having, on May 19, most violently and maliciously threatened and declared that he would murder her, and on other dates threatened her with grievous bodily harm. He did not appear, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

"BIGGEST HUMBUG."

FATHER O'REILLY'S REJOINDER.

BATHURST, Tuesday.

The Very Rev. M. J. O'Reilly to-night replied to the remarks of Mr. Bruce Smith, M.P., on Empire Day.

"To be a leading light even in a comparatively insignificant role is enough to excite the vanity of most men," he said, "hence my conceit was tickled by Mr. Bruce Smith's declaration that I was the biggest humbug in Australia. On such a subject Mr. Bruce Smith is an authority not to be lightly disregarded, and yet, in view of the company in which that admittedly great man now finds himself, my well-known modesty compels me to disclaim the title. While Empire songs and hymns and canticles are being sung wherever the flag flies on May 24, everybody seems to be knowingly winking at everybody else.

"I stick to what I said to our college lads on Sunday. As the family comes before the State so should Australia come before the Empire. When the guns begin to shoot our men at St. Stanislaus will probably give as good an account of themselves and their love for Australia as men who come to Sydney fresh from the inspiring spectacle of a pillow fight in the House of Representatives."

NATIVE "GOD" ARRESTED.

SIX WEEKS' IMPRISONMENT.

SUVA (Fiji), May 20.

For some weeks past a "god" (Vakacuruluveniwai) has been working mischief amongst the Fijians round Tailevu. Calling himself "a son of the devil," he has practised a number of cruel frauds on the credulous natives.

The man's evil fame soon spread throughout Viti Levu, and, upon reaching the ears of the Inspector-General of Constabulary, Mr. I. M'Owen on Saturday last instructed Sergeant-instructor Joni Lewenilovo to proceed to Tailevu and endeavour to put an end to the "god's" evil influence.

Joni succeeded in capturing the man. He was brought to Levuka, and tried before the District Commissioner. He was found to be "an imposter and a knave," and was sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment, with hard labour.

BOY KILLED BY TRAM.

GERMAN CONSUL'S SON.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Paul Heinrich Hirschfeld, aged 8 years, a son of the German Consul, Dr. Hirschfeld, was run over by a tram in Queen-street to-day, and killed instantly.

ARBITRATION.

MANY AMENDMENTS.

LABOUR'S DEMANDS.

BOARDS' INCREASED POWERS.

LAWYERS OBJECTED TO.

The Labour Council yesterday served the Premier with a comprehensive list of amendments to the Industrial Arbitration Act, which have been agreed to by the 120 affiliated unions.

The proposals attack some of the vital principles of the Act, which was piloted through the last State Parliament by Mr. Beeby, and which repealed the Industrial Disputes Act of the last Liberal Administration. Several of them also come into direct conflict with the announced intentions of the Government.

It has, for instance, been stated by the Premier and other Ministers that it is proposed to abolish the wages board system, and appoint extra Arbitration Court judges to deal with claims and make awards. The Labour Council wants the wages board system retained, but wants the chairmen to be "permanent salaried officers," and the boards to sit continuously.

The Premier has also declared that it is proposed to have a schedule of exemptions in the new Act instead of a schedules of industries declared to be under the Act, thereby exempting all others, as is at present the case. The Labour Council declares definitely that there shoulr be no exemptions at all, but that "all workers come within its provisions."

Another vital principle of Mr. Beeby's Act is the constitution of boards under industrial groups. The Labour Council asks that the old system of the Act passed by Mr. Wade be reverted to, and that boards be constituted on a craft union basis.

The amendments, for which it is understood the Government has been waiting, before putting in hand the drafting of the amending measure, cover practically the whole purview of the Act. Council delegates have been engaged for some months in the consideration, in committee, of innumerable suggestions that were received from the unions in response to an invitation from the council. The proposals, which were at length got down to reasonable form, have been finally approved by the delegates, and sent on to the Government, with a request for a deputation to advocate their adoption.

BIG POWERS FOR BOARDS.

In contradistinction to the proposal to do away with the boards, and make all the arbitration tribunals essentially judicial ones, the Labour Council desires a sweeping enlargement of the powers of wages boards. It is desired that they shall be given power to grant annual leave on full pay; that they shall be empowered to determine the question of the relationship of employer and employee in all cases; to determine any dispute between an industrial union and employers; to regulate apprenticeship; to exclude "improvers," and provide for only two classes of labour—journeyman and apprentice; to enforce re-instatement, and to award financial compensation in cases of wrongful dismissal; to determine the proportions of junior to senior labour, and of female to male labour, where the sexes are not paid equally; to determine whether an industry is to be carried on yb piecework or by time wage conditions; to determine the closing time of businesses; to give absolute and effective preference to unionists.

All these, and some more of minor importance are included in the increased powers sought for wages boards. They are not granted under the present Act, and, if acceded to in the amending measure will practically do away wit hall questions of the jurisdiction of boards. The boards under these conditions would have practically absolute power, greater powers, in fact, than are possessed by the president of the Commonwealth Arbitration Court. The State Industrial Court would then be purely a court of appeal on questions of fact.

GENERAL MACHINERY AMENDMENTS.

Included in a long list of suggestions for the amendment of the machinery clauses of the Act of 1912 are the following:—

A special tribunal be appointed for the purpose of determining the minimum wage, and that the Government institute an inquiry to ascertain the average dependant family among the industrial classes.

State employees doing "substantially the same class of work" to be paid the rate of wages ruling in outside employment.

The appointment of union representatives as honorary inspectors.

Only agreements between registered industrial unions and employers be permitted.

Appeals from industrial magistrate's decision on matters of fact, in addition to matters of law.

The Act be amended to include members of a family in the definition of employee.

That employees' representative on the board shall be a person nominated by the industrial union covering the industry for which the board is constituted.

That awards shall not be for a period less than twelve months or longer than three years, provided that prior to the expiration of an award the board may extend its operation until superseded by a fresh award.

The exclusion of the legal profession.

"FOR HIS CUSTOMERS."

COONAMBLE, Tuesday.

A case in which much interest was taken occupied the Licensing Court yesterday.

Lee Goon, Chinese shopkeeper, was asked to show cause why he had a large quantity of liquor on his premises, consisting of cases of whisky, wine, and Chinese brandy, he not being the holder of a wine or spirit license.

Senior-sergeant Fraser, licensing inspector, asked the bench to believe that the liquor was not there for lawful purposes.

Mr. J. D. Y. Button, who appeared for Lee Goon, contended that the liquor was not sold, but was only given away to the defendant's customers.

After hearing evidence the Bench made an order for the liquor, which was exhibited in court, to be returned to Lee Goon.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

A.W.U. AND THE PREMIER.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

The local branch of the A.W.U., at its last meeting, carried the following resolution:—"That this meeting of the A.W.U. members strongly disagrees with the attitude which the Premier (Mr. Holman) has taken on the question of appointing Members to the Legislative Council. We, as unionists, maintain that he is flouting the first plank of the Labour platform, and also the decision of conference, and we are strongly of opinion that the names of all nominees to the council should be submitted to the caucus and the P.L.L. for endorsement before appointment."

HAWKER ROBBED.

RECOVERY FOLLOWS ARREST.

MITCHELL, Tuesday.

A hawker, named Sam Anthony, was relieved of £170 worth of jewellery. He left his box, containing the jewellery and fancy goods, in a room at an hotel securely locked. Returning some time later he found the door open, and the box missing. The police, the following morning, found a pillow-slip and a pair of trousers in the yard wrapped round a large quantity of jewellery. The missing box was found under the railway bridge. An arrest was made, and subsequently the remainder of the missing property was found.

PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS.

VICTORIAN TAX CASE.

INCOME AND PERSONAL EXERTION.

LONDON, May 25.

The matter of Syme versus the Victorian Tax Commissioners came before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council to-day. The High Court of Australia had ordered five of the beneficiaries of the late Mr. David Syme to pay a rate of 1s for income tax from property on £17,000, instead of a rate of sixpence for income from personal exertion.

Counsel contended that the Act defined that all income derived from any trade was from personal exertion, and therefore the appellants were entitled to the sixpenny rate on income from trade which they carried on as trustees.

Lord Moulton (President) remarked that there was nothing in the Act to show that the trade must necessarily be carried on by the person receiving the income.

Lord Sumner: Do not the words "derived from any trade" mean the trade carried on by the person who gets the income?

The hearing of the matter was adjourned.

NEW SOUTH WALES CASE.

In adjourning the case of the Pastoral Finance Association, Ltd., versus the Minister for Works, New South Wales, their Lordships suggested a settlement respecting the amount in dispute.

The action, which was tried in December, 1912, was brought by plaintiff to recover compensation under the provisions of the Public Works Act, 1900, for land at Darling Harbour resumed by the Minister for Works, and the jury returned a verdict for £23,550. On December 27 last defendant appealed to the Full Court to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial, or to reduce the amount of the verdict, on the ground, among others, that the compensation to which the plaintiff was entitled could not exceed the market value of the land at the date of resumption. On March 20 the Full Court, consisting of Mr. Justice Pring, Mr. Justice Street, and Mr. Justice Gordon, delivered its reserved judgment, and by a majority (Mr. Justice Gordon dissenting) granted the appeal and reduced the verdict to £9950, being the amount at which the jury assessed the ordinary market value of the land at the date of resumption, the Court holding that, in the circumstances, the special value to the plaintiffs of the land could not be taken into consideration.

ENGLISH CRICKET.

F. A. TARRANT'S GREAT SCORE.

LONDON, May 25.

In the match between Essex and Middlesex at Leyton, which commenced on Saturday, J. W. H. T. Douglas, captain of the Essex team, won the toss, and sent Middlesex in. The latter scored 464 for the loss of only one wicket, and then declared the innings closed.

The Hon. R. Anson scored 97, J. W. Hearne 106 not out, and F. A. Tarrant 250 not out.

Tarrant played masterly and chanceless cricket, and was aggressive from the start. He batted 5 hours 20 minutes.

Essex scored 173 and 44 for no wickets.

Playing for Surrey against Yorkshire to-day, at Bradford, J. B. Hobbs scored a century in an hour and a quarter. He hit no fewer than five sixes.

ENGLISH BILLIARDS.

GRAY V NEWMAN.

LONDON, May 25.

The return match of 18,000 up, between George Gray and T. Newman, was commenced at Holborn Hall, London, to-day, and at the close of play the scores were:—

| | |
|---|---|
| NEWMAN (receives 2000) ...... | 3190 |
| GRAY .......................... | 946 |

Gray and Newman signed articles to play two matches, each for £250 a side, Gray to concede Newman 2000 points in 18,000. The matches are being played with ivory balls, the spot ball to be marked with ink. Six days' play in the above match will be played with balls provided by Gray, and the other six with balls provided by Newman, the players tossing to see whose set would be used first. The first game resulted in a draw, the final scores being:—Newman (receives 2000), 17,232; Gray, 16,707.

IMPORT DUTIES.

CORK TRADE.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION.

The Interstate Commission continued its sittings yesterday, when evidence was heard in regard to the duties on electroplate and materials, pianos, and corks.

The first evidence taken was in regard to the removal of the duty on unfinished stampings and minor pieces for the manufacture of E.P. goods.

Murray Heffernan, manager of the Sutton Electroplate Company, Ltd., continuing his evidence, asked for the removal of the duty on the minor articles used in the manufacture of the E.P. goods.

Adolf Voigt, of Bogs and Voigt, Berlin, through Otto Pfuhl, an interpreter, said he was a piano manufacturer in Berlin, employing between 300 or 400 hands. They manufactured the middle-class piano, exporting to Australia, and his business had increased. If the duties were decreased the price to the purchaser would be less. The average price of his piano was £21 f.o.b. Hamburg, and he exported an average of 500 per annum to Australia. This was about 10 per cent. of his turnover. The average selling price of his factory output was £17. His factory and a factory at Leipsic employed girls, but not to any great extent. At least 99 per cent. of the German factories did not employ girls. The women on piecework received the same rate as men. Women were better at the polishing than men. Of his employees, 70 were girls and 20 per cent. were youths under 21 years. Wages had gone up in Berlin during the last year; it might be 4 or 5 per cent. The average price of the piano exported to Australia in Berlin was £19. The freight from Berlin to Hamburg was 3s on a piano.

Ninian M. Thomson, of Mauri Bros. and Thomson, cork manufacturers and importers, said the manufacture of corks from the raw material in Australia was not satisfactory. They did not consider the cork industry a suitable or profitable one in Australia. All the raw material had to be imported, and there was a lot of waste in cutting. He was opposed to a higher duty for these reasons. Australia could manufacture corks equal to the imported, provided they cut from the proper wood. They had found the local supply uncertain. Quality for quality the Australian cork was dearer. If the duty of 15 per cent. were removed from cork squares, there would be a greater amount of cutting done in Australia. He suggested a fixed duty on seals of 2½d per gross or per lb, and 3½d on printed seals.

Frederick S. Greenwood, representing the Spanish Australasian Trading Company, said that there was no hope of making the local cork industry pay, unless they had prohibitive duties.

John P. McArthur, managing director of F. Konig and Co., Ltd., pickle and condiment manufacturers, Harris-street, Newtown, said he was applying for the removal of the fixed minimum of 30 per cent. or 1s per lb on cheaper corks of over 1¼ inches.

Frank Penfold Hyland, wine manufacturer, one of the firm of Penfolds, said he wanted the duty removed on the higher classes of cork, used for sparkling wine and champagne bottles.

BOOTS AND SHOES.

Arthur Wybrow, of Wybrow and Co. Proprietary, Ltd., and president of the Victorian Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association, made a statement in connection with the proceedings of the conference of the Boot Manufacturers' Association of New South Wales and Victoria and representatives of the Australian Boot Trade Employees' Federation from New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, and Tasmania. He said that from the statement it looked as though a little roguery had been going on in Victoria; but it was all due to a misunderstanding. He had no idea that the statement had not been sent to the New South Wales association.

Mr. Lockyer: It all seems to be due to the apparent indifference of the New South Wales association?—I would not say that.

While there was a conference last year the president did not know anything about this statement until May. At a meeting then, when they had 24 members present, they carried a resolution favouring the increase of duties?—The letter was sent to the New South Wales association after the sitting of the commission in Melbourne, and no doubt it had something to do with the resolution of the New South Wales association. They apparently failed to connect the letter and the statement. It was entirely due to a misunderstanding.

The chief commission said the New South Wales association had been drawn into the present position rather than steered into it by the Victorian association. The minutes of the conference put before the commission certainly differed from the statement put before it. Continuing, he said the delegates went to Victoria with the full powers of plenipotentiaries, but the arranging of the statement was left to the Victorian members of the committee. He still held that the New South Wales Boot Manufacturers' Association had not carefully considered and deliberated before acting.

Mr. Swinburne said the commission quite understood the attitude of the Victorian association. They had carried out what they were entrusted to do.

Mr. Lockyer said they should accept Mr. Wybrow's statement. On the evidence they could do nothing else, for all the evidence supported what he said.

Mr. Wybrow said the statement was gone into so thoroughly in Melbourne that he did not think there would be so much inquiry about it here. He thought the manufacturers here would be examined generally on the trade and not on the statement.

Mr. Swinburne: A large number of the manufacturers who came before us here did not support the increased duties.

This concluded the evidence, and the commission adjourned till 10.30 a.m. next day, when the general evidence on pianos will be taken.

SMALLPOX.

THE BUNBURY CASES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A telegram from Western Australia informed the Federal Director of Quarantine (Dr. Cumpston) to-day that there were now four cases of smallpox under observation at Bunbury (Western Australia). These are supposed to have developed as a result of a coloured seaman being received in the hospital. Those who have been affected are two patients, who were in the hospital at the time, and the matron and a nurse.

TWO CASES IN SYDNEY.

Two cases of smallpox were reported by the Board of Health yesterday, one coming from the Newtown-St. Peters area, being a contact of a previous case, the second case being a nomad.

COUNTRY BURGLARY.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

When the officials of the South Clifton Colliery went to the colliery office at Scarborough this morning, they found that it had been broken into by burglars the previous night, and that the safe had been blown open by means of an explosive. Every indication was present that the perpetrators of the deed had planned their scheme well, but the reward for all their labour was small. The safe contained only the usual books and a few postage stamps. The police were immediately communicated with, but so far no arrests have been made.

The capital sentence passed on a young man, Henry Todd, for an offence against a girl at Narrandera, was reviewed at yesterday's meeting of the State Executive Council, and commuted to penal servitude for 15 years.

AFTERNOON SHIFT.

POSITION AT NEWCASTLE.

DELEGATE BOARD MEETING.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

A special meeting of the miners' delegate board was held this afternoon to consider the afternoon shift award. Mr. Murphy, general secretary of the Tasmanian and Victorian Coal Miners' Association, and Mr. A. C. Willis, general secretary of the Illawarra Miners' Association, were present.

At the conclusion of the meeting no satisfactory information was available for the press. It is believed that a resolution was passed but was not recorded on the books. Whether that resolution refers to the wages board, the Royal Commission, or leaves something to be dealt with by the miners at their district meetings, remains to be seen.

The Australian Union Federation yesterday discussed the situation, but whether or not the miners did anything further in that direction is not known beyond their own circle.

Mr. D. Watson, the president of the Colliery Employees' Federation, was seen after the meeting, and said: "The question was discussed, and much dissatisfaction was expressed by the members of the board that neither embargo nor extra payment was demanded from the proprietors who have collieries working the afternoon shift. A motion was passed by the board expressing indignation. The board has not taken any definite action in regard to the matter for reasons best known to itself."

VETERAN MAGISTRATE.

DEATH OF MR. WILLIAM CRANE.

Mr. William Crane, one of Sydney's oldest natives, died yesterday morning, at his residence, "Marellan," Cavendish-street, Stanmore. He was 87¾ years of age, having been born on October 5, 1826, at Castlereagh-street, Sydney.

He was educated at the Sydney College, the headmaster of which was Mr. Timothy Cape. Amongst his fellow-scholars were the late Sir James Martin and Mr. William Bede Dalley, who afterwards distinguished themselves in public life, Sir Henry Stephen, subsequently Supreme Court Judge, now retired, and Mr. T. Browne ("Rolf Boldrewood"). Mr. Crane was proud of a large silver medal which he was awarded for proficiency in Latin.

In 1850, when the gold discoveries took place, he and three mates journeyed over the Blue Mountains to the Ophir and Turon diggings. There they met Hargraves, who first found gold in Australia.

Mr. Crane's first position in Sydney was that of law clerk to the late Judge Josephson. Soon afterwards he was appointed clerk in the Central Police Court, which was then on the site of the present Queen Victoria Markets. After several years of service he was promoted to be C.P.S. and P.M. at the Water Police Court. He was one of the first stipendiary magistrates in Sydney, and officiated at the Central Court till his retirement on a pension, 27 years ago.

Mr. Crane was a prominent worker for the Church of England, and for the charitable societies of Sydney. For 45 years he was honorary secretary of the Sydney Female Refuge, a position he held at the time of his death. For 40 years he was on the board of the British and Foreign Bible Society, two of his co-workers being the late Mr. T. P. Reeve and Mr. E. A. Rennie.

Mr. Crane was the oldest director of the Benevolent Asylum, and in 1898 was appointed a life governor for services rendered. For over 40 years he was prominently identified with the City Mission. He was a member of the conference held in 1868 with the object of inaugurating the Anglican Synod, and was a member of that body from 1868 till his death.

For about 60 years Mr. Crane resided in Newtown and Stanmore, where he was regarded as the "Father of the District." He was for many years superintendent of old St. Stephen's Sunday School and took warm interest in his scholars. Other churches with which he was subsequently connected were All Saints', Petersham, and Christ Church, Enmore. He received numerous presentations in recognition of his work for the Church.

In his young days, Mr. Crane was well known as a cricketer on the old Sydney racecourse, now Hyde Park, and he was an active member of the Newtown club. He frequently swam from the Fig Tree, Woolloomooloo, to Garden Island and back.

Mr. Crane, who was twice married, has left a widow, five sons, and two daughters. The sons are: Messrs. William, John, Leslie, Arthur, Ernest, and Russell Crane, and the daughters are Mrs. J. S. Harrison and Mrs. E. Lampard. His sisters (Mrs. Sellar and Mrs. J. Spencer), and his brother (Mr. Christopher Crane), survive him. He has also left a number of grandchildren and one great grandchild.

FUNERAL OF THE REV. R. S. PATERSON.

The funeral of the late Rev. Robert Smith Paterson took place yesterday, and was largely attended. A service was held in the Crow's Nest Presbyterian Church, presided over by the Rev. R. J. H. McGowan, Moderator of the Presbytery of Sydney. The Rev. Scott West delivered an address in which he dealt with the great work accomplished by the deceased during his lengthy connection with the Ministry of the Presbyterian Church of this State. Others who took part in the service were Dr. Harper, Dr. Burgess (clerk of the General Assembly), and the Rev. J. Edwards, M.A., clerk of the Sydney Presbytery.

In addition to the ministers named there were also present the Revs. Robert Kay, J. Lamont, W. H. Bradley (Leura), R. H. Waugh, J. Buchan (Congregationalist), A. McKinlay, J. Paterson, J. A. Perkins, S. P. Reid, J. A. Malcomson, A. Darling, A. D. Robertson, David Smith, C. W. Willis, A. Clark, W. Watt, and J. Lawrie. Amongst the elders and others present were Messrs. W. Ridley, D. Elphinstone, Captain Craig, Alex. Bowen, Andrew McCredie, John Johnson, Frank Buckle, John Buckle, John Telfer, David Telfer, E. M. Stobo, T. L. McCredie, T. J. Darling, John Gray, and J. and E. McDonald. The chief mourners were Masters T. and J. Boyd (grandchildren), Mr. J. Hall (nephew), and Mr. E. L. Brown (Brother-in-law).

The interment took place in the Gore Hill Cemetery, the remains of the deceased being placed by those of his wife, who predeceased him in October, 1907. The service at the graveside was performed by the Rev. W. H. Bradley, of the Wentworth Falls Church, who was assisted by the Rev. F. A. Darling. Mr. Bradley delivered an address, in which he related the facts connected with Mr. Paterson's death, which took place on Sunday morning at Wentworth Falls. Mr. Paterson attended Divine service, and at the close of the service he spoke to the preacher, and proceeded to leave the church. He fell in a faint upon the steps of the church, his heart having failed him, and he died 20 minutes later. Mr. Paterson was 87 years of age.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

A paper on "Joseph Maria Matra, the Father of Australia," was read at the Royal Society's House last evening by Captain James H. Watson. Matra was, the lecturer said, a midshipman aboard the Endeavour, and was presumed to have accompanied the various members of Captain Cook's party on their various excursions around Botany Bay and other places, at which they touched. He thus gained a knowledge of the character of the country, and this enabled him to form an opinion as to the prospects for settlement. He gave a list of the products that he considered could be successfully cultivated, and predicted that Australia would in time become one of the principal suppliers of various foodstuffs and materials for clothing to the markets of the East.

HOSPITAL SATURDAY FUND.

DECREASED COLLECTION.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Hospital Saturday Fund was held on Monday. The report showed that the total amount collected on Hospital Saturday was £5633, or £163 less than for the previous year. From all sources the total receipts to date, which will be slightly augmented before the end of the month, were £9195 14s 10d, as against £9556 16s 7d last year.

Last year the fund distributed £8860 among the various institutions, but this year it was found necessary to reduce it to £8450.

HOTEL BURNT.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The Royal Hotel, Dalby, was totally destroyed by fire this morning. The insurances totalled £3000.

CANGAI STRIKE.

ATTITUDE OF MEN.

FOREMAN'S DISMISSAL DEMANDED.

GRAFTON, Tuesday.

The following particulars have been obtained respecting the strike at the Cangai copper mine.

Mr. W. Hughes, superintendent of the mine, forwarded a statement to the directors that a deputation from the local A.M.A. waited on him on the 18th instant, and stated that there was a man employed underground who did not belong to the union, also that a boy under the age of 18 years was employed at the mine, and was receiving 8s 9d a shift. The deputation further informed Mr. Hughes that a resolution had been passed at the A.M.A. meeting that all men seek employment elsewhere, unless the underground foreman (Frank Ross) was dismissed. Objection was raised to this by the superintendent, who could not see that the deputation had any valid grounds for demanding Ross's removal. When asked if it was because Ross asked them to do too much work that they wished his removal, they answered in the negative, but charged Ross with using bad language.

Mr. Hughes promised to investigate this charge, but, on the Wednesday following, he received a letter from the local A.M.A. to the effect that the members of the Cangai branch of the A.M.A. intended to cease work at 8 a.m. on the 28th inst.

The next move was made by the directors travelling to Cangai, and investigating the matter personally, the outcome of which was a letter to the secretary of the A.M.A. from Mr. Hughes, making an offer of 3/ per foot to any man for boring and firing holes, barring down, and making the ground safe, the company reserving to themselves the right of placing the holes. It was added that there would be no victimisation whatever, but each man must understand that the minimum amount of boring for two men was to be 6ft.

The following reply was received by Mr. Hughes from the secretary of the A.M.A.:—"I am instructed that our members will not consider any proposition without an assurance from you that Mr. Ross will be disrated. In the event of you giving us this assurance, we will gladly consider your terms."

THE WEATHER.

SNOW AT KIANDRA.

Since 9 a.m. on Monday an Antarctic disturbance worked rapidly eastward over the south-eastern States, and caused light rain south of the Lachlan and at scattered places on the southern tablelands and parts of the South Coast; also at Bundella and Walcha (on the north-western slopes and southern tablelands respectively).

The chief amounts were:—Tumbarumba 45 points, Germanton 35, Howlong 34, Albury 33, Gundagai 30, Tumut 27, Adelong and Tocumwal each 26, Corowa and Moulamein each 25, and Deniliquin 20, the remainder being all less than 20 points.

The operations of this disturbance were only short-lived, however, for yesterday morning it had worked so far eastward that it only occupied the south-eastern corner of the continent. During the night or early morning its passage was attended with light to moderate rains generally in Victoria, and light to moderate in Tasmania, as also light generally south of Carrieton and Bruce and east of Streaky Bay in South Australia. The disturbance is now centrally situated over the Southern Ocean to the south of Tasmania, and has been closely followed by a very energetic and extensive "high," which at 9 a.m. yesterday occupied practically the whole of the continent.

It was snowing yesterday morning at Kiandra and Adaminaby, due to the co-operation of these two pressure systems. A "high" of such energy (central value 30.5 inches) has not been experienced formerly during the present season, so that, also considering its dimensions, cool to cold weather, with squally and strong S.W. winds and further rains and snow over the southern highlands, may be expected. A shower or two may also pass over the mountains to the South Coast, with squalls.

SNOW AT KIANDRA.

KIANDRA.—Snow commenced falling early on Tuesday morning, and continued throughout the day, the total fall being three inches. The road is now blocked for motoring. Mustering in the Mountains is now almost completed, the last large mob of sheep having been taken away on Monday.

MILITARY APPOINTMENTS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

When Major-General Kirkpatrick occupied the position of Inspector-General of the Commonwealth Military Forces, he was also senior officer in Australia, and he was paid a salary of £1500 per annum.

According to the arrangements which have now been made, with the approval of the Minister for Defence (Senator Millen), the Chief of the General Staff is to be on an exactly similar footing to the Inspector-General.

During his term of office as Chief of the General Staff, Brigadier-General Gordon was paid at the rate of £1200 a year, but his successor (Col. Legge) will receive £1500, exactly the same salary as that to be paid to Brigadier-General Bridges the new Inspector-General.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.

CONCERT ARRANGEMENTS.

Mrs. Earp presided at a meeting at the Queen Victoria Club yesterday of the committee that is arranging for a concert in the Town Hall on June 15 in aid of the Royal Hospital for Women and the Renwick Hospital for Infants. It was decided to open a fund for expenses, and Mr. G. F. Earp, M.L.C., who is honorary treasurer of the concert committee, gave £50, and Mesdames W. MacMurray, F. A. Bennet, and Neville Mayman £5 5s each. Several others contributed smaller amounts, £70 in all being raised. It was decided to send a wireless message to Madame Dolores, inviting her assistance. An orchestra of 50 professional performers will play a number of selections under the baton of Mr. Joseph Bradley, who is giving his services to the committee.

SUGAR SEASON.

ITALIANS FOR QUEENSLAND.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

There arrived by steamer from Sydney 49 Italian workmen, who will continue their journey to Herbert River and Burdekin, where they are accepting engagements in connection with the sugar season.

LATE MR. T. DAVIS.

Probate has been granted of the will of Mr. Thomas Davis, public accountant, of Martin-place, Sydney, who died at North Sydney on January 28 last. The testator appointed his widow, Janet Neilson Davis, sole executrix, and bequeathed to her the whole of his real and personal estate, the net value of which was sworn at £7146.

MISS ELLA CASPERS CONCERT.

Miss Ella Caspers, newly returned from Melbourne by way of an overland tour, during which she drew crowded audiences at Albury, Yass, Goulburn, and other country centres, made a welcome reappearance at the Town Hall last night. One of her finest efforts was Henschel's "Morgen-Hymne" in which the birth of another day is hailed in strains of rapturous solemnity to closing chords of inspired grandeur, in which the voice of praise ascends to a final climax. Brahm's "The Vain Suit" (also in German) showed that the charm of the Australian contralto's voice was equally applicable to the expression of a playful tenderness; and enthusiasm then led to the addition of Willeby's "A Blessing." Miss Caspers, admirably accompanied by Miss Agnes Caspers, introduced part of a clever song cycle in the Oriental style, entitled, "The Mountains of Allah," composed by Gheel, and first rendered by this singer in London at the Palladium. There was a double encore at this point, "Dear Little Lady" (Agnes Caspers), a refined musical conception delivered with sentiment, and Graham Peel's "Early Morning." Miss Caspers' beautiful voice, and sympathetic animation of style gave renewed impetus to the popularity of Willeby's captivating little song, "Coming Home," composed expressly for her Australian tour, and "At Vauxhall" was added after several recalls. Generally, the return of the young contralto has been amply justified in every way, having won her a new reputation as an artist of distinction, and her return from England in the future on a second tour will find audiences prepared to welcome her everywhere.

Amongst other events last night, mention should be made of a "Hungarian Rhapsodie," for violin, composed by Herr Raimund Pechotsch, a brilliant and characteristic piece cleverly played, with his own "Serenade" as encore. The Rhapsodie has been performed by Mischa Elman, and the Sydney violinist's copy was autographed by that star. Mr. John Carlton Fay's piano solos proved a source of artistic strength, and there were songs rendered by Signor Martinelli. Mme. Pechotsch accompanied the violinist.

COUNTRY NEWS.

SCHOOLS OF ARTS.

MULLUMBIMBY, Tuesday.

A special meeting of the members of the School of Arts was held last night to discuss the billiard committee's action in ordering tables to be repaired at a cost of £2 10s without the general committee's consent. The meeting was a lively one. The committee refused to endorse the sub-committee's action, and wrote repudiating the debt, hence the meeting of members. After a lengthy discussion a resolution rescinding the motion by the committee and endorsing the action of the billiard committee was carried. The committee then resigned in a body, and handed over control to the trustees, who are appointing a provisional committee to carry on till the end of the year.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

Ella Caspers had a most successful concert here last night. Numbers of people were unable to gain admission.

PAMBULA, Tuesday.

An old identity, Mrs. Ann Maria Smith, died yesterday, aged 94. She was one of the oldest residents in the district. Her funeral, which took place to-day, was the largest ever seen in the district.

TRUNDLE, Tuesday.

Mr. J. J. Cornett has been appointed District Coroner for Trundle district.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

An officer of the Central Board of Health arrived to-day to make inquiries as to the origin of the outbreak of diphtheria, which has been prevalent for some time.

CASUALTIES.

SYDENHAM RAILWAY FATALITY.

The Acting City Coroner (Mr. Fincham) recorded, at an inquest yesterday, that William Smith Arthur, 37, was killed accidentally by a train near the Edgeware railway gates, at Sydenham station, on May 14. Evidence disclosed that deceased, who recently returned from Montague Island, where he had acted as lighthouse keeper, left a house in St. Peters on the night of May 14, under the influence of liquor. That night a fireman on the train which left Bankstown at 11.57 felt a slight bump when passing Sydenham, and later it was discovered that the head-lamp of the engine was missing. Arthur's dead body was found lying near this lamp on the railway track the following morning.

CHINESE INJURED.

Yesterday, at 11.25 a.m., two Smithfield gardeners, Quong Ling and Phung Ling, were driving from Quay-street into Ultimo, when their horse took fright, and collided with a stationary motor car. The cart was overturned, and the Lings were thrown to the roadway, each sustaining a fractured leg. The Civil Ambulance took them to Sydney Hospital.

RAILWAY LABOURER'S DEATH.

The Acting City Coroner yesterday inquired into the death of Sydney Charles Hall, 22, a railway labourer, who fell from a moving train at Erskineville on May 19, and died the same day from a fractured skull.

A finding of accidental death was recorded.

A CRUSHED HAND.

BLAYNEY, Tuesday.

Mr. George Leighton, in charge of the locomotive department of the railway here, met with an accident to-day. Some carriages were derailed, and in endeavouring to free them Mr. Leighton's hand was struck by a buffer. As the spring recoiled the thumb and fingers of his right hand were badly crushed, necessitating amputation of the thumb at the second joint, and the top of the third finger.

CYCLIST KILLED.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

On Monday evening William Evans, of Norwood, was riding a cycle, when he collided with a horse and trap. Shortly afterwards he died at Adelaide Hospital.

FATAL RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

BRISBANE, Monday.

Mrs. Margaret Gibson Duncan was run over and killed by a passenger train at Klein crossing.

PROTESTANT DEFENCE ASSOCIATION.

THE EDUCATION SYSTEM.

"The Roman Catholics are striving to get State aid and have made an alliance with the present political party in power. They will get State aid for their schools unless we are alert and expose the unreasonableness of the demand."

These were among the remarks of the Rev. J. A. Waddell, president of the Australian Protestant Defence Association, in his inaugural address last night in the school-room of the Scots Church.

Continuing, he said: "Papalism was still the cause of unrest and strife among the nations. Its arrogant impudent claim to lord it over humanity compels resistance and its history is written in blood. Its intrigues for power led to the American Civil war, it is said; to the Franco-Prussian war, and the Italian war that overthrew the Pope's temporal power. Similarly the crisis in Ireland to-day, which threatens to end in civil war, is due to the intolerance and perfidy of the Roman Catholic Church and its incompatability with civil and religious freedom. Here in New South Wales all our public trouble is traceable to the same source. Romanism cannot, and will not, meet the rest of the community on equal terms. They have formed their parishes into militant camps under a Catholic Federation, to fight until they get State aid for teaching 'death to heretics' and the supreme duty of absolute submission to the Pope. To secure this concession an alliance is made with any political party that will assist the project, and unless the friends of liberty are alert and stand on the defensive, a weak government will grant the demand by such instalments as the Bursaries Act. The Catholic Federation declares for a fight to a finish, and it is high time a counter Citizens' Federation was organised to defend our grand system of public instruction, secular, compulsory, and free, with provision for religious teaching to be given by the various sects as they choose."

INVESTMENTS.

ADDRESS BY MR. R. THODEY.

Mr. Robert Thodey, , president, in the course of an address before a meeting of the Actuarial Society of New South Wales, on Monday, dealt with the question of investments.

It was naturally important, said Mr. Thodey, that funds should yield the highest rate of interest, consistent with safety. Contracts could be honoured at maturity only if the money invested remained intact when wanted for the settlement of claims—hence the difficulties attending investment in what were commonly known as Stock Exchange securities, except such as were redeemable at fixed dates. The case of British Consols never considered a really suitable investment for a life office, was quoted. "Nearer home," said Mr. Thodey, "we have quite as glaring an example. In 1899, when the price of money was low, the Government of New South Wales borrowed money at 3 per cent., repayable at their option after January 1, 1912, on giving 12 months' notice. People who purchased this stock across the Treasury counter paid par, but the same security—the Government not having exercised its option of redemption—is now selling in the market at 73 to 74, at which price, if looked upon as a perpetuity, it returns an investor over 4 per cent. At the present time it might be a good investment for portion of the funds of a life office, but when first issued it certainly was not. This instance is given simply as an illustration of my meaning, since many people hold that the Government having given notice and redeemed a a similar 4 per cent. stock should have redeemed all the other stock issued under the same conditions, but at different rates of interest."

HOUSE THEFTS.

From Womerah, the home of Mr. Leonard Bowerbank, in Rainbow-street, Randwick, a thief during Monday stole clothing worth £1 5s, the property of Mr. Bowerbank, and clothing, jewellery, etc., worth £7, owned by Mr. Arthur Hincks, resident there. An entrance was effected by breaking the catch of the kitchen window while the inmates were away.

From the smoke-room of Walford, in Cremorne-road, Cremorne, a brown leather purse, containing £14 in gold and silver, disappeared. It was the property of Jean Cohen, a boarder.

A noise in her room before daylight yesterday roused Mrs. Connell, of 13 Kellett-street, Darlinghurst, from her sleep. In one corner she saw the figure of a man, and called for help. Two other inmates of the house awoke, and in another minute the intruder was racing along Bayswater-road with two men in pursuit. He escaped towards Rushcutter Bay. Nothing of value has been missed from the house.

The tariff is 7d per word, with a minimum of 20 words, and the rules regarding the acceptance of the messages are the same as those governing similar business with the United Kingdom.

WOMEN IN POETRY.

SOME AUSTRALIAN SINGERS.

Some of the sweetest singers in the long list of Australian poets were dealt with by Mr. A. G. Stephens last evening at the King's Hall, in the second of his "Evenings with Australian Authors."

The first was Ada Cambridge, whose literary life was a tragedy. She "never let herself go," so Australia lost another George Eliot. She had rational ideas, and only the broadest church could have held her. Her verses breathed a passionate sympathy. Annie Adams (Mrs. James Glennie Wilson), a Victorian who went to New Zealand, wrote a couple of novels which, like her poetry, lacked force; but she had a beautiful womanly simplicity of feeling. Louise Mack, the daughter of a marvellous mother, wrote 12 novels, finding a pleasing (though not memorable) place in Australian fiction. Her verses showed an artless spontaneity, as in "Dreams in Flower." She said her verses had written themselves. They were little rills of songs rushing through channels of melody, and aptly reflected the Australian landscape. Dorothea Mackellar mirrored Australian scenery. Her verses were little pictures in water-colour, washed in with skill and sympathy, and showed her love of country. "My Country" was lighter than Ogilvie's "The Bush, My Lover," and her verses were pictorial rather than poetical. Mary Jean Cameron (Mary Gilmore) came of a Scottish ancestry, and the march of the Cameron men sounded all through her life. "Married" achieved a wide popularity. Mary Black (Mary Foote) came from Scotland, was now in Queensland, and recently wrote a stirring march for the Australian cadets. Her best lines were emotional rather than intellectual. Last on the list was Jessie Mackay, New Zealand's glorious poet, whose "Strathnaver No More" was beloved by thousands of readers. The "Land of the Morning" brought a noble poetic gift to Scotland. She was a true singer.

During the evening Miss Lois Zucker and Mr. A. K. Jamieson rendered acceptable musical illustrations of the poems.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The eastern high-pressure made very rapid easting during the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday, and is now centrally situated over the central parts of New Zealand.

The Antarctic disturbance has moved northwards, and at present covers the south-eastern corner of New South Wales. This disturbance has travelled close upon 1000 miles since 9 a.m. on Monday.

The most energetic winter type of high pressure this season at present covers the greater part of the continent, the highest readings, 30.53 inches, were situated at 9 a.m. yesterday over the western portion of the Bight. This, in conjunction with Antarctic disturbance, should result in cold weather generally, with squally south-west winds, and some showers and snow on the southern tablelands.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally and rough around Tasmania, and later over the Tasman Sea. Freshening north-west winds around the Leeuwin; smooth to moderate elsewhere.

STILL ON THE REEF.

The B.I. and Q.A. Company has received a wireless message from Captain Hutchinson, of the steamer Waipara, which is ashore on the Hannibal Island reef, with 350 immigrants aboard, stating that an attempt was made this morning, with the assistance of the steamer Cyrena, H.M.S. Fantome, and the vessel's own engines to get her off the reef. The effort, however, proved unsuccessful.

The master of the steamer Kuranda has been instructed to leave Cairns and proceed to Cooktown for orders, and if the Waipara is still on the reef, she will proceed to render assistance.

RECOGNITION OF UNIONS.

MELBOURNE TROUBLE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

An extension of the embargo which has been placed on all Harbour Trust repair work on account of the refusal of the chairman of the trust, Mr. Holden, to recognise trades unions, was decided upon by a conference of representatives of 12 unions.

THE DOLLS' CARNIVAL.

A crowded meeting in connection with the Dolls' Carnival, in aid of the Children's Hospital, was held at the Lady Mayoress's rooms, at the Town Hall, yesterday afternoon. The Lady Mayoress occupied the chair.

Mr. Moss, the secretary of the hospital, announced that Miss Fourdrinier had been appointed organising secretary, and that an office had been obtained at Vickery's-chambers, 76 Pitt-street. Good progress was reported in connection with the organisation of the carnival. The living dolls' ball is to be a big feature, and already elaborate fancy sets are being arranged. Many additional offers of assistance were received, among them being a promise given by Lady Cooper of being responsible for a musical and theatrical programme during the afternoon and evening sessions.

Lady Patey, who was present at the meeting, stated that she was in full accord with the object of the carnival, and to that end she was convening a meeting, to be held at Admiralty House on June 1, at which the wives of the naval officers would be present. Miss Wallack and Mrs. Christian, representing the military section, signified their intention of co-operating with the naval section in the control of a stall.

Mrs. Macarthur Onslow, who was unable to be present, notified the committee that she would organise a Bondi stall, and would be pleased to receive offers of help from those resident in that municipality. Mrs. Clubbe, wife of the president of the hospital, is convening a meeting at her residence of the wives of the hon. medical staff at the Children's Hospital, for the purpose of arranging a flower stall.

Later a second meeting was held of a number of the artists and the hon. architects to the carnival (Messrs. Ross and Rowe), to discuss the designing and the setting of the stalls, the chief feature of which will be a huge Noah's Ark.

UNLOADING SHEEP.

THREE MEN CHARGED WITH CRUELTY.

The Animals' Protection Society yesterday conducted three cases in the Burwood Police Court, in which cruelty to sheep was charged, as the outcome of the methods employed in unloading sheep trucks at the Flemington saleyards. The charges were brought by Mr. W. T. Moss, the society's secretary, for whom Mr. F. J. W. Donovan appeared. Mr. Walker appeared for the defence. Mr. Fitzhardinge, S.M., presided.

William Wallace, employed by William Davis, was charged with cruelty to sheep. Mr. Moss said defendant and another man were unloading sheep on May 7. Dogs were sent into the truck, and the sheep rushed about as though dazed, but did not come out. Defendant caught hold of one and threw it violently on to the platform, where it lay stunned. He then went into the truck, and the sheep were unloaded in a few minutes.

The defence was that the usual custom of using dogs was adopted, but no unnecessary force was used. It was a daily occurrence for sheep to fall on their heads, and get stunned. There were 232 sheep in the two trucks, and they were all removed from the siding in good condition.

A fine of £1, with £1 17s costs, was imposed, in default one month's imprisonment.

Philip Murphy was charged with cruelty to the sheep by using dogs to get them out of the trucks. Mr. Moss said there were five dogs in the one truck which drove the sheep frantic. It was the trampling thus brought about that caused the frequent maiming of sheep.

The magistrate imposed a fine of £1 and £1 13s costs, in default one month.

George Bignall was charged with cruelly ill-treating sheep on May 14. Mr. Moss said defendant sent dogs into the truck, and also pulled sheep out by the hind leg, and dragged them down the staging and across the cobble stones to the centre of the yard, where they lay till dragged to their feet. Another sheep became suspended in the wall of the truck, where the dogs snapped at it, but defendant did not release it until he had unloaded all the rest. Defendant was warned by Inspector Ferris, of the Meat Industry and Abbatoirs Board, and he then locked the dogs up, after which he had no difficulty in getting the sheep out.

Defendant said he had been droving for about 40 years, and had never had any complaints. He denied any cruelty.

The magistrate fined defendant £1, with £1 13s costs. He said he had inflicted light penalties because these were the first cases of the kind which had come before him.

Notice of appeal was given in each of the three cases.

ROLLER-SKATING.

The final of the half-mile novice handicap at the Moore Park roller skating rink last night was won by B. Rigg from C. Hale, with J. Britt close up third.

BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

The report and balance-sheet of the Bank of New South Wales presented to the meeting of proprietors yesterday shows in an unmistakable way the prosperity that this time-honoured institution continues to enjoy. The period covered is the six months ended March 31. Deposits have materially expanded compared with the corresponding period of last year. Advances were rather smaller. A comparison with previous years may be made as follows:—

| | Deposits. £ | Advances. £ | Net Profits. £ |
| March 31, 1911 | 33,255,407 | 22,932,282 | 204,878 |

The shareholders met yesterday under the presidency of Sir Chas. Mackellar, a report of the meeting appearing elsewhere. The president remarked that the favourable season had enabled many of their clients to pay off or reduce their debts, and the money which had thus come in had been used in the exchange business.

AUDITORS' RESPONSIBILITIES.

"Newcastle" writes:—

Sir,—My opinion offered, with some trepidation, is if there is anything good in the auditors' report the shareholders should know. If there is anything to a company's detriment, they should likewise know. Surely all are concerned in its progress, and may offer suggestions of which many shareholders may have knowledge which may be very useful indeed to the company concerned. Are shareholders to be treated as so many logs of wood to be rolled hither and thither, with no interest in the rolling process?

COST OF PATENTS.

"Experentia Docet" writes:—

Sir,—In your commercial columns of Tuesday, A. B. Jewry writes on the above subject, and there is no one more deserving of sympathy than the inventor without money. He will want it badly, and the patent laws, as at present administered, won't keep him; in fact, they operate the other way. Commercial men want a secure title, which the patent isn't. Of course it should be; but that is another story. A recent American writer says: "You can usually go ahead safely in patenting a 'bone-shaped' dog biscuit that is so like a bone that the dogs will bark for it, but genuine invention is the surest route to endless litigation." And this is unfortunately equally true of Australia. My advice to inventors is:—Not to trust the Patents Office until some saner methods of treatment prevail—until it is shown that a patent is anything more than a letter of introduction to the law courts—which prompts me to inquire: What has become of the movement to form an inventors' institute?

COLONIAL MUTUAL LIFE.

The report of the Colonial Mutual Life Assurance Society, Ltd., covers the 12 months ended December 31 last. It deals in some detail with the compulsory investigation of the affairs of the society by Government inspectors, and states that though the Government voluntarily reimbursed the costs of the investigation, and also paid the fees of the inspectors, this was no adequate compensation for the injury done to the society's business. The directors express confidence that the society's ability to emerge successfully from such a searching independent investigation must be not only a great satisfaction to all the members, but the clearest possible evidence of the soundness of its position and its impregnability. The figures relating to new business, while showing a falling off in consequence of the special circumstances referred to, are still good, and reflect the efforts of the management under the conditions existing for a great part of the year. The new business in the ordinary department is £2,044,134, while annuities amounting to £1572 per annum were issued. In the industrial department the new business is £928,631. In the accident department there were issued combined life, accident, and sickness policies assuring, in addition to the life assurance benefits included in the business of the ordinary branch, the sum of £171,000; and there were also issued accident and sickness policies assuring £240,871. The total new business in the three departments thus amounts to £3,384,636. Claims in the ordinary branch by death amounted to £127,029, including bonuses, and £69,182 by endowments maturing. Industrial claims by death are £7008, and by maturity of endowments £2214. The revenue account of the ordinary department shows that the total income, including renewal premiums, £395,047, new premiums £76,118, consideration for annuities £245, interest and rents £155,411, and fidelity guarantee fund £221, amounts to £627,143. Payments to policyholders for claims, surrenders, cash bonuses, etc., amount to £284,947, and commission and expenses to £154,646, and, after making appropriations for office property depreciation and other writings down, the funds of the ordinary department are increased by £173,861, and now stand at £3,618,811. Expenses show a reduction as compared with the previous year, while the rate of interest yielded has increased from £4 7s 10d to £4 10s per cent. The freehold and leasehold properties yield at the present time a return of 4.1 per cent. per annum. In the accident department the net premiums were £[illegible],250, and the fund at the end of the year was £14,557. The balance-sheet of the ordinary and accident departments shows that, including current liabilities for claims in course of settlement, etc., the balance-sheet total is £3,670,784. This is represented by cash items £192,942, Government and other debentures £761,160, loans on mortgage £1,433,797, freehold and leasehold property £834,403, loans on policies within surrender value £336,146, and other assets. Amongst the principal changes shown in comparison with a year previously is an increase of £159,756 in Government and other debentures. In the industrial department the premium income amounts to £85,605, against £77,634 for the previous year; and the funds at the end of the year stand at £120,170, after repaying £22,351 to the ordinary department. Adding minor items, the balance-sheet of the industrial department shows a total of £120,704, which is represented by loans on policies, cash, and other items £8211, and extension of organisation account £112,493.

NELSON CARBONATING CO., LTD.

The annual meeting of the above company was held yesterday at Stephen Court. Mr. E. [illegible] Buchanan, chairman of directors, presided. The annual balance-sheet and directors' report disclosed improved and expanded business for past fifteen months, resulting in a dividend at rate of 8 per cent. per annum on preference, and 10 per cent. per annum on ordinary shares being declared. Directors were reduced in number from six to five. The retiring director, Mr. Geo. Georgeson, was re-elected unopposed. As Mr. C. Nelson, managing director, is about to leave on a trip to America and England, in connection with the business of the company, the directors and staff presented him with a handsomely-fitted travelling-bag to mark their appreciation of his general management. Messrs. Marks, McDonald, and Witt were elected auditors, and Mr. W. A. Stennett was elected secretary.

F. LASSETTER AND CO., LTD.

At the annual general meeting of the above company Mr. William Johnstone was elected deputy chairman and director, and Mr. J. B. Quinlan was elected director. The board will now be constituted as follows:—Chairman, Colonel H. B. Lassetter C.B.; deputy chairman, Mr. William Johnstone; directors, Messrs. F. Lassetter, W. A. Peake, and J. B. Quinlan. Mr. Johnstone has been for 28 years with Messrs. Robert Reid and Co., of York-street, 22 years of which he was manager of the Sydney branch, and will join the board on August 1. Mr. W. A. Peake, who joined the board in December last, will continue to act as secretary, as well as director, having held the former office for 15 years. Mr. J. B. Quinlan has been for 28 years at Lassetters, and for the last 15 years has been in charge of all the ironmongery departments and the grocery. The chairman, in his annual speech, said he considered the advent of the above gentlemen would prove a great acquisition to Lassetters. He lamented the loss of the late Mr. Walter Browne, and he had appointed Mr. R. W. Haselgrove to fill his position. Mr. Haselgrove had been with the firm for over 33 years. Mr. Albert Borchard was unanimously elected auditor for the current year, ending February, 1915, and Colonel Lassetter took the opportunity of stating how much he appreciated his valuable advice and assistance.

EQUITABLE PERMANENT B.B.L. AND S.I.

The fortieth annual general meeting of the Equitable Permanent Benefit, Building, Land, and Savings Institution was held at the society's registered offices a tnoon yesterday, Mr. Charles Bown presiding. The report and balance-sheet were adopted. One of the retiring directors, Mr. J. P. Johnson, was re-elected, together with Mr. Hunter Macpherson, who fills the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. James Brown, whose appointment as a trustee made it necessary for him to vacate his position as director. Mr. H. C. Brierley continues with the society as auditor.

INCOME TAX PROBLEMS.

5 PER CENT DEDUCTION.

"Grazier" writes:—

I am a western grazier, holding a western lands lease, on which I have erected improvements to the value of £1400, the whole of which are used in making my income. I deducted 5 per cent., or £70, from my income tax return. This the Commissioners have disallowed, on the grounds that under the new Act they are entitled to do so. Is this correct?

Yes. The exemption was disallowed under the Amending Act.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

ANOTHER INCREASE IN RATES.

PROTEST BY MERCHANTS.

The Master Fruit Carriers' Association of Sydney has notified the various wholesale fruit distributing firms that on and after June 1, the following rates will be charged on all cartage done:—

1.—Ex Railway, Hawkesbury, Ryde, or Parramatta boats to markets: Double cases, 2d; bushel cases, 1½d; halves and quarter cases, 1½d; 12lb cases, ¾d. Empty returns free. Or, double cases, 1½d; bushel cases, 1d; halves and quarters, 1d; bags, per bushel, 1d. All empties, ½d each. Pumpkins, melons, and loose vegetables, up to 12 doz., per doz. 4d; over 12 doz., per ton, 4s. If loaded by carrier, 1s per ton extra.

2.—Shipping from Railway, market, or stores: Pine cases, 1½d; bushels or packers, 1½d; halves and quarters, 1d; bags, per bus., 1d; crates vegetables, 4s; through fumigator, extra ½d. When expenses are paid by carrier, ½c per case extra; minimum, 2s.

3.—Carting to the other, store to store, or ex fumigator: 3½ cases, 1d; empties, ½d; minimum, 2/.

4.—Markets or stores to rail: All cases, 1d; bags, per bus., 1d; melons, pumpkins, or loose vegetables, per doz., 4d; over three tickets, 6d per ticket extra; empty cases, ex rail or boat, each ½d; minimum, 2s.

5.—Ex Sussex-street wharfs: American or Italian double cases, 2d; pine cases, 1½d; bushel cases, 1½d; halves and quarters, 1d; bags, per bus., 1d; crates vegetables, 4s; crates bananas or melons, 2s; doubles, bananas, 2d; special doubles, 3d; pumpkins, per bag, 3d; pumpkins, per ton, 4s; bananas, per bunch, 1d. Ex Woolloomooloo, Circular Quay, Miller's Point, and Pyrmont wharfs, extra ½d per case or 6d per ton; minimum, 2s.

6.—Peanuts, Cocoanuts, etc: Per ton or one horse load, 4s.

7.—Jam and Pickle Factories: City, per load (not exceeding 35 bus. cases), 3s 6d; Annandale, 5s; Newtown, 5s; Stanmore, 6s; Leichhardt, 6s; Darlington, 4s; Glebe, 4s. Melons 1s per ton on above rates if loaded by carrier. All empty cases return to market, per 100, 3s; all empty cases return to boat or rail, 3s 6d.

8.—All work done before or after working hours and holidays, 50 per cent. extra to be charged.

9.—All delays over half an hour to be paid for at the rate of 2s per hour for one horse and 1s per hour for each additional horse.

Yesterday afternoon the fruit merchants held a meeting to consider the position. It was stated that this was the second advance which had taken place within the past 18 months. On February 24, 1913, a new scale of charges was introduced which showed an advance of about 30 per cent., in comparison with the rate previously ruling. "When the master carriers announced their previous increase," said one agent, "they had a legitimate excuse for so doing. Wages had been raised, and horse feed was at exceptionally high levels. But no such conditions apply now, and, if the present demands are granted, it means that additional profits will be put into the pockets of the master carriers. And we have every reason to believe that the profits now earned are fairly substantial."

It was ultimately decided that the agents should refuse to accept the new schedule of charges, and that the Master Fruit Carriers' Association be notified accordingly. It was furthermore agreed that in the event of the master carriers not being willing to continue on the old basis, a company should be formed by the agents to do the carting at the old prices.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

A steady business was done in groceries yesterday. Scroll salmon in halves were scarcer and could not be obtained under 8/9 per dozen. Other descriptions were without change. Sardines and herrings were going out at unaltered rates. Rocksalt ex Jordan Hill, now 89 days out, was selling at 55/ per ton. The vessel is expected to arrive shortly. New season's dried apples from Tasmania were coming in, but the shipments were small, and consequently no stocks remained. Bulk lots were quoted at 8½d pr lb, and carters 9½d. Australian muscatels were not available. Malagas were still favoured at ½d above best Australian rates. Californian prunes were sold at 8d for 90-100 to the lb, and 9d at 60-70 to the lb.

Oils were steady at late rates. As the overseas market was firmer for turpentine, New York quoting 2/10½ c.i.f., merchants were inclined to speculate. Among the business transacted was the sale of 200 cases of pinetree on spot at 3/2. Linseed-oil was distributing at 3/8 to 3/10 for first brands, and 3/6 and 3/7 for second brands. Whitelead was firm at £40/10/ for Champion's, and £38/10/ for other descriptions.

A little inquiry for wires was noted from the country, and netting, too, had some business. Cement was steady.

The chemical market was quiet. The run on refined paraffin oil was still pronounced, but stocks had been replenished to some extent. Best qualities were quoted at 8/ per gallon. Some lots offered at low rates were undrinkable. Sodas were fetching full rates. Acids were quiet. Rosin was lifeless. Strychnine was obtainable at 2/2 per ounce, but was becoming scarcer. There was no inquiry for phosphates, which has gone out of favour as a rabbit poison. Of the English market, Sir S. W. Royse and Co., Limited, report under date, Manchester, April 24:—"The demand from the textile trades especially is quiet; and altogether there is no improvement in the general position, and apparently no early prospect of any. Sulphate of copper has again been disappointing, demand being slow, and prices easing with the metal: exports during the first three months of this year were 24,036 tons, as against 34,165 tons during the first quarter of 1913. Green copperas is somewhat less active, but prices remain unchanged. Lead salts are in general easier with the decline in value of metal: nitrate of lead is more freely offered: white and brown acetates have only a moderate inquiry: litharge and red lead are selling quietly for near delivery only. American grey acetate of lime is selling better at low prices now ruling: brown acetate is steady, with little inquiry. Acetate of soda has a fair demand for early shipment. Carbonate of potash, although already very low, has drooped somewhat under pressure to realise stocks. Caustic potash is quiet, but unchanged. Tartaric acid and cream of tartar are active, and dearer; makers are very busily engaged for some time ahead, there is a good demand spot and forward, and the position is very firm indeed. Citric acid is again dearer, and is scarce. Yellow prussiates of potash and soda are steady; the former has a fair demand, spot and forward, but the latter article is quiet. White powdered arsenic is plentiful, and is easier. Business in tar products does not improve. In Solvent naphtha there is practically no change, inquiry being very slow. Benzoles are, if anything easier, owing to heavy stocks existing at present. In crude carbolic it is difficult to arrange anything, makers and consumers having different ideas of values. Crystal carbolic continues very slack. Liquid is steady, with only a moderate demand. Creosote continues very firm, and demand for local purposes is very heavy at present. Pitch has lost the slight advance obtained through the Yorkshire coal strike, and with a dull foreign inquiry the market has a weaker tendency. Sulphate of ammonia has, through the existing fine weather, a heavy demand for prompt lots, but for forward delivery there is very little doing, buyers' ideas being too far below present spot values. For heavy alkalies there is a steady demand, and no change in prices."

Cornsacks were again inquired for by the country yesterday, but hardly so persistently as last week. Quotations for seasons shipment were unchanged by Calcutta at 6/4½ c.i.f. Importers asked 6/5½ slings July to October shipment, or 6/6½ to 6/7 net to rails September-November delivery. Woolpacks were steady at full rates 3/, less discount on spot, and 3/1 less discount, for May shipment. Branbags were still normal at 5/5, but buyers refused to consider 5/4. Advices from Calcutta were to the effect that there had been heavy buying for October to March shipment, so it looks as though the branbag market is supplied 12 months ahead.

CUSTOMS NOTIFICATIONS.

Kathreiner's Kneipp malt coffee it to be charged with the duty chargeable on roasted coffee.

Pneumelasticum imported in sizes suitable for use with pneumatic rubber tyres in lieu of inner tubes, is to be charged with the duty chargeable on tubes for pneumatic rubber tyres.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday totalled 170 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.

THE MARKET SAGGING.

The wheat market sagged yesterday. Prices on spot were certainly without change, but the tendency was easier, and no business in actual grain was done. London cabled that sellers were beginning to press, and were not finding buyers, a sure sign of weakness. Parcels on spot were quoted by sellers at 3/11, but buyers would not go beyond 3/10½. A great deal of cancellation was done at 3/11, the sellers not being able to sell the grain. For forward lots there was more offering, and sellers were more accommodating. Business was done at 3/10½ or delivery July to September, though sellers generally wanted 3/11. In the country business was quiet, shippers offering 3/5½ in the stacks, equal to 3/10 ex trucks Darling Island.

Flour was quiet at £9 for bakers' lots delivered. The demand for export was quiet, in consequence of prices having been raised following on an increase in freights to the East. For best brands £8/12/6 f.o.b. was quoted. Bran and pollard were dull at £5.

ADVANCE IN EASTERN FREIGHTS.

Notification has been made to shippers to the East by the Eastern shipping companies that from June 15 freights will be advanced. It is explained in the circular letters sent round by each steamship company concerned that the advance is due to the increase in handling cost at the Australian end. In other words, the advance is the first fruits of the higher rate of pay made to wharf-labourers by the Federal Arbitration Court. In the case of flour the advance, it has been ascertained, will be 2/6 per ton, from 17/6 to £1. Thus in fighting the American miller for the trade of Hongkong, Manila, and Japan, the Australian miller will be 2/6 a ton worse off. He is trying the market by asking not the whole half-crown, but a shilling more from Eastern buyers, but so far he has found the business very quiet at the advance he is asking. Then soon he will have to reckon with 10d a ton export wharfage, which really amounts to an export duty of 10d per ton. That means that with freight and duty he will be handicapped 3/2 per ton against the American seller. New South Wales exports of flour to Singapore, Java, China, Philippines, and Japan in the wheat year, December 1, 1912, to November 30, 1913, amounted to 36,789 tons.

When the wharfage rate of 10d a ton on flour is compared with 6d a ton on wheat, it is found to be all against the export of the manufactured product, and in favour of the export of the raw material—wheat. When the wheat is exported as wheat the export due is 6d: when the wheat is exported as flour and offal the export due is 10d. So there is a duty of 4d a ton against the Australian manufacturer. When prices are cut fine on quotations for large quantities even 4d a ton counts.

In addition to the advance in Eastern freights, an advance is expected in interstate freights.

ARRIVALS BY RAIL.

Wheat and Flour.—The receipts of wheat and flour by rail at Darling Harbour and the suburban railway stations for the week ended May 26 are as follows:—

| | Wheat. | Flour. |
|---|---|---|
| Week ended May 26 | 16,031 | 1,303 |
| A week ago | 15,881 | 1,339 |
| A year ago | 1,041 | 1,149 |

The total arrivals to date for the statistical year, which commenced on December 1, compare with those of the corresponding period of the previous three years as follows:—

| | Wheat. | Flour. |
|---|---|---|
| 1913-14 | 466,609 | 23,255 |
| 1912-13 | 328,857 | 21,863 |
| 1911-12 | 372,061 | 18,937 |

| | Yesterday. | Last Year. | 2 years ago. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wheat, per bushel | £0 3 10½ | £0 4 4 | £0 3 3½ |
| Flour, per ton | 9 0 0 | 10 0 0 | 8 10 0 |
| Bran, per ton | 5 0 0 | 7 0 0 | 5 0 0 |
| Pollard, per ton | 5 0 0 | 7 5 0 | 5 0 0 |

In the case of wheat, the price is the average given by shippers.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 1857 tons of wheat and 156 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 14,000 fat sheep were yarded, all classes being represented. There was a fair attendance of the local and country trade, and the market opened brisk at a shade advance on late values, quickly firming to from /6 to 1/ above last week's quotations. Though the bulk of the yarding shared in the rise in values, occasional sales towards the close of the day were a little irregular, with a weakening tendency. Quotations:—Prime crossbred wethers, from 24/ to 27/; extra prime ditto, 28/ to 32/6; odd pens, from 33/6 to 36/; odd sheep to 50/; good crossbred wethers, from 21/6 to 23/; second ditto, 18/6 to 20/; inferior ditto, to 17/6; prime crossbred ewes, from 23/3 to 25/9; extra ditto, 26/6 to 29/6; good ditto, 19/6 to 22/; second ditto, 16/9 to 18/6; inferior ditto, 14/; prime merino wethers, from 22/ to 24/; extra ditto, 25/ to 27/1; good ditto, 19/ to 21/; merino ewes, from 11/6 to 18/9; odd ewes, to 22/; low-conditioned ewes, from 9/1.

Fat lambs: 4270 penned, consisting mainly of secondary quality, prime sorts being scarce. The demand throughout was brisk at a further advance of from /6 to in many cases 1/ per head on all prime and serviceable sorts. Quotations: Prime, from 15/9 to 19/3; extra, from 20/ to 22/3; odd lambs, to 24/7; good, from 13/3 to 14/9; seconds, from 11/ to 12/; inferior, from 8/.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

A QUIET MARKET.

Trade in the dairy section of the Sussex-street produce market yesterday was dull, and for the most part uninteresting.

Eggs were in average supply, and all descriptions were firm. New-laid suburban brought from 2/ to 2/3, and railways and south coasts from 1/6 to 1/8, with a few choice lots at 1/9 a dozen. River eggs were quoted at from 1/6 to 1/7, but inferior samples were to be had at 1/5. There was no movement in duck eggs.

The bacon market was again unsettled, and the demand was restricted to the best known cures.

Cheese met with an average inquiry at late rates. The lowest figure at which New Zealand cheese can be secured is 7d f.o.b.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

The short supplies which were to hand met with a fair demand at late rates.

FORAGE AND GRAIN.

STRONG POSITION OF PEAS.

The position of grey peas is a strong one. The price on spot yesterday was 5/6 a bushel, but the lowest f.o.b. quotation from Tasmania was 5/3. Supplies secured at this figure would cost, by the time they were landed in Sydney, 5/8 a bushel, so that the purchaser could not afford to sell under 6/.

Holders of maize were agreed as to the price. Prime river grain, either white or yellow, was to be had at 3/10 a bushel. The Hastings landed 1800 bags from the Macleay River.

Two shipments of onions were to hand—232 bags from Victoria, and 239 bags from New Zealand. The New Zealand bulbs were not out of the boat, and the quotation for the Victorian samples was unchanged at £8 a ton.

Potatoes were steady, at the previous day's levels.

FORAGE.

Chaff.—Victorian: Wheaten, £4/10/ to £4/15/; oaten £4 to £4/5/ a ton.

Lucerne.—Hunter River: Small bales, £4/15/ to £5; large bales, £4 to £4/10/; heated from £2/10/; inferior and grassy, from £1 per ton.

Derrick Straw.—Tasmanian: Wheaten, £2/5/; oaten, £2/17/6 to £3. Victorian: £2/10/ a ton.

Oaten Hay.—£5 a ton.

GRAIN AND BY-PRODUCTS.

RAILWAY MARKET.

There was a good demand for wheaten and oaten chaff at the railway forage and grain sales yesterday, but prices showed no material advance.

Wheaten chaff of extra choice quality brought 5/3 and 4/11 per cwt, but inferior lots realised from only 3/6 to 4/4.

Oaten chaff was knocked down at from 3/ to 4/6.

Other classes of fodder were not present in any quantity.

Produce placed in position for sale:—Hay, straw, and chaff 95 truckloads, grain 2, potatoes 15.

Produce manifested to arrive:—Hay, straw, and chaff 78 truckloads, grain 10, and potatoes 13.

MINING.

LONDON BETTER IN BARRIERS.

DEEPENING LOCAL DEPRESSION.

ALL SECTIONS AFFECTED.

Local operators were not in the least impressed yesterday morning by the fact that the "middle" quotations of the London Stock Exchange on Monday indicated a fractional improvement in a few Australian stocks, particularly Barriers, with Mount Morgans and Mount Elliotts 1/3 better in each case.

This did not have the least effect in stimulating speculation. Indeed, the record of business done was even worse than on the previous day. Outside commissions were quite rare, interstate business was at a standstill, whilst professional transactions were confined to "squaring up" on a few transactions of the previous week.

With a cloud of depression hanging generally over the market, too much significance need not be attached to the slackness of any particular section of the market, but the slump in the activity of tin scrip is particularly noticeable, for the reason that the high price of the metal, and the conviction that the production is not likely to more than meet the world's consumption, were considered as making for firm share values.

Hence, the big falling off in the demand for Eastern tin propositions, likewise the sagging of values, has been a great disappointment to many speculators. This drop in values was inevitable, with the market generally under a cloud of depression. There is also the fact that "some" operators, after the first rush for scrip and the attendant rise in price, begin to see that it will be sometime before the Eastern tin mines will be in a producing stage, and their action in taking immediate profits led to the unloading of scrip on the market, and thus helped to "bump" values.

On the other hand, many people are holding the scrip as an investment. They bought with the knowledge that it would be a year or two before the mines became producers. They put the scrip in their safes, and there it remains. Such speculators are not influenced by every fluctuation of the metal or share markets.

The transactions recorded in the different sections were so small that they could not be called a "bread and butter business." In the copper section, Mount Morgans were dealt in freely at solid rates on the strength of a recovery of 1/3 in London, but at noon the cash price sagged from 53/9 to 53/3. Hamptdens firmed in the face of an easier London market. There were buyers of Mount Elliotts, but no sellers, the reverse being the case with Wallaroo and Moonta. Mount Lyells commanded good offers, and were well held.

In silver stocks a steady sale on terms was booked in B.H. Norths, whilst buyers for ordinary delivery were not accommodated at a firm figure. Junction North Broken Hill mine also sold on the firm side, whilst buyers of New Burragorang had to pay an advanced rate, consequent on a report respecting very fine ore being developed by No. 6 west rise from No. 5 level. The metal contents of the ore are worth at least £55 per ton of crude ore.

Gold stocks were practically dead. The Ardlethan section of the tin division participated in the general slackness that prevailed. Steady sales were booked in Wild Cherry (paid), with Carpathias quiet.

"We've got no work to-day" fairly characterised the attitude of the members of the Stock Exchange during the afternoon. True, the sales board indicated business in a larger number of stocks than in the morning, but the sales tickets indicated that the number of shares involved was very small indeed. There was very few changes in value of any note.

MINING NOTES

The Broken Hill Proprietary Company, Ltd., has received a cable message, dated London, May 25, giving the following quotations:—Silver, 2/1 15-16 (official quotation); lead, £18/17/6 (buyers' price); shares, £1/17/6 (buyers' price); spelter, £21/10/ (buyers' price); and copper, £63/2/6 (buyers' price).

Our Hobart correspondent telegraphs that the output of the Tongkah Harbour Tin-dredging Company last week was 23 tons of tin oxide.

The assay of a parcel of ore from the Drumlish Hill tin mine, Ardlethan, went 6.1 per cent. of tin oxide.

Another dividend of 3/ per share has been declared by the Edna May Gold-mining Company (W.A.), payable June 12. The distribution will absorb £6420, and, after making provision for the payment, the company has £5000 in hand, while the clean-up is due at the end of the month.

ARDLETHAN TIN FIELD.

THE WATER PROBLEM.

GOVERNMENT ACTION CONTEMPLATED.

Last month prominent attention was drawn in these columns to the languishing state of the Ardlethan tin field for want of water, whilst millions of gallons of it were allowed to run to waste along Mirool Creek, when it flowed a "banker" for several hours after a heavy rain. Curiously enough this rain did not benefit the dams being excavated by the White Crystal, Southern Cross, and Wild Cherry companies to impound water to work their treatment batteries. Yet four miles away, the Mirool Creek carried a flood of water, which, had it been conserved, would have the batteries going for two or three years.

It is now learned that the attention of the Government has been drawn to the matter, and there is a prospect of something being done to overcome this water famine.

Mr. A. D. Patterson, legal manager of the Southern Cross Tin Mining Company, writes:—

Following on the helpful article in your issue of March 28, I have pleasure in handing you herewith a copy of a letter, dated May 23, from the Under-Secretary for Mines, the permission for the publication of which has since been given by the department.

The letter in question is as follows:—

New South Wales Department of Mines,
Sydney, 23rd May, 1914.

Sir,—With reference to your letter of the 30th ultimo, complaining of want of water at the Ardlethan tin fields, I have the honour to inform you that the Department of Public Works was communicated with on this matter, and the department is in receipt of a reply to the effect that a survey in connection with the water supply for the town of Ardlethan has been made, and an estimate of cost is in hand of a scheme of water supply by pumping from a proposed storage reservoir three miles west by north of the town of Ardlethan.

I have the honour, etc.,
(Signed) E. F. PITTMAN,
Under-Secretary.

If the proposed scheme enables the Government to provide sufficient water, aided by the local dams excavated by the tin-mining companies, to keep their batteries constantly at work treating ore, the Government will earn the gratitude of a large number of men, and assist in the profitable production of a large quantity of tin oxide.

MINE AND VALUABLE PLANT.

SEIZED FOR DEBT.

HOBART, Tuesday.

The case of the Primrose Mining Co., N.L., versus the Tasmanian Smelters Co., and interpleader by the sheriff and trustees for the debenture-holders, was down for hearing today in Chambers, before Justice Nicholls. The Primrose Co. are the execution creditors, and have seized the works at the smelters for a debt of £2500. The State Under-Treasurer and H. Harris, trustees for the debenture-holders, put forward a prior claim, the debenture-holders, including the Government and the sheriff, have interpleaded on behalf of the Government, which has advanced £20,000 to the Smelters Co. in order to get the decision of a judge of the court as to the rights of the parties. Upon his Honor taking his seat on the Bench, and having decided that it was a matter of such public importance that it should be heard in open court, an application was made by the Primrose Co.'s solicitors for an adjournment, and an adjournment was granted sine die.

JUNCTION NORTH BROKEN HILL COMPANY.

THE CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The ordinary half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Junction North Broken Hill Company was held to-day, Alan H. Nott, chairman of directors, presiding. The chairman, in the course of his speech, in moving the adoption of the reports, said:—Taken altogether, we have had to charge our accounts with £35,806 of extraordinary expenditure. The concentrates produced are £23,063 less than the previous half-year. Of course, about half of this is due to the reduced output during the year, and holidays, but the other half was entirely caused by disturbances to operations owing to breakdowns in the water supply. The disturbances to the water supply caused us a lot of worry. Our treatment is exceedingly sensitive, and must be free from interruptions. We calculate that any stoppage of our whole plant, if only for five minutes, causes us a loss of £35. During the first quarter of the half-year we only had five weeks straight run free from serious interruptions. In the second quarter we made up the losses of the first quarter, and provided the profit shown, to arrive at which we have valued lead on the floor at £17. That means that we have got £23,000 worth of concentrates on the floor. But all these extraordinary items of expenditure, combined with the reduction in the output of concentrates, put our finances into a very serious position, and this reached a climax about a month ago. About that time we deliberated very seriously as to whether we should make a call, and perhaps we should have done so, but we did not, and have been able to manage; but since then the extraordinary expenditure has very much diminished, and now we believe that the necessity for a call will be avoided. Each week is making the position very much easier. The next 12 months is almost certain to show the extraordinary expenditure at £50,000 less, and if metal prices keep up, we will do very well, like the other companies. With regard to slime payments, we have already paid £86,500, and still owe the British Broken Hill Proprietary Company £15,102. We also owe the North Broken Hill, Ltd., £10,125. This means that these payments amount to about £1596 per month, and we are now treating it at almost this rate, so that it nearly all shows as working costs, and very little of it can now affect our cash position in the light of extraordinary expenditure. Now in all our struggles there is one feature that you must not overlook. We have so arranged our process that we have established our 400,000 tons of dump material as an excellent asset that is already returning a very good profit per ton, over and above the purchase price, and the £80,000 shown in our accounts is a very low estimate of their actual value. That is, that we have paid £86,000 for slimes we have not yet treated.

The motion for the adoption of the report and balance-sheet was agreed to unanimously. Messrs. Alfred Rigby and J. S. Palmer were re-elected directors, and Messrs. W. H. Perry and P. G. Pring, of Sydney, were appointed auditors for the ensuing year.

INTERSTATE EXCHANGES.

TRAM RUNS INTO CATTLE.

A HABERFIELD ACCIDENT.

At about 4 o'clock yesterday morning an Abbotsford tram dashed into a mob of cattle in Ramsay-road, between Alt and Dalhousie streets, Haberfield. It was dark at the time, and, on finding his tram right on the heels of the cattle, the driver applied both brakes, but it was too late. The collision derailed the tram, and killed four of the cattle outright. Two other beasts were so terribly hurt that the drovers had to kill them.

WHEN THE NERVES BREAK DOWN, THE MEDICINE TO BE TAKEN.

The Wife of a Well-known Champion Yacht-builder writes of Clements Tonic.

The testimony given below is from the pen of Mrs. E. M. Palmer, whose husband is one of the best known yachting enthusiasts. He has built several champion racing boats, which have won interstate races. This is a testimony worth reading:—

"Borlaise-street,
"Willoughby, North Sydney, 12/8/13.
"CLEMENTS TONIC, LTD.,

"I have suffered severely from rheumatism for years, and have had nervous breakdown. I have at times been so bad as to necessitate being carried about. I have been attended medically, without relief. A neighbour gave me a bottle of Clements Tonic to try, and it did me so much good that I kept taking it till at last I have been enabled to follow my usual household duties. You may make what use you please with this testimony.

"(Signed) Mrs. E. M. PALMER."

Clements Tonic is admitted to be a nerve tonic and blood-cleanser of remarkable power. It is the safeguard against disease. You cannot have Clements Tonic and ill-health, too. It is health in a new guise. It is a certain remedy for Biliousness, Wind, Palpitation, Loss of Sleep, Sick Headache, Sluggish Liver, Weakness, Indigestion, or Constipation. Keep it in the house. IT IS SOLD AY ALL CHEMISTS AND STOREKEEPERS THROUGHOUT AUSTRALASIA.—Advt.

LATE SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Pony and galloway racing will be the attraction at Ascot this afternoon, and an interesting programme promises to furnish good sport. Numerous entries have been received, and several of the events will have to be run in divisions. The track is splendid going, and the surroundings bright and fresh. The customary transit service will be in vogue, special trams landing visitors at the racecourse gates, while the ordinary service to Botany will also be available. The first race is timed to start at noon, and the results may be anticipated as under:—Novice Handicap: First division, Sophora or Geegeela; second division, Reulight or Metford Belle; third division, Hammond or Tinsel. Flying Welter Handicap: First division, Yarrum or Wallingford; second division, St. Moritz or Warman; third division, M'Igaro or Serrane. Fourteen Hands Handicap: First division, Sir Moorefield or Atherdon; second division, Fire Bell or Haut Glen. Fourteen-two Handicap: First division, China or Almafield; second division, Miss Playful or Honeymoon; third division, Haughty Jean or Master Mercer. Ascot Handicap: Argyle, Bombardment, The Soother. Trial Stakes: Horse Marine, Alwyn, Malt Minnie. Fourteen-one Handicap: First division, Bobadil Maid or Lady Mascot; second division, Lady Beauchamp or Toying.

After having been closed for some time the middle grass track was re-opened at Randwick yesterday morning, and trainers had the use of the inside portion. Collar was about the first out, and she ran six furlongs in 1m 22s, a journey over which Malthusian, Bavardagee, and Fox Hound took 1m 21s. Limelight traversed a mile and a quarter in 2m 17s, while Herringbone took 1m 36s for seven furlongs. Dungannon reeled off five furlongs in 1m 7s, and Alfred Jackson easily ran a like trip in 1m 9½s. Hobble Skirt covered a mile in 1m 50s, and Sunlike recorded 1m 25s for three-quarters of a mile. Along the back of the course Creamer spurted five furlongs in good style, and a strong six furlongs was run by Aleberry, Volcore, and Star of the Empire. Matouree went strongly over a circle, while Irishwoman and a mate took 1m 10s for five furlongs. Queenie Soult spurted freely, and Grail defeated Zif over seven furlongs in 1m 34s, a journey which was run by Rubecula in 1m 35s. Miss Collar and Rocus went smartly over five furlongs, and Sir Alwynton was let off with useful work, as were Rymerhild, Winora, and Danum. Bunbury spurted half a mile in 54s, and Idyia took 1m 49s for a mile trip. On the tan Duke Foote pottered about, while Stimulus and Grabapple spurted. Karool did easy work, and Best Scot covered six furlongs in 1m 23s. Balranald did easy work, and Moving Picture spurted freely over a short course. Among those to put in serviceable work were Burri, La Fiancee, and Embracer.

At the annual meeting of the Casino Amateur Race Club, the following officers were elected:—President, Mr. J. C. MacKinnon; vice-presidents, Lieut.-Col. Fanning, and Mr. C. D. Ferguson; hon. treasurer, Mr. W. J. Hogg; committee, Messrs. J. B. O'Dougall, W. A. Parker, L. W. Devlin, A. Campbell, H. Braine, and W. R. Junor. A good sum was promised towards prizes and trophies for the next meeting.

Metropolitan sportsmen, who intend to be present at the Wyong Park races to-morrow can travel by trains leaving the Central Railway Station at 6.45, 9.15, 9.55, 10.40, and 11.25 a.m.

CYCLING DISPUTE.

RELAY TEST RECORD.

PROTEST DISMISSED.

The Dunlop Rubber Company yesterday arrived at a decision in regard to the 100 miles relay test, the result of which, on account of a protest against the Northern Suburbs District League Club, has been in doubt since April 30, when the contest ended, after having engaged the attention of professional cycling clubs throughout Australia for twelve months.

The following is the text of the company's finding:—"In connection with this contest, the fullest inquiries have been made in order to ascertain that the conditions of the contest have been properly complied with, and it has been decided by the promoters, the Dunlop Rubber Company, that all the conditions have been met. A protest on the grounds of pacing was entered by the Granville Cycling Club, but each of the riders is prepared to make a declaration that they were neither paced nor assisted. Then, A. C. Walcott's time for the 10 miles will be taken at 26m 50s, making the total time for the team 4h 10m 20s. Therefore, on the riders making a declaration as above referred to, the Northern Suburbs Club will be declared the winners."

MOTOR CYCLING.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE THEATRES.

The stirring theatrical event of to-day will be the first appearance of Mr. Harry Lauder at the Theatre Royal, where he will sing to-night, at 8, an entire group of songs he has made known all over the world, including "Tobermory," "Stop Yer Ticklin', Jock," "I Love a Lassie," "Roamin' in the Gloamin," and "We Parted on the Shore." Messrs. J. and N. Tait have also engaged Irene Berceny and Yoska, Hungarian gipsy musicians; the Three Hassans, acrobatic wire act; Miss Kitty Ryan, balladist; Jack Ark, diabolo expert; Ernest Sewell, living marionettes; Selwyn Driver, songs at the piano; and Horace Sheldon, musical director. There will be a matinee on Saturday. The plans are at Nicholson's.

Mr. Lauder left Melbourne yesterday by special train for Albury, where he gave a performance last night, afterwards catching the second division of the Sydney express, which is due to arrive at 10.55 o'clock this morning. Mr. Lauder will be met on arrival by the Pipe Band of the Highland Society, who will escort him to the Theatre Royal, via George-street.

At Her Majesty's Theatre, where there will be performances of "The Forty Thieves" at 1.45 and 7.45 to-day, that popular pantomime is now in its last nights. Messrs. Lupino, Brett, Hassan, Misses Lonnen, Firmin, Eaton, and the new specialty artists, "The Three Rubes," all contribute to the success of the picturesquely staged piece.

At 2 o'clock to-day there will be a matinee performance of "The Argyle Case" at the Criterion Theatre. The unravelling of the murder mystery by Never-Sleep Kayton, as represented by Mr. Chas. Millwood, is accompanied by more than one thrilling incident in which the leading artists take part, whilst humour is represented by Maggie Moore and Wm. Harrigan.

At the Little Theatre, Shaw's mirthful satirical comedy "Fanny's First Play" will be performed at a matinee to-morrow, with the final performance on Saturday night. Uproarious laughter attends the development of the farcical plot in which the son and daughter of these modern Capulets and Montagus are "jugged" for fourteen days apiece.

For the benefit of women's clubs and associations, or of schools, it is announced that during this week orchestra stalls for "Fanny's First Play," when ordered in batches of 25 or more, will be sold at half-price. This concession was made on similar conditions in London by Miss Lillah M'Carthy, who staged the play there.

"The School for Scandal" will be produced by the Buckler-Paget combination next Monday evening, and the plan for this interesting revival is now open at Paling's. Sheridan's brilliant comedy will be a revelation to youthful playgoers, and others will be attracted by a cast with Mr. G. Kay Souper as Sir Peter Teazle, Miss Violet Paget as Lady Teazle, Mr. Hugh Buckler as Charles Surface, and Mr. A. H. Bristowe as Joseph.

Mr. Allen Doone announces the final matinee of "The Burglar and the Lady" for 2 p.m. to-day at the Palace Theatre, as the actor-manager makes his farewell appearance in this smart detective drama on Friday night. Miss Edna Keeley has a charming part in this duel between Raffles and Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Doone has before him a season in Hobart and other Commonwealth capitals before his return here in November.

The Ethel Buckley Dramatic Company is announced by Messrs. Dix and Baker to open at the Palace Theatre on Saturday next, when the Western drama "Bess of Arizona," with Miss Ethel Buckley in the leading role, will be played for the first time. The popular comedienne will be supported by Messrs. C. R. Stanford, Robert Inman, Don Edwards, Roland Conway, Misses Agnes Keogh, Adele Holmes, May Lyune, and other artists. The plan is now open at Paling's.

At the Adelphi Theatre the last three nights of "The Beggar Girl's Wedding," with the romantic adventures by which the bride and bridegroom are finally lured into the "Cage of Death," are now in progress, as on Saturday next Mr. George Willoughby will produce "From Convent to Throne." In this romantic military drama, with its beautiful coronation scene in the ancient church, the central characters will be assumed by Mr. George Cross and Miss Vera Remee.

The Sydney Repertory Society's July production will be "The Servant in the House," by Mr. Charles Rann Kennedy. Since the production of "Mid-Channel" the society has been inactive, but the delay has been unavoidable. Rehearsals will be commenced at once.

CONCERTS AND RECITALS.

Mr. Leonard Borwick, a pianist of European celebrity, whose season here three years ago won him hosts of admirers, will make his reappearance in Sydney next Monday evening at the Concordia Hall. Mr. Carlyle Smythe is directing this second Australasian tour. The English pianist will open on Monday with the Bach "Organ Prelude in E Flat," and his recital will include the Beethoven "Sonata in C Minor," and groups by Schumann, Chopin, and Liszt. The plan is at Paling's.

Mlle. Antonia Dolores, a much-travelled artist, who has starred at Warsaw, St. Petersburg, Paris, Berlin, and London, and has toured America, South Africa, and Australasia many times, will make her reappearance at the Sydney Town Hall on Saturday evening, June 6, after an absence of several years. The French soprano, the most popular "song-recitalist" who has ever visited this country, will bring Mr. Boyd Wells with her as solo pianist. The plan will open at Paling's as notified.

Miss Dorothea Spinney will recite the "Iphigenia in Tauris" next Monday evening (8.15) at the Repertory Theatre. This tragedy of Euripides is more or less of a romantic character, and possesses a happy ending, a fact which will dissipate the gloom caused by "The Trojan Women." "The Bacchae" is announced for Monday, June 8, and the "Antigone" (Sophocles) for Friday, June 12. Afternoons for pupils and students will be June 4, 9, and 18. The plan is at Paling's.

This evening, at the Town Hall, under the auspices of the Sydney Clerks and Warehousemen's Association, the Sydney Harmonic Choral Society will give an invitation choral concert. Mr. W. Bourne will conduct spirited excerpts from Elgar's "Caractacus" and "St. George" cantatas and other numbers, and there will be choral numbers by the Leichhardt School Choir, under Mr. J. Newell. Misses Muriel Barton, Helena Collier, Elsie Una Roberts, and Mr. Sid Macdonald will be the soloists. The plan is now open at Paling's.

At the Randwick Town Hall this evening Mr. Montgomery Stuart will give an entertainment, at which he will sing and appear in comedy, when a miscellaneous programme will be contributed to by Mrs. Barfield Sinclair, Mrs. Stuart, Misses Iris Webster, Elsie Kettley, Messrs. Lou Walters, Carlton Clements, and Arthur Simmons.

Miss Lilian Frost will give her usual midday organ recital in the Pitt-street Congregational Church to-day at 1.15, when a Wagner programme will be played, including the Grand March from "Tannhauser," "Prelude to "Lohengrin," and the "Ride of the Valkyries." Mr. Emil Sussmilch will sing the romance, "O Star of Eve."

The Tom Moore birthday concert, to be given in the Town Hall to-morrow night, will be under the patronage and in the presence of the Governor and Lady Strickland, the Premier and Mrs. Holman, Archbishop Kelly, and the Lord and Lady Mayoress (Alderman and Mrs. Richards). Mr. Allen Doone will sing "Believe me if all those Endearing Young Charms;" Miss Maggie Moore, "The Minstrel Boy;" Mr. Reginald Roberts, "The Harp that Once;" and Mr. Sid Macdonald, "Far from the Land." The many other contributors will include Mr. John Lemmone (flautist) and the Parramatta Convent String Quartette.

The Dickens' Fellowship will give an entertainment at King's Hall to-morrow night towards a memorial to Edward Bulwer Lytton Dickens, in Moree Cemetery. Mr. G. S. Titheradge, will recite the "Death of Sydney Carton," and other Dickens' recitations will be given by Messrs. Harrison Allen, M. Rosenthal, N. Zions, and Misses Grace Stafford and Gwyn Smith. There will be musical numbers by Mr. A. R. Cattanach, Mr. Olof Spence, Miss Mills, and also Miss Eva Nicholson.

Miss May Welsh will give a dramatic recital of three of her own short plays at the Repertory Theatre to-morrow evening, when, with the assistance of Isla Vivienne Ascher, and other amateur players, she will stage "The Fairy of the Christmas Tree," "The Interview," "Down with the Men," and "The Editor Regrets."

Next Saturday evening the Western Suburbs Philharmonic Society will give a miscellaneous concert at the Sydney Town Hall, when Mr. John Mansfield will conduct choral numbers by Mendelssohn, Verdi, Wallace, and Sullivan, as well as Handel's "Zadok, the Priest." The artists will be Misses Elsie Pidcock, Daisy Sweet, Lilian Frost, Maud Ferguson, Messrs. Lawrence Campbell, Cyril Monk, Carl Gotsch, and Percy Harford. The plan is at Paling's.

Miss Hilda Crockford, from the studio of Miss Mary Marnicol, will repeat her elocutionary recital (by request), in St. James's Hall next Saturday evening. Her programme will consist of recitations, musical monologues, and sketches. The assisting artists will be Miss Dagmar Thomson, and Mr. Percy French. Invitations are at Paling's.

Under Vice-Regal and mayoral patronage, Mrs. Haffenden-Smith announces her fifth annual invitation vocal recital, to be held in the Town Hall on Wednesday, June 3 (King's Birthday), when over 50 students will sing Fletcher's "For Empire and for King" (first time), to grand organ by Mr. Ernest Truman. Mr. Laurance Phillip will also assist. Proceeds are in aid of the Lady Edeline Baby's Hospital, Greycliffe. The plan is at Paling's.

Madam Layton Gaubert will give a vocal recital at St. James's Hall on Friday at 8.15 p.m., at which she will render the song cycle "Summertime," by Landon Ronald; "Che faro senza Euridice," by Gluck; and modern ballads by Lohr, D'Hardelot, and Amy Woodford Finden. The assisting artists will be Miss Florence Brown, Mr. Frank Hutchens, and Mr. Vern Barnett (accompanist). The plan is now available at Paling's.

In St. James's Hall on Thursday, June 4, Mr. and Mrs. Ancelon and students from the School of Elocution, will present scenes from "Hamlet," "Camille," "Richelieu," and "Romeo and Juliet," together with "The Woman Intervenes" and "Packing Up," wherein both Mr. and Mrs. Ancelon will appear. Torzillo's orchestra will play. The plan is at Paling's.

Next Sunday afternoon, at the Town Hall, Mr. Gehde will direct a concert of sacred, classic, and concerted items. Miss Elsie Peerless will sing again "Caro Nome" and "The Rosary," and, with Master Roy Williams, the duet "Tranquil Night." Mr. Fred. Smith will sing "Soldiers of Christ, Arise." The Meistersingers, Miss I. Allen, Signor Torzillo, and Mr. E. Archer will also assist.

Mr. Walter Thorman's pupils will give a recital at the King's Hall, Phillip-street, at 8 o'clock this evening. The assisting artists will be Miss Dorothy Null (elocutionist), Mr. Nelson Illingworth (vocalist), and Mr. E. J. Davidson (violinist). Invitations and plan are at Paling's.

Mr. Stanley Leadley, who is leaving early next month for Italy, is to be tendered a farewell complimentary concert in the Town Hall on Thursday, June 4. An attractive programme is being prepared. The plan is at Paling's, as notified.

MR. A. E. V. BENHAM'S CONCERT.

Mr. A. E. V. Benham was the principal artist in a concert at St. James's Hall last evening. This young singer is a pupil of Mr. Percy Herford. Mr. Benham has a voice of wide range. It's top register is full and resonant. Mr. Benham gave "The Curfew," "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind!" (Sargeant), "Rolling in Foaming Billows" (Haydn), "The Watchman" (Squire), "Young Tom, of Devon" (Russell), and "Hybrias, the Cretan."

Mr. Bruce Carter, Mr. Harry Thomas, Miss Ivy Allen, and Miss Muriel Barton also contributed items.

PATRIOTIC CONCERT.

A patriotic concert, arranged by the Public Service Association of New South Wales, was held in the Town Hall on Monday night. During the evening Mr. Lawrence Campbell recited "The Roll of the British Drums," and "Lichtenburg." Miss Lilian Frost, Miss Annie Mills, Miss Gladys Bourke, Mr. Sid Macdonald, Mr. John Green, and Mr. Chas. N. Philp contributed items. Selections were given by the Royal Australian Garrison Artillery Band, the Metropolitan Public Schools' Band, the Leichhardt Superior Public School's Boys' Choir, under the direction of Mr. J. Newell, and the Sydney Harmonic Society. The concert was concluded by a grand organ solo by Miss Lilian Frost, and the sounding of "The Last Post" by the buglers. The feature of the programme was the display given by the cadets from the Tingira.

OTHER ENTERTAINMENTS.

To-day's matinee and evening performance will complete the successful run at West's Olympia of "The Colonel's Wife." This is said to be a subject which gives the popular actress Miss Henny Porten a unique opportunity of displaying all her gifts as an emotional and tragic actress. On Thursday next the popular Asta Nielsen will make a reappearance in a big comedy success, entitled "Up to Her Tricks." De Groen's Vice-Regal Orchestra will supply the incidental music.

A natural colour special, "Traitors to their King," heads an enjoyable programme at Spencer's Lyceum. The story is woven around the attempts of conspirators to wreck the monarchy during the reign of Henry the Fourth of France, one of the most turbulent periods in the history of that nation. Other films being shown are "The Australian News Gazette," "Lincoln the Lover" (a pretty romance in the life of America's beloved President); "Through Albania" (scenic study); "The Backyard Theatre;" "Tramp Police" (comedies). An exhibition will be given this afternoon, commencing at 2.30.

English Gazette, "A Woman Scorned," "Marrying Sue," "Waterworks of Stockholm," "Pimple in the Grip of the Law," and "Price of the Necklace," a star film, will be shown on Thursday at the Crystal Palace.

The new programme at the Lyric on Thursday will include "Bitumen Mines," "The Branded Arm," "Lucky Elopement," "Alegrina Acrobats," "Sealed Orders," and "Hubby's Night Off."

At the Colonial Theatre to-morrow will be screened "A Redskin's Mercy," "West Coast of Italy," "Ah! That Gizetta!" "The Wiles of a Siren," and "Rare Comradeship."

The change of programme at the Empress Theatre to-morrow will bring forward "The White Rose," "Max Cures Cinemania," "On the Silver Coast," "Asking for Trouble," and "The Geisha."

Large attendances continue to throng the well-appointed halls of the Imperial Salon de Luxe. The tango teas and the Friday night "Thespian suppers" have proved a complete success. Keen interest has been awakened by the prospect of a carnival on June 2, entitled "A Night in Japan."

To-morrow evening the long-expected reopening of the Glaciarium takes place, and excitement runs high in the hearts of all devotees of the ice. Several celebrated adepts have been specially engaged from Berlin, Boston, and Switzerland, and there is every reason for supposing that the forthcoming season will, if anything, surpass all that have yet preceded it.

"The Mills of God," "Return of Jack Bellen," "Riverside Crime," "Oh! What a Night," "Bella's Stratagem," "His Favourite Pastime," "Return of Peter Blim," and various other pictures are shown at the American Picture Palace this week.

The chief resort of skaters living the the vicinity of Moore Park is the big rink situated in the Industrial Hall, just inside the Show Ground gates. Enthusiasts are now coming from every part of the city to follow up their favourite amusement. The skating arena covers an area of no less than 50,000 square feet, so that over 2000 skaters can be accommodated at the one time without crowding.

The Dandies, at the Coronation Theatre, situated at Bondi Junction, continue to draw large houses nightly, and during the last week many had reluctantly to be refused admission, the theatre being full. A clever and well-varied programme is given, including numerous attractive musical items.

THE FIG TREES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I hope the City Council will stick to their intention to remove the fig trees, and widen Macquarie-street, and not be led by the few, who without going into details, will not stand for improvements. To me this street needs resuming more than any other in the city, as it is the main inlet, and outlet, of all the eastern and southern traffic to the punt. Then again, is there any comparison between the wide, beautiful part, with its lovely lawns and flower beds, and the dirty, narrow part? Let anybody take a run down and compare them both.

In this morning's issue you quote a petition that has been sent to the Lord Mayor. I think it is very misleading, and I hope will carry no weight, as many people would put their names to a petition of that sort on being told that the council were about to cut down a lovely lot of fig trees, without ever asking why. In reply to clause one: The new road will be a greater ornament. Clause two: Few people ever avail themselves of the shade, and if they have the time will need to go little further, into the gardens. As to the protection from the west winds, as the trees are on the east side they can offer no protection from the west. Clause 3: Granted, but why hold the improvement of our city back for the sake of this row; there are plenty more. Clause 4: Nonsense. No street in the city needs widening more. Clause 5: This is the daddy of the lot, as it calls all persons ignorant who do not agree with them.

Our forefathers, not expecting the population of Sydney to-day, let alone years to come, cut things a bit fine, and whenever some of our public men come along and try to improve matters, others step out and try to block them. I am, etc.,

M. P. MURPHY.

May 22.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have read with interest the correspondence in the "Herald" in reference to the Macquarie-street fig trees. Before a tree is cut down there must always be a strong reason for doing so, and in this case there is, for, if the improvments that have already been carried out in Macquarie-street are to be continuel to Circular Quay, and on the same lines, then the fig trees must go. No doubt many people, from sentimental reasons, and because they are a native tree, feel that they would rather do anything than have them cut down. As to the shade these fig trees give in this street, well, there are scores of shade trees in the Botanic Gardens, Palace Grounds, Domain, Hyde Park, and elsewhere, and these fig trees that it is proposed to remove need not stand in the way of improving Macquarie-street, as has already been done between Parliament House and Government House gates. This fine stretch of broad roadway, flanked with palms and beautiful lawns, is in keeping with the Botanic and Palace Gardens alongside, and a distinct improvement to that part of the city. I do not advocate that only lawns and palms, without trees should be carried out in all future improvements, as this would mean there would be very little shade which is needed in this warm climate, but where beautiful lawns, shrubs, and flowers are cultivated then by all means keep out the fig tree, as it is the greatest robber of the soil known in Australia, which is saying a good deal. I hope the readers will not think I have lost sight of the beauty of this tree in other ways, its large, handsome foliage and the majestic proportions it attains if planted about 70ft apart as an avenue. Individual specimens that I have come across in the parks and gardens around Sydney are better than any in Melbourne, although it does well there. A great mistake with these fig trees in Macquarie-street is that they are planted too close to one another, only 27ft apart in most cases, with the result that they have all grown into one another, and in a few years it will be the survival of the fittest. I need hardly point out they are dropping leaves and figs the whole year round, costing a lot for labour in cleaning up, and even then the ground is always dirty, so that the council must spend a lot of money in a year for cleaning up figs and leaves where the trees are planted in the city. This does not matter in places away from the city, where is plenty of room, and where the ground is not cultivated, and where large trees are required for landscape effect. It is here where the fig tree is seen to better advantage, and should be largely planted. A few years ago in Melbourne it was suggested that only Australian trees should be planted in the streets, gum trees, etc, and in some of the suburbs they were, with the result they ran up spindly, and soon started to get woody, with only the leaves on the ends of the branches. They get affected with the dust and smut of the streets, and will not do well where they are exposed in the streets as single specimens, and they are too short lived for the purpose. Nearly all the Australian trees love the shelter of the bush, especially flowering trees, so they should be planted in sheltered situations only to do well.

I read with interest the letter to-day from Mr. J. H. Maiden, director Botanic Gardens, and recognised in Melbourne and elsewhere as one of the most eminent authorities and lover of trees in the southern Hemisphere; so the citizens of Sydney can rest assured that when Mr. Maiden agrees the fig trees should go it is only after the utmost consideration and the merits of the case have been carefully thought over that he has arrived at that conclusion. I am, etc.

G. COOPER, Jun., Curator.
Alexandra-avenue Gardens, Melbourne.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Many of his friends will be sorry to see in your Saturday's issue a letter from Mr. J. H. Maiden advocating the destruction of the avenue of trees which give such grateful shade to those who use the north end of Macquarie-street, and at the same time shelter Government House and its grounds from the dust and westerly winds, mark from view the ugly hide and other stores which front the Quay, and form such a pleasant break in the sky line looking northward down Macquarie-street and eastward from the water. It is believed that Sir Thomas Mitchell and others responsible for the design of what was then described as a "fitting residence for the representative of the King." caused these trees to be planted for the purpose for which they have served so long and so well.

Your correspondent proposes flower beds instead. But these would, beautiful though al; flowers are, be merely backyard gardens to the skin and produce stores, and in no way save the contemplated desecration of the landscape.

Apart from the vandalism contemplated, and the suggested unwarrantable interference with a property now the subject—though Mr. Maiden apparently thinks not—of proceedings pending before the highest Court of the Empire, it seems the better opinion that the value and beauty of shade trees in cities, particularly in warm climates, are incalculably greater than that of flower beds, for beside giving beauty to the sky line, acting as shades and shields from heat and dust and wind, each tree acts and works its leaves like a living punkah, cooling the heated air all round. It also is of use in absorbing malarious and other unpleasant emanations. Mr. Maiden claims to be a tree lover, but many of us regret that he uses the axe so freely, and that he is not with us endeavouring to save the too few trees remaining of the heritage handed to our care by the far-seeing men of old time who preserved and planted them about this city. Your correspondent thinks the carrying out of his scheme would cost ' ttle. Does he know that the cost of the Cook Park-road, involving, by the way, destruction of oaks and other trees in his care, has been stated at some £40,000. I am, etc.,

WILLIAM COPE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I am sure the ratepayers would be glad if you would publish in the reports of the meetings of the City Council the names of the aldermen who vote for and against the destruction of the trees and encroachments on our parks. My vote, and I am sure many others, will tell in the future elections against those who are so ruthlessly destroying what little beauty now remains in our public parks. I think it needs a progress association to keep some aldermen in check, as they have to do in the suburban councils.—I am, etc.,

VIGILANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Please permit me to say a few words regarding those Macquarie-street, Moreton Bay fig trees. Some of your correspondents erroneously think that anybody favouring their removal must necessarily be an enemy of that class of trees, or trees in general. I wonder how many of those correspondents ever took shelter under their branches, or know approximately their number, leave alone viewed same from different perspective points of view. Being a native of this city, and residing within easy walking distance of those trees, I, like many others, was dead against their removal, until I had given the intended change due consideration. Macquarie-street's extreme northern end is probably one of the least used streets of Sydney; beyond the traffic coming from the horse ferry or the employees of a couple of ocean-going steamers (chiefly coloured men), very little use is made of it. An alteration if made must be of such a nature that people are attracted to it; that is, a promenade must be formed. The adjoining Botanic Gardens and the Domain offer during day-time so much shelter and shade that there is no extreme need for those fig trees. Towards nightfall, when the Gardens are closed, and the Domain, from past experience, is not quite the safest place, a wide, open, airy Macquarie-street, with an occasional flower-bed, shrub or palm on a grassy lawn, would be far more appreciated than a street darkened by huge trees. Were the street uniformly continued in the manner commenced between Bent and Bridge streets right to the water's edge, and the walk along the water's edge to Mrs. Macquarie's Chair left open both day and night (the otanic Garden part could be neatly fenced off), I am certain it would be one of the sights of Sydney, appreciated on moderately warm days, and a much-patronised promenade during the cool of the evening. Also, it would to a degree satisfy those members of the Millions Club who wanted the whole of the Gardens opened at night. I am, etc.,

E. V. FINCKH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In a letter to the "Herald" of 23rd inst., Mr. Maiden says he is warmly in accord with those who protest against unnecessary destruction of trees. Yet he favours the cutting down of the trees in Macquarie-street. He also says that " to bifurcate the street would botch it." Why? Is Sturt-street, Ballarat, a botch? It is hard to realise Mr. Maiden's love of trees when we see him remove so many from the Botanic Gardens and leave the Domain around Mrs. Macquarie's Chair a dreary waste, where previously one could get grateful shade from the glaring sun. And many of the trees that are left, as well as beautiful palms, are disfigured by having large painted boards nailed on them. The incongruity can only be likened to splashing whitewash on a roof of gold, or sticking posters on a Parian portico. The writer of this used these metaphors in a letter to the "Herald" when first these boards were nailed up. I am, etc.,

T. H. L.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In the discussion now raging round the fig trees, may I be permitted to say that if these splendid forest monarchs are destroyed the lower portion of Macquarie-street will look very bald and naked. The old ramshackle buildings opposite will be thrown into bold relief as the trees disappear. I am unable to reconcile Mr. Maiden's statement that he is loth to remove trees with a recent act of his in the destruction of several magnificent palms in the Domain. A far less barbarous method would have been to transplant them. I am, etc,

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

AN UNIQUE OFFER.

We are selling these Pianos at very much less than their actual worth.

THEY ARE NOT OLD STOCK—we have taken them in exchange or part payment for Player-Pianos.

THEY HAVE NOT BEEN MUCH USED—that is the reason the owners let them go, and bought Automatics—they had no time to practise.

They are expensive Pianos—were owned by well-to-do people—and now is your opportunity to buy one at a very moderate figure.

Ronisch, Raff, Bord, Payne, Hapsburg, Schiedmayer, and many other World-famous Instruments.

CARNEGIE'S EASY TERMS.

The home is incomplete without a piano—but for many the necessary outlay is far too great. You can obtain one of the world's best instruments by paying as merely a small deposit and a small sum each month. The terms are easy, and the methods just and business-like.

We give as much time as 5 or 6 years in which to pay it if is desired—although clients may at any time complete the payments, and so obtain a reduction. Sole agents for Blüthner, Gors and Kallmann, Fahr, Hopkinson, Schwechten, Krauss, Winkelmann, and Angelus Player Piano. Catalogues free.

(opp. Henry Bull's).

WE have on sale at our PIANOLA HALL to-day an excellent selection of high-grade slightly used PIANOS, including such makers as STEINWAY, STECK, BECHSTEIN, LIPP, RONISCH, BRINSMEAD, COLLARD and COLLARD. Also a number of medium grade PIANOS in first-class condition, ranging from £20. These instruments have been taken in part payment for our genuine Pianola Pianos, and we advise any discriminating Piano-buyer to inspect them before purchasing elsewhere, as most of them have had so little use that they are practically as good as new. Our prices for these pianos will astonish you.

WE also have for immediate sale a number of Second-hand PLAYER-PIANOS, including two Ronisch Claviolas, Broadwood Playolas, Angelus Player-Pianos, 2 Auto Player Pianos, and Unola Player-Piano, at prices ranging from £85.

WE will give with every instrument mentioned in this list our usual guarantee. Terms can be arranged from one to three years, and we will accept as low as £2 deposit, and the balance in monthly instalments.

PALMER CORD TYRES ARE STRONGER. THEY ARE DESIGNED TO RESIST STRAIN.

PALMER CORD TYRES.
The impregnated rubber cords, used as a foundation, are looped round "anchors," which take all the strain off the bead covering. This anchorage is of enormous strength, is unaffected by moisture, and is thoroughly flexible, so that the Palmer is no more difficult to fit than any other tyre.

PALMER CORD TYRES.
This extra strength of the Palmer Tyre at the bead makes for the greater life of the tyres—for it is at just this part where canvas-based tyres are weakest. There are dozens of other reasons why Palmer Tyres are better. The catalogue explains them all. Write for one to-day.

RANDWICK-ROAD.

An almost matchless panorama of varied views, embracing a wide sweep of country, including (opposite) the RANDWICK RACECOURSE, with its pleasing presentment (when a sward feature only), and its picturesque animated sight on throng occasions, as also a stretch of scenery bounded by many distant districts, with all the intervening villages and other objects.

THE MANSION HOLKHAM has a striking design, with its long and broad verandahs (tiled) and balconies at front, side, and rear, noble hall, drawing and dining rooms, each 30 x 15, smoke-room, breakfast-room, 8 bedrooms, dressing-room, cloakroom, 2 bathrooms, linen closets, sewing-room, tower-room, 2 pantries, storeroom, scullery, larder, man's room.

THE LAND is spacious in its area, viz.—295 feet frontage to RANDWICK-ROAD (ALISON-ROAD), depth lines of various lengths, also 192½feet frontage to Princes-street, extending to tramway fence at rear.
Extensive stabling or garage premises, 9 stalls, coach and harness rooms, men's quarters, etc.

Seldom is such a compact home property in the market, but Mrs. Richards, having left for England, there is now offered the opportunity to gentlemen of means to acquire a completed residence and grounds in easy touch with the city by access, via Elizabeth-street, Oxford-street, Flinders-street (to be widened), Moore and Centennial Parks—truly a delightful route all the way.
The outlook is specially attractive, and has assured to a resident perpetual joy, for no obstruction can interrupt the enchanting extent of land and water scapes.

YOU WON'T HAVE TO "HANG ON" TO YOUR

ROSEBERY
HOME SITE

FOR YEARS BEFORE
IT HAS AN EXCELLENT
MARKET VALUE.

Land that you have to hold for a period of several years before it's "worth anything," isn't in the same street with ROSEBERY as a sound investment.

In such a short period as TWO YEARS ROSEBERY Land has increased in price from £2/10/ per foot to £3/10/ (or to be accurate, £3/10/ on July 1 next). This shows clearly that keen judges of land values are after ROSEBERY Sites.

As a matter of fact Lots have changed hands at £4/10/ a foot on Road Frontages.

If you buy NOW you can obtain the pick of any of these available magnificent Sites at the one price of £3 PER FOOT.

Only £5 Deposit is required, while the Balance may be paid at the rate of £1 PER MONTH. At this price, and on these Easy Terms, you won't have half paid for your Lot before it's worth, perhaps, double the present figure. Doesn't this information clear your vision?

BUT WHY NOT A
FOR OCCUPATION?

You can buy a ROSEBERY COTTAGE—a big, roomy, attractive Home—for £885, and need only £50 Deposit. The Balance seems to literally melt away when you pay it off at 25s per week. You quickly arrive at absolute ownership by the easiest and most pleasant way.
Although Home Sites are going up from July 1, we have not raised the prices of Cottages, but it must come soon if this persistent demand keeps up—AND IT WILL. If you buy now you'll certainly have "The Drop" on other folk in a year or two.

We'll gladly forward the fullest information on request.

You can have your pick of six lovely Double-fronted Brick on Stone VILLAS, with tile roof and each of them contains 6 good rooms, kitchen, and offices, front and rear verandahs, water, gas, and sewer, standing on a lovely block, each having land 40 x 150. All this with Torrens Title, and Toohey and Toohey's liberal terms, for £885 each.

MOSMAN.
Gentleman's COTTAGE HOME. Built of good bricks, on solid stone foundation, containing Drawing and Dining rooms, connected by Folding Doors, 4 Fine Bedrooms, Kitchen, and all offices. Quite close to the Ferry, and a stone-throw to the tram. Fitted with all modern conveniences, Water, Gas, and Sewer. Land 40 x 140 (about). Torrens Title. £975. Do not forget that we help you to purchase a Home of your own.

CREMORNE.
Right near the penny tram stop, stands a fine Detached Double-fronted Brick on Stone COTTAGE, having tile roof, tiled verandah, bay window, fine hall, opening off which are 6 excellent rooms, kitchen, and all conveniences. Absolutely a brand new Cottage, having land 40 x 121. Torrens Title. Our Special Price is £1290. See us for our special terms.

MOSMAN.
Do you want to buy a Home with a good prospective value. If so don't hesitate to inspect this lovely place. It is a fine Cottage, standing 70ft away from the street, on a beautiful stone foundation, and contains 7 exquisite rooms, kitchen, and all offices. Water, Gas, and Sewer, and land 60 x 200. The Title is Torrens, and the Price £1550. You may ask yourself, "Where is the prospective value?" Well, here it is, and soon it will be right near the house itself, viz., the Tram to the Zoo. No ordinary individual will doubt the fact that a tram must go to the Zoo, for he has only to ask himself this question: Why is the Government laying out such a beautiful Zoo, when they have not access for the public?

MOSMAN.
At the top of the highest and toniest hill of the Northern Suburbs stands a fine Brick on Stone RESIDENCE, containing Drawing and Dining rooms, connected, Smoke-room, Breakfast-room, 7 Bedrooms, kitchen, Beautiful Balconies and Verandahs. ## HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

WHY CAN'T YOU DECIDE ON A
HABERFIELD HOME?

From time to time in these Columns we have dwelt exhaustively with every aspect of HABERFIELD, as we see it from the buyer's point of view.

We've fully described the plans upon which this Garden Suburb is laid out. We've shown that it represents the best points in Model Town Planning.

We've dwelt upon the "Happiness" of its position; its reasonable proximity to the city. We've shown how steadily and persistently land values have risen in this part.

Then the Homes—their architectural and structural perfection, their roominess and convenience—all have been fully described and pictured.

Further, we've quoted their prices, and emphasised the Easiness of the Terms; how, by paying a Deposit of only £50, you can at once take possession, while paying off the Balance at the rate of from 30/ to 35/ per week—often less than their worth on a Rental Basis.

THESE AND OTHER ASPECTS OF THIS HABERFIELD PROPOSITION have all been reviewed at length, yet as far as we know you have not applied for one of these Grand Homes. Wherein do we fail to convince you? Will you give us a personal opportunity of shedding further light on the proposition? We know it will pay you to own a HABERFIELD HOME; we know, when once you've taken the first step, you'll never go back. It only just requires that FIRST step—your small Deposit, then the rest is Easy. Now, will you call on us to-day, prompted by your OWN INTERESTS, and our very cordial invitation?

"FINE FARM OF FORTY ACRES CHEAP!"

A grand chance for a Splendid General Agricultural or Dairying Farm, the property consisting of good, level, open forest land, adjoining the Wyee Creek, which affords a permanent water supply. In timber alone the property is valuable, the Ironbark being in ample quantities for Building and Fencing.

WYEE FARMS ESTATE, WYEE,

is situated in country particularly picturesque and inviting, 71 miles of Sydney, on the Sydney to Newcastle Line, and 33 miles of Newcastle. The property is only one and a half miles of Wyee Station, under three hours' run of Sydney, and an hour and twelve minutes of Newcastle.

ONLY £5 AN ACRE—EASY TERMS.

Inspection will convince you this is a snap at the price asked. There's another block of 315½ acres, watered by Wyee Creek, and adjoining the above property, which is another good bargain at only £4/10/ per acre.

EASY TERMS—TORRENS TITLE.

Only £1 down and 10/ monthly (including interest at 5 per cent. per annum) for every £25 purchased. Mr. F. W. J. Akhurst, of Wyee, will be pleased to drive you from Wyee Railway Station to the property.

Call or write for Plans. Open Mondays and Fridays till 9 p.m.

"HAPPY, HEALTHY, HURSTVILLE HOMES!"

You can roam around far and wide in your search for a bright, healthy place for your home and fail to find a more picturesquely inviting district than Hurstville. Added to its charms of country, with its rich, undulating lands and graceful trees, are the magnificent views—many of the lots we have here overlook the pretty George's River, while others reach down to Oatley Bay. The man who is never happy unless he is gardening will find no better spot wherein to enjoy this beautiful, healthy, and profitable recreation, while poultry can be added to advantage. In fact, Hurstville is known as the Happy, Healthy Hurstville, because of the manifold charms it has to the Home-maker.

MARINE VIEW.

Bright, breezy, cheerful, situate at Connell's Point, overlooking the finest stretches of George's River, including Como, etc.—an ideal spot for a Home Site. Special features being the natural facilities for outdoor and aquatic pleasure. Lots from 60 x 200 ft, from 5/ foot.

HOMEDALE EXTENSION.

From hilltop and sea, fresh, healthy breezes blow over Hurstville. Frequent train service to Hurstville station (20 minutes from city). Lots about 69 x 214 ft, close to Public School, Post-office, etc., 12/6 a foot.

HOMEDALE HEIGHTS.

Twenty minutes' train run from city to Hurstville Station. Really good, substantial lots, with fine deep-water frontages, grand garden soil, right on Oatley Bay, a pretty arm of the George's River, navigable for Motor Boats, Yachts, etc. Lots about 75 x 196 ft and upward. Home Sites from 12/6 foot. Farm Blocks from £40.

HOMEDALE (1st Subdivision).

Commands Lovely Views of Hurstville, Kogarah, Botany Bay, and George's River. Well-made streets and roads, excellent soil for gardens, lawns, etc. Average allotment about 66 x 200 ft. (quarter acre), £32/10/ each. For your Home Site or an Investment you could not better this. Half an hour from City gets you right home. Only Three Lots left.

EASY TERMS. TORRENS TITLE ALL LOTS.

Only £1 down and 10/ monthly (including interest at 5 per cent. per annum) for every £25 purchased.

"WHY PAY RENT?"

It's a losing game—that's why you should get in touch with us. Secure a nice allotment in a fine, healthy suburb, and build your own home on it. THE MONEY YOU NOW PAY IN RENT WILL PAY OFF YOUR HOME AND MAKE IT ALL YOUR OWN.

WE'VE GOT THE LOTS YOU WANT!

In the best and most accessible parts of suburban Sydney we've got the BIGGEST VARIETY and the BEST VALUES for you to choose from, and thoroughly satisfy your wishes in every way. One of the properties we recommend is

GRASMERE ESTATE, MORTLAKE,

A bright, beautiful, and healthy residential district, with its magnificent lawn-like slopes, reaching down to the shimmering waters of Major's Bay, a stately and picturesque arm of the Parramatta River. Well-made roads, planted on both sides with young trees, which in a few years will transform the roads into lovely tree-shaded boulevards. Magnificent views, extending across the Parramatta to Cabarita on one side; Concord Golf Links (which adjoin the property) on the other. Fine Public School, Church of England, and Roman Catholic Churches adjoining. Gas and Water Service. With the removal of the City Gas Works to Mortlake, the influx of population into this district will be tremendous; in fact, house accommodation at the present time is totally inadequate, so that Home-makers and Investors have here an unusually healthy investment.

EASY TERMS. TORRENS TITLE.

Lots from 50ft frontage, with depths up to 250ft, and more—all cleared and ready to build on, from 14/6 foot, on Rickard's Easy Terms. £1 down, and 10/ monthly (including interest of 5 per cent. per annum) for every £25 purchased. Our Representative will be on the Estate daily.

"FOR FOUR FORTUNATE FARMERS!"

Four especially good areas of magnificently situated Farm Lands, in a favoured-by-Nature locality. You know that to attain the greatest success and an assured independence from your Farm is to have it in the right spot, and then you've got over the greatest difficulty. The following properties, which are sure to appeal to the practical man, or even a beginner, because of the superb quality of the soil and the magnificent value you secure in every acre, are worthy of your early inspection.

FOUR FARMS—GIFTS AT THE PRICE!

You must really see these before you can gather an adequate idea of the value offered, but each Farm area affords advantages which an inspection will readily disclose.

RABY ACRES ESTATE.

Aggregate 1900 acres of choice, undulating land, with a grand park-like aspect, partly cleared and cultivated. These are divided into four profitable farm areas, close to the City Water Supply Canal, supplemented by a dam, the outer boundaries securely fenced throughout. The Estate is eight miles from Liverpool, six miles from Narellan, and under four miles from Ingleburn and Minto (on the Sydney, Liverpool, and Campbelltown line).

VALUABLE TIMBER ON MOST BLOCKS,

The larger proportion being already "killed," and can be realised at a very handsome profit. Ironbark is also obtainable in good payable quantities on a number of the blocks, so that the timber alone will go a long way toward paying for the land.

EASY TERMS FOR YOU!

Only £1 down and 10/ monthly (including interest at 5 per cent. per annum) for every £25 purchased. CALL OR WRITE FOR FURTHER PARTICULARS. OPEN MONDAYS AND FRIDAYS TILL 9 P.M.

IN THE MATTER OF TRIM AND COMPANY, LIMITED, GENERAL STOREKEEPERS, ARMIDALE, N.S.W.

As Receiver for the Debenture Holders, I herewith invite Tenders for the purchase of the Stock-in-trade and Plant in the above matter. Tenders will be received until NOON on WEDNESDAY, the 3rd June:—

STOCK-IN-TRADE AND PLANT.

| | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Manchester and Dresses | 448 | 4 | 2 |
| Clothing and Mercery | 233 | 9 | 2 |
| Hosiery, Haberdashery, and Fancy | 474 | 5 | 0 |
| Boots and Shoes | 176 | 5 | 7 |

| | £2683 | 19 | 0 |

The Stock has been taken by Mr. M. J. O'Grady, who reports that the whole of it is good, clean, and saleable, while the Plant is also in good order. The Premises measure 100 x 60 feet, are well lighted and appointed—they are situated in the best position of Beardy-street. An excellent opportunity exists for a capable business man to acquire what should prove a remunerative concern, more especially as the season in the district promises to be particularly good.

The usual 10 per cent. conditions—the highest or any tender not necessarily accepted. Stock sheets may be seen and all information obtained on the premises, or at my office.

Call and see us, we guarantee to satisfy you. Day, Evening, and Private Classes. Special Saturday Afternoon Classes.

RAILWAY GARAGE,
161 Quay-street, off George-street, near Orchard's.

MOTOR DRIVING means better salary, congenial, healthy employment. When once taken up will never be regretted. 10 Motor Cars or thereabouts are sold in Sydney weekly. Drivers are wanted badly. Let me teach you in 10 or 20 days to be a Licensed Motor Driver and Mechanic. I have taught 200 other young men who are in good positions in this city since January of this year. I will help you to obtain a position. [illegible] Course, £1 10s for car and services. Day and night classes. The Surrey Motor School, 81 Campbell-st, nr. Elizabeth-st.

MOTOR DRIVING MEANS MORE MONEY if you are trained at DOHERTY and ADAMS' MOTOR SCHOOL.
Judge us by Results.
Since January 1, out of 100 pupils, 94 passed city test first try. Of these none had 10 days' training, others 15 to 20 days. Our tuition does not cease with licence. Our pupils are welcome to extend their Mechanical and Electrical knowledge in spare time, without any time limit, until perfectly competent. [illegible]

TRAINED TO BE EXPERT TRAFFIC DRIVERS.
If you are content with a mere licence, or country licence, then you are courting disaster, as the majority of accidents have been due to the inexpert training of holders of suburban licenses. Our city-trained men have not only entire confidence in themselves, but also that assurance control over the car, which alone can secure and hold the cream of the profession.
EMPLOYERS DEMAND THE CITY LICENSE ONLY.
Remember, our certificate is always a passport to a good position. Don't be rushed. If you rush into this business you will soon find yourself rushed out of it again. [illegible]

DOCTORS AND PATIENTS PRAISE KEPHALDOL. THE NEW FOUND PAIN KILLER.

Thousands of British doctors swear by Kephaldol as a means of quick and certain relief from pain, and hundreds and thousands of users praise it above all other similar remedies.

Get 40 grains from your Chemist and use it according to the instructions he will give you, and you will be glad to write as they do.

BURWOOD,
March 6th, 1914.

Messrs. Kephaldol Co., Sydney.

Dear Sirs,—

I received the tube of Kephaldol and I have gained great relief from its use. As I have suffered from violent headaches for years, I have tried all kinds of remedies, but without success.

I have only used half the tube of Kephaldol tablets and have obtained more relief from them than all other remedies combined that I have used, and I can highly recommend Kephaldol to anyone suffering from headache, Neuralgia, pains.

If these few lines may be of any benefit to you in inducing others who may suffer as I did to accept your remedy, you are at liberty to publish them.

Thanking you for your splendid remedy,
I remain, [illegible]
[illegible]

Kephaldol stops Headache almost instantaneously, and gives absolute and certain relief in Influenza, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica, Rheumatism, and the regular anguishing pain to which so many women are martyrs. It absolutely banishes all [illegible]. Every wide-awake chemist stocks it. [illegible] under Pure Food Act of N.S.W., 1908. [illegible]
